Orchids are scarce and there is barely enough valley to tide over the demand. Some days the shortage is acute. Gardenias help to relieve the situation, but they are not so plentiful as they were.

Various Notes.

Joseph Lagomarsino, one of the leading violet growers of California, has sixteen acres planted to violets at Colma, south of San Francisco, from which he expects to begin picking about August 27. From present indications he will have a splendid crop. At the height of the season last year he cut around 280 dozen bunches per day.

G. Madvig, of the C. Kooyman Co., Inc., is gratified to learn that their long-distance aster shipments are arriving in good condition. They were a little uncertain about sending them as far as Atlanta, Ga., but have received word that the experiment was successful. The new basket department at this establishment is getting a nice lot of orders.

J. A. Axell, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., is spending his vacation in Mendocino county, hunting and fishing. Friends are wishing him good luck.

E. W. McLellan returned recently from southern Oregon, where he went to accompany his family home for the opening of school. Mrs. McLellan had been there for several weeks for the benefit of her health.

V. Holmes, superintendent of the McLellan nurseries, has recovered from an attack of scarlet fever, which forced an absence of eight weeks.

V. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, is back from a delightful automobile trip to Lake Tahoe and other points of interest. N. F. Baldocchi reports business satisfactory for the season of the year.

B. M. Joseph is getting a fine lot of snapdragons. The colors are particularly good and Manager F. J. Bertrand

The Market.

August business so far has been satisfactory, but the lack of rain has resulted in a shortage of outdoor stock, and asters, which usually can be counted on for August, are of poor quality. The recently planted carnations are in good form, but it seems that not so many are being grown as last year. The stock of pot plants for winter sales appears to be short and not far advanced. Many of the growers have been busy stringing up the chrysanthemums, of which there will be an ample supply when the time comes. Improvements, repairs and the acquisition of fuel, aside from vacations, are the order of the day.

Various Notes.

August Zitzewitz has recovered from his three weeks of illness and has caught up with his greenhouse work. His carnations, of which there are about 8,000, are in fine condition. He has two houses of mums, one of greens and a small one of Christmas begonias. He reports that trade during the last year has been satisfactory, especially in the shipping end of it.

Otto Lembke's four houses at Lents are planted to mums, carnations and greens, and outdoors he has about 1,500 hydrangeas and 2,000 asters. Mr. Lembke has a good funeral trade.

The Irvington Floral Co. has taken over the range formerly operated by the German Floral Co. The houses are being repaired and planted to 20,000 mums. There are two houses of asparagus. The company disposes of the stock at a stand near the public market.

Charles Betz is taking his vacation at Walla Walla, and during his absence his father is in charge of the range. Mr. Betz is going to use gas briquettes this year, a form of fuel that is said to be gaining in popularity in the face of high coal prices.

Howard Earl, of Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, was in town last week.

E. J. Steele is busily engaged with his pansy crop. He has employed about twenty-five women to gather the seeds.

H. Niklas and F. A. Van Kirk report rather cool weather at Newport, where they are spending their vacations.

W. G. W.

SPOKANE, WASH.

Weather conditions are more satisfactory now, though it should be added that we never have to endure the extreme heat that the middle west does. Seldom does the temperature register 100 degrees and the hot days are always followed by cool, refreshing nights.

So far as we are able to learn, carnation stock has been benched for at least a month and is looking well. H. L. Olsson was perhaps the last to plant, having been delayed by reason of unfinished buildings. The new range is a model and will form a splendid nucleus for the company's future operations. From two to four more houses may be added next year.

Stock is sufficient for most demands, but it generally is of poor or medium quality. Carnations are of usual summer grade; roses ditto. Hutchinson's sweet peas are, as usual during the summer, the best in the market.

The Spokane Greenhouse Co. has been supplying the town with rubrum lilies. In this item the company has managed to have almost the entire market to itself.

Adolph Donart caught the market with a fine cucumber crop and realized a handsome profit. High prices, holding for a longer period than usual, have been a good thing for the vegetable growers.

Bernson & Halle have had two houses of cucumbers and tomatoes. These have paid well this summer. Young carnation stock is looking well. Particularly is this true of Aviator, of which they expect great things.

C. T. Kipp, of the Spokane Florist Co., returned a few days ago from a trip to Alaska. He says Alaska is a great place for a vacation.

A recent visitor was the always welcome Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

The Market.

Perfect weather conditions have prevailed and may be partly responsible for the manner in which business has kept up. There are dull days, of course, but large funerals and other work maintain a good average.

Stock is short in variety, but there are enough blooms of the few varieties available. Peas are fine, the best seen for years. They sell anywhere from 5 to 25 cents per bunch, according to where one buys them. The first-class florists ask 15 cents per bunch and get it without any question. One of our leading dry goods stores is bargaining them at 5 cents per bunch.

Gladioli are coming in nicely now and the supply is about equal to the demand. The first asters put in their appearance a few days ago. Marigolds are plentiful, fine stock selling readily at 50 to 75 cents per dozen. They have a good call for table decorations and make a showy window that takes well with the public and does not wilt quickly. Gypsophilas and greens are plentiful and make up for the lack of variety in cut flowers. At the greenhouses the growers are taking out their cucumbers to make room for carnations. All growers report a large sale of both tomatoes and cucumbers.

Various Notes.

Miss Johns, of the Hollywood Gardens, Seattle, was a visitor last week. She reports business dull during the hot spell.

William Crammatte, of Aberdeen, was in Tacoma on business. Mr. Crammatte says business in Aberdeen is better than ever, notwithstanding the general shut-down of lumber mills on account of strikes.

Julius Dilloff, of Schloss Bros., New York, called on the trade last week, and from his genial smile upon leaving we surmise that he picked up some good orders.

E. Myers, new manager of the Hollywood Gardens, Seattle, also was a visitor. He spent a few days at the greenhouses and retail stores. He has put in a house of Ophelias. This is the concern's first try-out with roses.

Fred W. Tredup, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, reports business twenty-five to fifty per cent better than it was last year.

F. E. Beal, of the Tacoma Floral Co., says he has the finest crop of tomatoes he has ever grown and is disposing of them at a better price than ever before.

The Santa Barbara Soft Shell walnut seedlings and the several grafted varieties of this type were the results of Mr. Sexton's work. Further details are given under Obituary.

STARK IN THE RESERVE.

Lloyd C. Stark, president of the American Association of Nurserymen, is at the Army and Navy Club, Washington, D. C. He states that he has not yet been commissioned, but is in the officers' reserve for the new army.

HOW WHOLESALERS COULD HELP.

[Following are further extracts from an address by M. R. Cashman, of Owatonna, Minn., delivered at the Philadelphia convention of the American Association of Nurserymen. In the first portion of his address Mr. Cashman suggested that the association establish a bureau for the betterment of trade conditions between wholesalers and retailers.]

One of the duties of the proposed wholesalers' bureau would be to give out information on many of the varieties now being propagated. Many retailers throughout the country are selling worthless varieties simply because they do not know any better. These varieties go to the planters and prove to be a damage instead of a benefit. There are hundreds of land-owners who at one time have been ambitious to plant and operate extensive commercial orchards, but because they were sold worthless varieties at the start they soon gave up the idea, with a firm conviction that it could not be made a success. This has all been brought about through the failure of nurserymen to make a study of conditions and to be prepared to furnish the most valuable varieties that would bring success to the planter. The wholesalers' bureau in giving out information of this character, therefore, could do a vast amount of good toward the sale of nursery stock.

The bureau could also be a bureau of publicity, and I want to say here that the nursery business seems to be the last industry to recognize the wonderful results derived from advertising. The only publicity we have today in our business is that done by the traveling salesman and the few catalogues mailed out by the mail-order houses. The publicity committee undoubtedly has covered this subject thoroughly, so I simply call your attention to it.

Why Wholesale Prices to Everybody?

The wholesalers' bureau could also be used as a means to suppress the pernicious practices indulged in by both the wholesaler and retailer. One of these, and I believe the most damaging practice known to the nursery trade, is the mailing out of wholesale lists to persons and others not engaged in the selling, or distribution, of nursery stock. I am free to state that were it not for the damaging effect of wholesale prices made by many wholesalers to almost anyone making application, we would all be enjoying our share of the present prosperity, instead of being compelled to acknowledge that there is no money in the nursery business. The retailer does not complain of the quantity of stock supplied by means of these wholesale lists, but he does complain of the vast amount of business actually lost to the retailer, and, in fact, to the entire nursery fraternity through this pernicious practice. I believe if all nurseries issuing wholesale lists could be brought to realize that a wholesale list placed in the hands of a planter, landscape gardener or park board is ruinous to the trade, they would discontinue the practice immediately. Cheap prices do not sell goods, but cheap prices are the most effective weapons that I know of to fight salesmen with. The wholesalers should get together, study the conditions and, as far as they are able, remedy these evils. The wholesaler cannot get along without the retailer and the retailer will not be in the market for stock unless he is able to dispose of it through his salesmen.

How Wholesalers Kill Dealers' Trade.

Many retailers employ catalogues as their salesmen to sell their stock, but I am sure you will agree with me that the greater part of the nursery stock sold throughout the rural districts is disposed of through traveling salesmen. This being true, no one can question that the traveling salesman is necessary to maintain our trade, and it follows that the salesman must be protected in the territory where he is operating. But one of our salesmen made the following report: "I called on a certain prospect today and he asked me my price on apple trees. I told him $5 per dozen. He then showed me a wholesale list from a wholesaler in Illinois, quoting him apple trees at 10 cents each. Is there 400 per cent profit in the nursery business?" Then, again, this same salesman is detailed to call upon a park board in a neighboring town, this park board being in the market for a carload of trees. We quote a price covering the cost of stock, laid down at that station, plus a reasonable commission for tne salesman's work. The bids are opened and it is found that some wholesaler in Iowa, Illinois or New York has quoted a price even lower than we could buy the stock ourselves in carload lots. Is this protection or encouragement to a salesman, and, above all, what kind of impression does it make on the public? The result of this kind of competition is that the order is placed with the wholesaler.

Now, gentlemen, do you not think that the wholesalers, through a central bureau and through coöperation, could remedy these practices? I am satisfied that they could, and I firmly believe that the retailers are entitled to protection and encouragement from the wholesalers. All we ask is that you make wholesale prices only to those engaged in the business, and if you wish to sell at retail we offer no objection, but we do want you to quote a price no lower than we are compelled to ask for the goods when we buy from you and resell through our salesmen, who receive a commission.

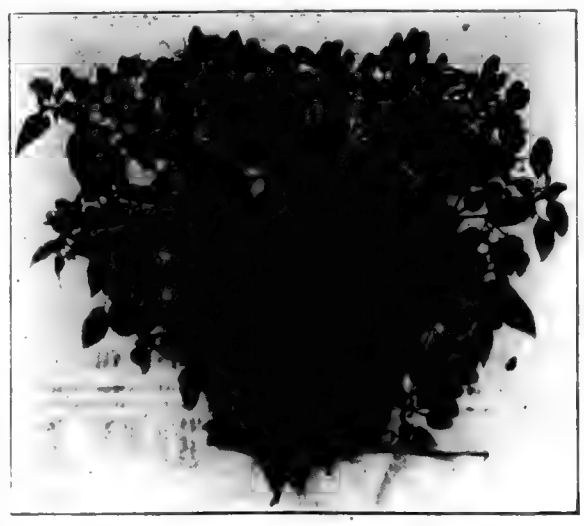
FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The change to cool weather last week had a favorable effect on business. The demand was far greater than during the whole month of July and the stores were scenes of activity. Funeral work is in the lead, counter trade shows a great improvement and there are a few good-sized weddings.

The quality of the cut flowers, both greenhouse-grown and outdoor stock, has improved as a result of the cooler weather. Gladioli are the leaders and bring from $3 to $5 per hundred. There are a large number of lilies, the majority of these selling at $8 per hundred. Asters are plentiful and their quality is good, the blooms bringing good returns. Fine summer roses wholesale from $2 to $6 per hundred. These include Russell, Ophelia, Shawyer and Sunburst. Carnations are not to be reckoned with.

Dahlias are coming into the market in much larger quantities and there are some fine oncidiums. Sweet peas are



NEW CARNATION
CRYSTAL WHITE

CRYSTAL WHITE will be disseminated during the season 1917-1918. CRYSTAL WHITE is the result of a cross between Snowflake and Matchless; habit similar to Matchless, with large full flower of the purest glistening white. A vigorous grower and heavy producer, coming into full crop very early in the season. CRYSTAL WHITE, during the past two years, has been awarded the highest honors at all of the leading exhibitions.

We extend an invitation to all growers attending the S. A. F. Convention to visit our establishment and see our splendid stock of this new variety. Take Long Island train direct to Queens from Pennsylvania Terminal, 33d Street and Seventh Avenue. Telephone 6320 Hollis and our auto will meet you at the station. Thirty minutes from the Pennsylvania Terminal.

FIELD-GROWN CARNATION PLANTS

We have had unusually favorable weather conditions for the growing of Carnation Plants thus far this season, and with continued good weather, they will be ready for benching somewhat earlier than previous years, and of very much better quality.

It is generally conceded by Carnation experts that the best results are obtained by early planting. Ready for immediate delivery.

becoming scarce. There are good outdoor flowers and a liberal supply of dagger ferns, but plumosus, smilax, and Sprengeri are practically off the market.

Various Notes.

Frank Knecht has returned from a several days' business trip to Detroit. His daughter, Miss Martha Knecht, returned last week from a two weeks' trip on the great lakes to Mackinaw city and Duluth. Some good summer roses, including Russell, Shawyer, Ophelia and Sunburst, are being cut daily at the Knecht greenhouses.

The Doswell Floral Co. reports a heavy run on funeral work, with a good supply of gladioli, asters and roses to meet the demand. G. W. Doswell has just returned from a several weeks' stay at St. Louis, where he visited his daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund J. Lanternier and family are spending two weeks at Snow lake. Good summer stock is being displayed in the store of A. J. Lanternier & Co.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Vesey, Jr., are planning to attend the S. A. F. convention at New York. Excellent roses, lilies, asters and oncidiums are being cut at the Vesey greenhouses. This firm has made arrangements with E. C. Amling Co., of Chicago, to handle its large cut of orchids for the season, the first shipment having been made last week.

Miss Marguerite Flick is spending several weeks in Detroit. The Flick Floral Co. had an exceedingly busy week with funeral and wedding work. A. M. Shive, manager of the greenhouses, has purchased a new runabout.

GERANIUMS

Easter comes March 31st next year. It should be a Geranium Easter; get ready for it. If you are at the S. A. F. Convention, see our Mr. R. A. Vincent; he will be pleased to suggest varieties, quote prices or book your order.

The indications are that we will have a big stock, and we can see no reason why we cannot take care of your order, and have them ready at any time.

See about other bedding stock, Coleus, Salvia, Canna, Heliotrope, etc. Brilliancy Coleus for Christmas ready now in 2 in. pots for $3.00 per 100, and from 3 in. pots for $4.00 per 100.

Dreer Specials in Ferns

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosum
The Glory Fern
(Ruhm von Mordrecht)

This splendid Fern, which so closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense in appearance and which does not require the special skill and care in growing that is necessary to produce good plants of A. Farleyense, has quickly made a place for itself not only on account of the fact that it can be produced for little over half that of growing Farleyense, but also because either in a cut state or as plants used in decorative work, it will outlast the old variety ten to one, making it an available subject where Farleyense cannot be used at all. Since its introduction some five or six years ago there has never been a supply large enough to meet the demand.

We have this season prepared an extra large stock and we offer

2¼-inch pots	$1.50 per doz.;	$10.00 per 100
3-inch pots	2.00 per doz.;	15.00 per 100
4-inch pots	3.50 per doz.;	25.00 per 100
5-inch pots	9.00 per doz.;	75.00 per 100

Asplenium Nidus Avis
Bird's Nest Fern

A splendid healthy lot of 2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; fine 3-inch pots, $2.50 per doz; $20.00 per 100.

ASPLENIUM NIDUS AVIS (Bird's Nest Fern)

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum Compactum
Awarded a Silver Medal at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, April, 1916.

A splendid compact growing form of Cyrtomium Rochfordianum which originated with us. A variety which is meeting with universal favor. It is valuable either as a small plant or for growing on into specimens. We offer a fine stock.

CYRTOMIUM ROCHFORDIANUM COMPACTUM

2¼-inch pots	$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000
3-inch pots	1.25 per doz.; 10.00 per 100
4-inch pots	2.50 per doz.; 20.00 per 100

We also offer seedlings in flats, about 200 plants to a flat, at $3.00 per flat.

Pteris Rivertoniana
Awarded a Silver Medal at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, April, 1916.

This is one of the most distinct and desirable of the many crested forms of Pteris now grown.
2¼-inch pots, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Pteris Childsi

This beautiful variety is to Pteris what Farleyense is to Adiantums, and like that variety produces no spore, so that propagation is by the rather slow method of division, which will keep it a rare variety. The plant is of strong growth, attaining a height of about 20 inches; fronds large, pinnæ deeply dentated and undulated; tips crested. Makes a beautiful specimen for exhibition.
Fine plants, 5-inch pots, 75c each.

We extend a cordial invitation to all delegates of the S. A. F. & O. H. to visit our Nurseries at Riverton, N. J., on their way to or from the Convention, and also call your attention to our display at Convention Hall, where we will show a full line of samples of our various specialties. Our representatives will be in attendance and will be pleased to meet you.

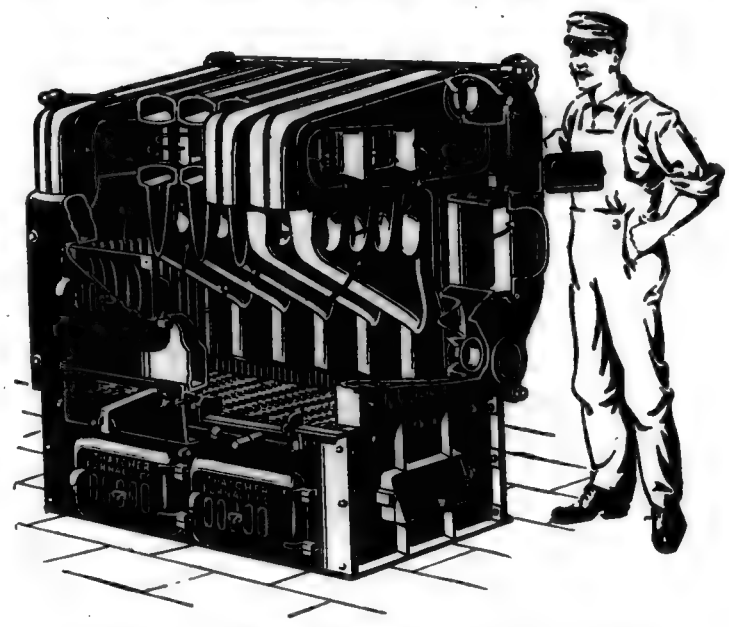
Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.



TWO HOUSES, WITH SOLID BEDS.

Please advise me about the installation of a heating system in my two new greenhouses, each 28⅔x100. I wish to have most of the pipes around the walls and overhead, as the beds will all be solid. If I use steam, can I bring all the return back from the opposite end of the greenhouses through one line? If so, how many 1¼-inch pipes and what size of return will be needed for each house? The side walls are six feet high; half of this height is glass and the other half weather boarding. I wish to be able to keep a temperature of 60 degrees. Sometimes the outside temperature here drops to 10 degrees below zero. If I install a hot water system, how many 2-inch returns will be needed in each house and what size of flows? Which system would you recommend, hot water or steam, considering the present price of pipe? A. E. M.—Okla.

So far as the arrangement of the piping is concerned, we can see no reason why steam heat cannot be used for the two houses described. For a single house of this size we generally prefer a hot water system, since it requires less attention. For the two houses, considering the present cost of pipe, we would suggest the use of steam.

To heat with steam we would use, in each house, one 2½-inch overhead main and fourteen 1¼-inch returns, in two coils on the side walls. The main flow pipe should be 3-inch, unless the flow pipe in each house can be readily connected with the boiler. We would use a 1¼-inch return for each coil, and a 1½-inch pipe for the main return. In case hot water is used, we would put in 3-inch flow pipes on the plates in each house and use eighteen 2-inch returns.

USE A DOWNHILL SYSTEM.

Please tell me how to pipe my greenhouse for hot water heat. The crop will be carnations and the temperature needed will be 45 to 55 degrees. The house is 21x31, six feet high to the eaves and twelve feet to the ridge. The foundations are concrete. The house contains 1,200 square feet of glass. It will require about 350 square feet of radiation, will it not? There is a raised bench in the center and a 3-foot bench at each side wall. The house runs north and south and the boiler room is at the north end.

My understanding is that the highest point of the flow may be either over the boiler or at the opposite end. My intention is to use two 2-inch flows, running one along each plate, or one 3-inch flow under the ridge. Connected with the flow, or flows, would be ten 2-inch returns, five of them on each side wall, under the benches. Could I attach two 2-inch flows to a Wilks boiler, 24x48? I think this boiler has only one outlet. V. K.—Kan.

For a Wilks boiler we would use a 3-inch flow pipe, running it about two feet below the ridge, with the highest point over the boiler. A slope of one inch in ten feet will be ample. When a boiler with two flow ports is used we would, for a house of the stated size and width, run a 2½-inch flow pipe upon each plate or under the purlins. While a radiation of 350 square feet is not too large to be supplied by two 2-inch flow pipes, the number of returns necessary will make it advisable to use two 2½-inch flows, unless a single 3-inch flow is used.

From the amount of glass stated, we infer that there must be about thirty inches of glass below the plates. If a minimum temperature of 55 degrees is necessary in the coldest weather, it will be advisable to use 350 square feet of radiation, but if it will answer if the temperature drops to 50 degrees in the nights when it drops below zero outside, 300 square feet of radiation will answer.

Instead of running the returns along the side walls only, we would drop down two 2½-inch pipes from the end of the 3-inch overhead flow pipe, and with each of them feed a coil of five 2-inch flow pipes running each way from the middle of the end of the house to the corners, and then along the side walls, or under the side benches, back to the boiler. It will be found satisfactory to use 1½-inch returns in a house of this length, and in that case twelve returns will be needed.

Hillside, Ill.—M. J. Burke & Co. are installing a No. 25 Kroeschell tubeless hot water boiler.

Jumps

THERE are two ways to hold a column cap on a column.

One to clamp it pinch tight and trust to the pinch grip to hold it.

The other is to bolt the cap through and through the column.

This last way is Hitchings' way. It's the only way we have done it for thirty years.

That's why Hitchings' houses do not have the "Jumps."

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The demand for flowers was small last week, there being no counter trade and few funerals. At the same time the market was heavily loaded with seasonable stock. Gladioli are abundant and sell at from $1 to $3 per hundred. Niagara, Mrs. Francis King and America are in greatest demand, but other good varieties are plentiful. Outdoor carnations are in the market, but they are of poor quality. Good quality asters, however, are taking their places. Harrisii lilies are plentiful, with practically no demand. Good sweet peas are short of the demand. Short-stemmed stock is plentiful. Giant zinnias of every color are plentiful. Rubrum and auratum lilies are in good supply.

Of the roses Maryland is about the only one of good quality. Ophelia is poor and Russell is off crop. Yellow roses are of poor quality. There are a few good dahlias. Phloxes and snapdragons are plentiful. Some good coreopsis, gaillardias and achilleas are seen. Early hardy chrysanthemums are making their appearance. There are quantities of other seasonable stock. Smilax and asparagus are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Miss Ethel Foster is spending two weeks' vacation with relatives at Reading, Pa.

Harry Merritt, of Irondequoit, has his carnations benched. He is cutting some good outdoor stock.

Hugo Teute is growing a large variety of chrysanthemums this year and says they look exceptionally good.

A. S. Burns, Jr., of Spring Valley, N. Y., is shipping some fine rubrum and Easter lilies to this market.

H. E. Wilson has some exceptionally fine Niagara, Mrs. Francis King and America gladioli, which find a ready sale.

The Rosery Flower Store reports that business is slack, but Paul Campus, its proprietor, has a new touring car.

Albert Young, of H. E. Wilson's force, is spending two weeks at Atlantic City.

Miss Lillian Wheeler is spending a three weeks' vacation with friends in New York city and Atlantic City. Miss M. Mullen also is away on a trip to Canada.

John Orgar, of Irondequoit, is bringing some early hardy chrysanthemums to market. His asters, especially the purple shades, are good. H. J. H.

Myers & Company, well-known florists of Bluffton, Indiana, write as follows:

Regarding the line of Fertilizer you offer The Greenhouse Trade, will say we have used it the past season with very gratifying results. My only regret is that we did not begin using it sooner. We used it on the carnations, greens, etc., as per your instructions, and have never cut as many or as nice stuff as this season. We also used it on the roses, and the crops of Ophelia beat anything around here. Our soil is a very heavy clay and your line of Fertilizer just fills the bill exactly, when used with plenty of manure in the soil.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

reports an excellent demand. This firm is doing its bit in helping along the war cause, having donated flowers and services to a benefit for the Masonic ambulance corps. They made up little French bouquets, corsages, etc., to sell for 5 and 10 cents, and took in nearly $200. For his vacation Mr. Bertrand planned to go on a Shriner outing in the Feather river country.

Julius Eppstein, proprietor of the flower stand in the St. Francis hotel, has had to postpone his trip east on account of a broken foot. He slipped on the stairs and threw all his weight on his left foot in order to keep from falling. Not realizing that he had broken one of the small bones, he walked around the rest of the day and danced that evening. Next day the broken bone was revealed by an X-ray, and Mr. Eppstein is now confined to his room in the hotel with his foot in a cast. He says business holds up well, especially in funeral work.

Francis Schlotzhauer, of the Francis Floral Co., who made a specialty of decorative work in New York city before coming to San Francisco, is beginning to develop that side of his business here and is well satisfied with the results. He has done many wedding decorations this spring and summer and has a number booked for the early fall.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have been making a special exhibit of Frank Pelicano's new decorative dahlia, Dr. Harry L. Tevis, the blooms of which average from nine to eleven inches in diameter and are a soft salmon-rose, shading to an apricot center. Mr. Pelicano is bringing in some nice tuberous begonias. A. J. Rossi is still at Santa Barbara.

Mrs. Charles Gutting, of Los Angeles, Cal., has been visiting in this city.

A. M. Meyer, dahlia grower at 147 Twenty-sixth avenue, San Francisco, has a new seedling which will be exhibited at the coming dahlia shows. He was awarded seventy points on it at the preliminary show at the Palace hotel. It has a splendid color and a fine, strong stem.

Walter Hofinghoff, of MacRorie & McLaren, has been enjoying an extended automobile trip. He killed a big "buck" the day the season opened.

DAVENPORT, R. ISLAND, MOLINE.

The Market.

Trade was quiet last week. Roses are good, although short of stem, with Beauties now available. Lilies are plentiful enough to supply the trade. Gladioli are of fine quality and numerous, but asters have been poor. They sell fairly well, however, owing to the shortage of other flowers. As a whole, flowers are scarce, a condition attributed to the dry weather.

Club Meeting.

The members of the Tri-City Florists' Club left Davenport, Thursday, August 9, in a special car for Muscatine, on the invitation of Emil Kranz. There were thirty-six members in the party, and it proved to be the most enjoyable trip ever taken by the club. Upon arrival at Muscatine the party was met by Mr. Kranz and Mayor R. C. McNutt, who had automobiles waiting, and was taken for a tour of the Island, visiting the waterworks, greenhouses and other points of interest. On the return to the German Club house, Mr. and Mrs. Kranz invited the members of the club to partake of supper. C. O. E. Boehm acted as toastmaster of the evening and introduced the various speakers with suitable remarks. Mayor McNutt was the first speaker and gave an address of welcome. He was presented with a huge bouquet of gladioli from the Butterworth Gardens, of Moline, by Arvid Anderson, president of the society, who was the next speaker. He was followed by Ludwig Stapp, Emil Kranz, William Knees, William Goos and C. J. Reardon.

A vote of thanks was given Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kranz for the splendid supper and the good time. After the dinner, music and dancing were indulged in, and were followed by a few selections by a society of twenty singers and a whistling solo by one of its members.

A short business meeting was held and the party left for home at 10 o'clock, sorry to leave so soon.

Various Notes.

James Hanssen, of Staack's force, was married recently to Miss Lillian Grundstrom, of Moline. Mr. Hanssen was one of the first to be drafted from the Staack force.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Staack have returned from a visit to La Verne, Minn.

Mrs. G. Forber, of Forber & Bird, reports business as good for this time of year. M. Forber, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Forber, is in the army.

B. Vorlander, of the Bettendorf Conservatories, is one of those drafted.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. C. Rohlf are on a visit to St. Paul, Minn., by steamer. They will return this week. W. G.

HAMMOND'S GREENHOUSE WHITE PAINT

Torresdale, Philadelphia, Pa., May 1, 1915.
Hammond's Paint and Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.
Dear Sirs: I have been using your Greenhouse White Paint and Twemlow's Old English Liquid Putty for the last 15 years, and both have given me entire satisfaction. The Glazing Putty, when properly put on, makes a house rain-proof and almost air-tight.
Respectfully yours, (Signed) RODMEN M. EISENHART.

NOTE TO GREENHOUSEMEN: Our goods are original and are so good that our very names have been imitated and copied, and when this is done it is the sincerest commendation, for articles without merit are not imitated for trade purposes.

Wood Bros., Florists, Fishkill, N. Y., Aug. 28, 1911.
We have used Twemlow's Liquid Glazing Putty to advantage for many a year. We have used Twemlow's Liquid Putty on some of the best work. It is good.

The Market.

Business during the first part of August has been exceptionally good. There has been a good supply of stock and the call for it has been fairly active. Roses have improved in quality, and since the weather has been cooler there has been a better demand for them. Asters are abundant and are of better quality. The supply of gladioli has decreased, as has the quantity of lilies, with the exception of rubrums, which are plentiful.

Snapdragons, which have been abundant and of good quality, now are in smaller supply and are not so good. Cut hydrangeas are popular, especially for funeral work. Statice latifolia also is in demand for this class of work, which has been unusually heavy. Smilax is more plentiful, plumosus is in fair supply and fancy flat ferns are especially good.

Various Notes.

Charles M. Balluff, of A. Wiegand's Sons Co., has returned from a month's vacation spent at Fox Lake, Ill.

Albert Kempe has been cutting some excellent smilax.

Henry Elsner has returned from St. Louis, Mo., where he went to take his physical examination for the army, and is visiting his parents for a few days.

The Hensley Flower Shop had several out-of-town weddings last week.

Banquets to the new officers of the army who received their commissions at Fort Benjamin Harrison brought considerable work to the florists. Bertermann Bros. Co., the Claypool Florist and the Circle Flower Store all had decorations last week.

Frank Ball has gone to Cincinnati, where he has taken a position.

Walter and Irwin Bertermann, A. F. J. Baur and John Grande, Sr., will represent Indianapolis at the S. A. F. convention next week. E. E. T.

Wellington, Kan.—Every summer for several years W. M. Shanks has added a new house to his range, but this summer the program was somewhat longer, the improvements including a $4,000 residence, a boiler shed and new boilers.

BERRIED PLANTS.

Jerusalem cherries, extra large cherries, seed selected from our own stock, $3.00 per 100. Cash with order, please.
J. H. Fiesser, North Bergen, N. J.

NEW SOLANUM EUREKA.
The greatest novelty in berried plants for Christmas. This solanum, unlike the old variety, bears its berries on the top of the plant, which gives it the appearance of a solid mass of large red cherries.
The habit of the plant is dwarf and bushy; the fruit is perfectly round, the color a brilliant red and larger than an ordinary cherry.
A 4-inch plant will carry from 150 to 200 berries.

3-in. plants, ready now	$12.00 per 100
4-in. plants, ready Sept.	20.00 per 100

BEAUTIES, RUSSELLS, HOOSIER BEAUTIES, RHEA REID, OPHELIA, SUNBURST AND DOUBLE WHITE KILLARNEY

ASTERS, good clean stock, medium sized flowers, per 100 .....$1.00 to $1.50
ASTERS, " " " fancy, per 100..... 2.00 to 3.00

The quality is exceptionally good this season and the advantages of buying direct from a large grower where the flowers are cut, graded and kept chilled until the customer receives them, together with prices no higher than others charge, make our stock a very attractive proposition for the summer demand. Ferns, fresh picked, received daily, $1.50 per 1000. All seasonable flowers not grown by us will be procured for our customers. A trial order solicited.

Early Heather Bell, rich mauve, changing to lavender, ¼ oz., 40c; ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1 25; ¼ lb., $4.00; lb., $12.00.

YARRAWA

The most popular winter-flowering Sweet Pea. Color is beautiful rose-pink with a slight salmon tint. We offer a selected strain of this variety. ½ oz., 40c; oz., 75c; ¼ lb., $2.25; lb., $8.00.

Six Splendid Australian Varieties

CONCORD Spencer types

The Concord Varieties of Winter-flowering Spencer Sweet Peas are perhaps the most advanced and finest of all. The colors are distinct, clear and true. They flower earlier than any other type, and the blossoms are of large Spencer form, with long stems. Unfortunately they are shy seeders and, therefore, the seed is scarce and expensive We are obliged to offer in packets only this year.

Prices, any of the following:

Pkt. (50 seeds), 40c; 5 pkts., $1.75.

Concord Pink, beautiful delicate pink.
Concord Crimson, fine ruby red.
Concord Lavender, light lavender blue.
Concord White, large, pure white.
Concord Salmon, soft salmon pink.
Concord Blue, dark purple blue.

We have on hand fresh seed of Giant Flowered Cyclamen in all popular colors, also Primula, Cineraria, Calceolaria; Perennial Flower Seeds for summer sowing and Annuals for winter flowering under glass.

Stumpp & Walter Co 30-32 Barclay Street, NEW YORK

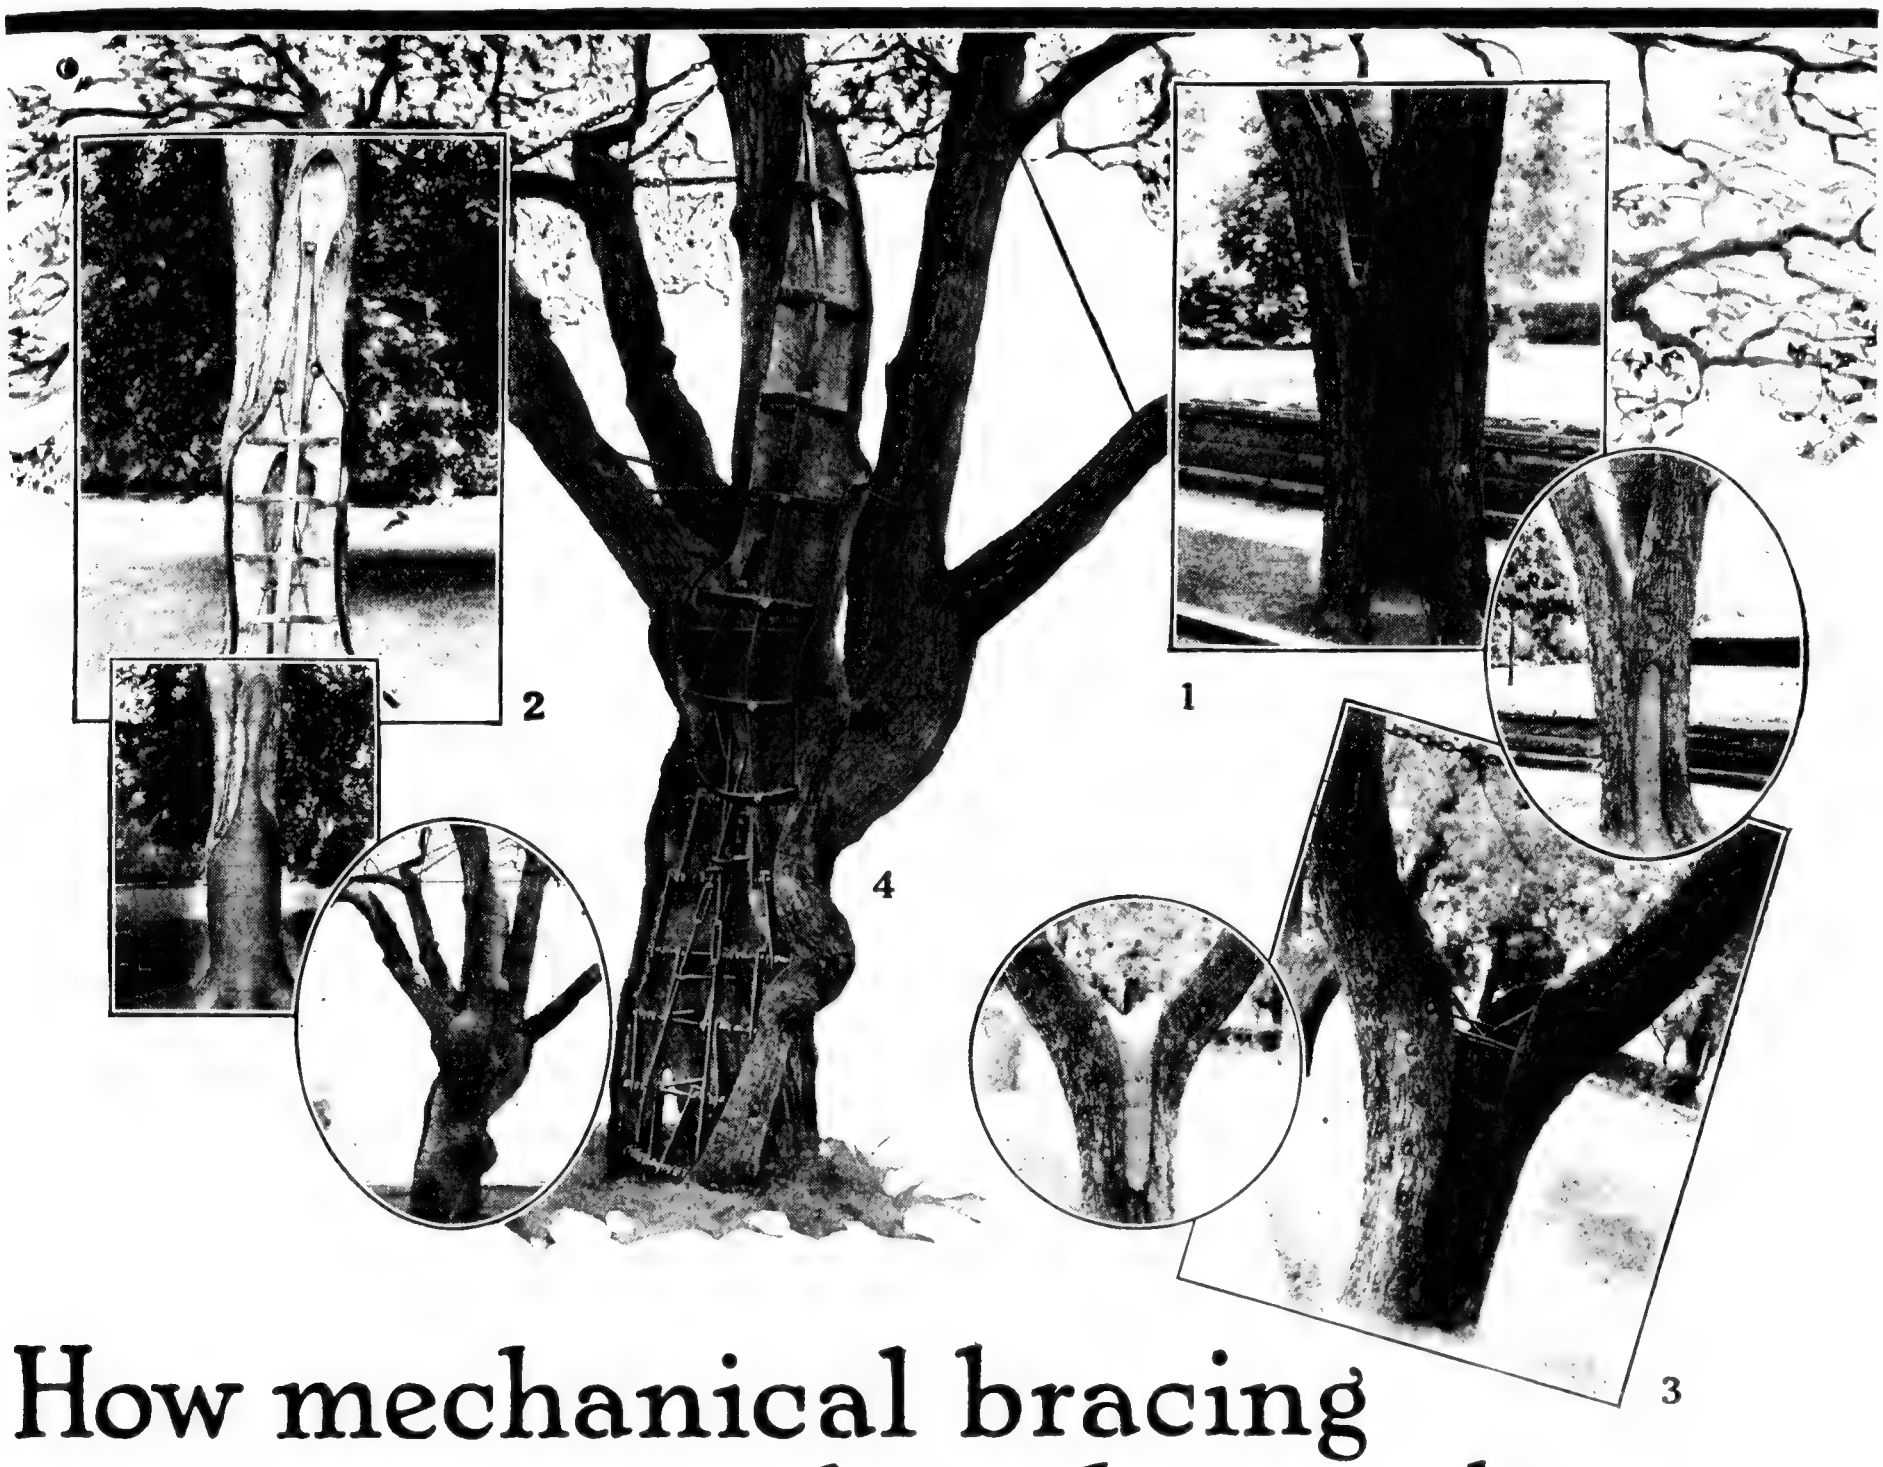
SIM'S HYBRID YELLOW POLYANTHUS

This is one of my houses, 20x300 feet, of National Flower Show Gold Medal Polyanthus. These have been in bloom constantly since November.

I had two houses of Giant Yellow Polyanthus in full crop at Easter. A Review correspondent saw them March 31st and wrote:



> "They include some beautiful varieties, which are being carefully marked and saved for propagation. One bed 300 feet long, of a pale yellow polyanthus, true to type in every plant, was particularly fine. I measured individual flowers two inches in diameter and many of the stalks stood eighteen inches high. Two houses, each 300 feet long, are devoted to this crop, and a glorious sight they are."

But the best of it is they had a glorious sale. You can do as well next season if you order your stock now.

WILLIAM SIM, :: CLIFTONDALE, MASS.

How mechanical bracing restores strength to decayed trees

THE internal woody tissue of the tree has the same function as the bones in the human body—structural support.

When this has been destroyed by decay, Nature is helpless to restore it and the tree, if neglected, will soon succumb to the force of the winds, and no treatment can permanently save it unless that treatment supplies scientifically the strength that has been lost.

Merely to fill the cavity with cement will not answer. The violent swaying of trees by the winds makes correct mechanical bracing of decay-weakened cavities absolutely imperative.

Correct mechanical bracing involves something more than just fixing bars and bolts in the cavity.

Every tree is different, and therefore the bracing of each tree must differ from the bracing used in all other trees, at least to some extent.

The tree in photograph No. 1, for example, required a combination of bolts and lock-nuts, reinforcing rods and cross-bolts with lock-nuts above the crotch.

The tree in photograph No. 2 needed a backbone and rib arrangement of iron straps, plus torsion rods and anchors.

The tree in photograph No. 3 required a combination of bolts and criss-cross bolts with lock-nuts, torsion rods and chains.

The tree in photograph No. 4 was so weak that it required a complicated and complete system of internal bracing, including cross-bolts, criss-cross bolts, iron straps, anchors, torsion rods, iron backbone and ribs, lock-nuts, bolts above the crotch, plus chains and lag-hooks higher up.

Davey Tree Surgeons are the only men in the world who are really trained for this work.

Every Davey Tree Surgeon is trained to the point of finished skill. He is allowed no responsibility until he has conclusively demonstrated his fitness.

Davey Tree Surgeons are the only Tree Surgeons officially endorsed by the United States Government, which engaged them to save the priceless trees on the Capitol grounds and elsewhere.

They are the only Tree Surgeons endorsed by thousands of estate owners—prominent men and women whose recommendations you can accept with complete confidence.

And they are the only Tree Surgeons who are backed by a successful and responsible house, amply able to make good in every instance, and not needing, for the sake of temporary existence, to sacrifice in the slightest degree its high standards.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

S. A. F. HOLDING A WAR CONVENTION

Ours is not a war industry, but the war is the dominating influence in the thirty-third annual meeting of the Society of American Florists, in progress at New York. Many of the customary features of these conventions are missing, but interest is heightened and there is confidence everywhere, confidence and courage.

FOR the second time in four years the Society of American Florists is holding a convention in which the influence of war is stronger than any other factor except the belief that flowers have become a necessity in the lives of a large and steadily increasing part of the American people, a joy in times of happiness, a solace in times of sorrow.

At Boston, in 1914, it was the first shock of the war in Europe. At New York, in 1917, it is the shock of war recently brought home to the United States; but it is plainly apparent that faith in the immediate future of the flower business is stronger today than it was when the society convened at Boston. Then there was doubt; now there is confidence, although it is recognized that many in the trade face serious problems, of labor and the cost of fuel and other supplies—there is no fear that flowers will not sell.

Home Again!

It might be said that in meeting again in the east the S. A. F. has come home after many wanderings. Organized at Cincinnati in 1885, the society, prior to the excursions of 1915 and 1916, had met only once west of the Mississippi, ten times between St. Louis and Cleveland and nineteen times in the east.

In 1913 the convention was on new ground, at Minneapolis; in 1914, at Boston, conditions were abnormal; in 1915 the society went to San Francisco, in 1916 to Texas. So it is five years since a meeting has been held under conditions that were comparable to those at Chicago in 1912, when the high record was established for attendance and for extent and variety in the trades' display.

Consequently there is no basis for comparing this convention with its predecessors, or for estimating the effect of the various factors bearing on its success. The attendance is large. Perhaps it would have been larger had there been an elaborate special entertainment program, but this is open to doubt. In recent years the number traveling long distances to attend has not increased, to say the least. New York is a show in itself, and the decision not to have an outing or a general entertainment is thought to have strengthened rather than weakened the convention; it is an innovation approved by all except the New Yorkers. The interest in the meetings and in the trades' display unquestionably is improved by reducing the distractions to the minimum. Adopted as a war measure, the absence of formal entertainment this year is almost sure to become a precedent to be followed at future conventions.

The society never had a better place to meet. The Grand Central Palace is famous in the trade as having housed a National Flower Show and the extremely successful spring shows of the New York Florists' Club.

Hall and Garden.

It affords splendid facilities for the trades' display, which is large and representative, although not so large or varied as in years preceding 1915. But a show of any size could be accommodated in this ornate structure by the simple expedient of opening another floor. The biggest of our trade affairs has not yet gone above the second floor of the Palace. There are meeting rooms, large and small, a restaurant and every imaginable facility in the building, which is almost in the heart of New York.

There is just one thing the Palace does not afford outdoor planting space for the Convention Garden, which was established in the Botanical Garden in Bronx park, a half hour away by the subway, a few steps from the door.

THE CANDIDATES

The following officers have been nominated for 1918:

For President

Chas. H. Totty.....Madison, N. J.
A. L. Miller.....Jamaica, N. Y.

Jules Bourdet.....St. Louis, Mo.

For Secretary

John Young.....New York, N. Y.

For Treasurer

Jacob J. Hess.....Omaha, Neb.

Meeting Place for 1918
ST. LOUIS, MO.,
April 6 to 15
Meeting Place for 1919
Detroit, Mich.,
August 19 to 22

A. L. Miller. C. H. Totty.

(Opponents for Presidency of Society of American Florists.)

Bronx park is itself an attraction to trade visitors, and plantings there must be splendid advertising to reach the public, but for an impression on those who attend the convention it has not since been possible to duplicate the location and success which attended Theodore Wirth's work at Minneapolis. Next year, at St. Louis, with the convention in April, there can be no garden, except the indoor ones at the National Flower Show, so two years will be given for the development of the next outdoor garden, which probably will determine the future of that undertaking.

The Talk of the Trade.

The talk in the Palace and wherever florists gather is, first of all, of the success of the convention—it seems to have exceeded expectations. It has become common knowledge that there was discussion as to the advisability of canceling the convention itself for this year, as well as cutting out the entertainment program, and that the deciding factor probably was the lease of the Palace. With this fact in mind, the consensus is that the convention is better than was hoped, in attendance, in trades' display and in every other feature, for certainly no one who foresaw this week's accomplishments would have suggested abandoning the meeting. It might have been considerably larger had the United States stayed out of the war, but the convention impresses everyone as better than some others that have been called thoroughly successful.

It seems to be taken for granted that business since Easter has not been up to previous expectations; there are exceptions, of course, but in most cases the edge has been off. Apparently this country's entering the war has disturbed the florists' business in the east much more than in the west; in the cities much more than in the towns and country; in the stores patronized by those who spend incomes much more than in those that cater to the people who spend wages. The country florist already has the benefit of high prices for produce, but the city florist has not yet felt the stimulus of the government's expenditure of fabulous sums.

The attitude indicated by the majority is one of waiting, waiting for something to start the business ball rolling for the trade. There is no doubt that retail business will be good, perhaps excellent. The growers, selling at wholesale, are less sanguine; they fear the shortage of labor and the rising cost of conducting the business. Nearly all now are convinced that it is necessary to buy coal when and where it can be had, without waiting longer in the hope of lower prices.

The Convention Program.

The set program for the convention is much shorter than usual. That of the S. A. F. itself covers only three days instead of four, but the American Gladiolus Society has claimed the fourth day, usually given to the outing. There are no evening sessions, only the president's reception, so that plenty of time is given for the trades' display, for the points of trade interest and for absorbing enthusiasm from rubbing elbows with the people of the most wonderful city in America.

The program by days shapes up in this way:

MONDAY, AUGUST 20.

10:00 a. m. Annual meeting Florists' Hail Association, at Newark, N. J.
8:00 p. m. Public meeting of committee on Credits and Collections Bureau.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 21.

9:30 a. m. Meeting F. T. D.
2:00 p. m. S. A. F. opening session.
8:00 p. m. President's reception.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 22.

9:00 a. m. Meeting directors American Carnation Society.
10:00 a. m. Annual meeting Ladies' S. A. F.
10:30 a. m. Session S. A. F.
2:00 p. m. Session S. A. F.
4:30 p. m. Meeting American Carnation Society.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 23.

10:00 a. m. Session S. A. F. and election of officers.
11:00 a. m. Meeting American Rose Society.
2:00 p. m. Final session S. A. F.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 24.

2:00 p. m. Annual meeting American Gladiolus Society, Museum building, Bronx park.

The program was barren of essays, set speeches and the things that fail to hold the crowd; it was planned with the idea of getting full, free and unhurried discussion of the problems which confront the society and the trade. In that it succeeded.

Business Is Begun.

It was a hot day when the convention assembled, and a pneumatic riveting machine on a new building adjoining the Grand Central Palace was indefatigable, so that the 150 to 200 members and ladies who were present when the meeting was called to order by President Stumpp of the New York Florists' Club found the routine proceedings session less attractive than otherwise would have been the case. It is a pity that so much dry routine must be dispatched at the opening session, for the attendance then always is larger than at any subsequent time.

There were ten ex-presidents on the platform at the opening session.

President Stumpp spoke a few words of greeting and introduced A. L. Miller, vice-president of the S. A. F., to present the welcome of the local organization. He was followed by a representative of the municipal administration, who presented the keys to the city in time-honored style. But the speaker made a place for himself in the regard of the society when he declared that flowers are not a luxury, but a necessity, meeting a need of the people on the finer side of life. He added that during the last few years the city government has spent a million dollars in fostering among the masses an appreciation of flowers.

Robert Craig, of Philadelphia, responded, saying, among other things, that the trade has been too modest and has not claimed its proper place in the business world; that we now are in a position to assert our standing as one of the large and necessary interests of the country. He predicted continued progress.

President Kerr, on taking the chair, read his annual address, which appears in full in this issue of The Review. It was referred to the special committee.

Because of the heat and noise, the reading of the minutes of the directors' March meeting, the reports of state vice-presidents and the secretary's financial statement were omitted, the documents being ordered printed. The secretary's report and the treasurer's report were read and accepted.

W. F. Gude, of Washington, presented the reports of the Washington representative, the committee on tariff and legislation and the committee on the Smith memorial, which appear elsewhere in this issue.

Appropriation for Nomenclature.

Prof. E. A. White, of Ithaca, presented the report of the committee on nomenclature, telling of the work that has been done to standardize plant names by other horticultural bodies working under the name of American Joint Committee on Horticultural Nomenclature. He asked that an appropriation of $300 be made for the use of this joint committee and that the S. A. F. thus indorse its action. The motion was carried without discussion.

Benjamin Hammond presented the report of the school garden committee.

Charles W. Ward sent word from California that he would have a report for the committee on the development of American products and asked the privilege of having it printed in the proceedings if not received in time to be read at the convention.

President's Appointments.

President Kerr appointed the following committees:

FINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Patrick Welch, Boston.
George Asmus, Chicago.
C. E. Critchell, Cincinnati.
H. P. Knoble, Cleveland.
Joseph Heacock, Wyncote, Pa.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT TO MEMBERS WHO HAVE DIED SINCE LAST YEAR.

J. G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J.
M. Barker, Chicago.
J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati.

Detroit in 1919.

It was already determined that next year's convention is to be held at St. Louis, in April, during the National Flower Show, but the 1919 meeting place had to be selected, the by-laws now requiring that the selection be made two years in advance. As no invitations were received, George Asmus moved that the society invite itself to Detroit two years hence and entertain itself there. It was carried unanimously.

As the meeting was about to adjourn, J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., pointed to the flags above the platform and suggested that the society sing "America," after which W. F. Gude moved that the organization go on record in a telegram as follows:

To His Excellency Woodrow Wilson,
President of the United States,
Washington, D. C.:

The Society of American Florists, in thirty-third annual convention assembled at New York, transmits to you its resolution by unanimous vote expressing its confidence in you as the nation's head in this hour of deciding conflict for freedom, democracy and rule of the people, by the people, for the people, pledging you the loyal support of its entire membership to this end.

The telegram was signed for the society by R. C. Kerr, president, and John Young, secretary.

Society Safe for Democracy.

Once more the attempt "to take the secretary's office out of trade politics" has failed. It no doubt is true that the present form of society government, with most of the responsibility put upon the board of directors, in theory calls for making the secretary an appointed officer, named by and responsible to the board, but the idea does not appeal to a majority of the members. Several times amendments to the constitution to effect this change have been brought up and voted down. It occurred again this week at New York.

The program called for the discussion of the amendment at the opening session, with a vote by ballot during the evening. George Asmus advocated the change, but all the others opposed it, among them W. A. Manda, Max Schling, J. T. D. Fulmer and Patrick O'Mara. When the ballots were counted the vote stood forty-seven for making the secretary an appointed clerk and ninety-four for continuing him as an officer elected by the members.

President's Reception.

One of the novel features of this convention was the holding of the annual president's reception in the same room in which the trade's display is staged. One end of this great building was swept clear for the purpose, and the juxtaposition added much to the interest of the affair.

President Stumpp, of the local club, President Kerr, Vice-president Miller, Treasurer Hess and several ladies were in the line and greeted each visitor, after which refreshments were served, and there were music and dancing. It was purely informal.

Nomination of Officers.

Seldom, if ever, has the S. A. F. held a more interesting session than the one on the morning of August 22. The weather was cooler, the meeting place had been changed to the other side of the Grand Central Palace to avoid the outside noise that had given trouble at the earlier session, and the attendance was undoubtedly the largest that ever has been known at a second day's meeting. Oratory was in order, and in nominating officers eulogy of candidates was mixed with just enough plain talk to indicate that the election contest will be one of the closest in the history of the society and will keep the interest alive to the end.

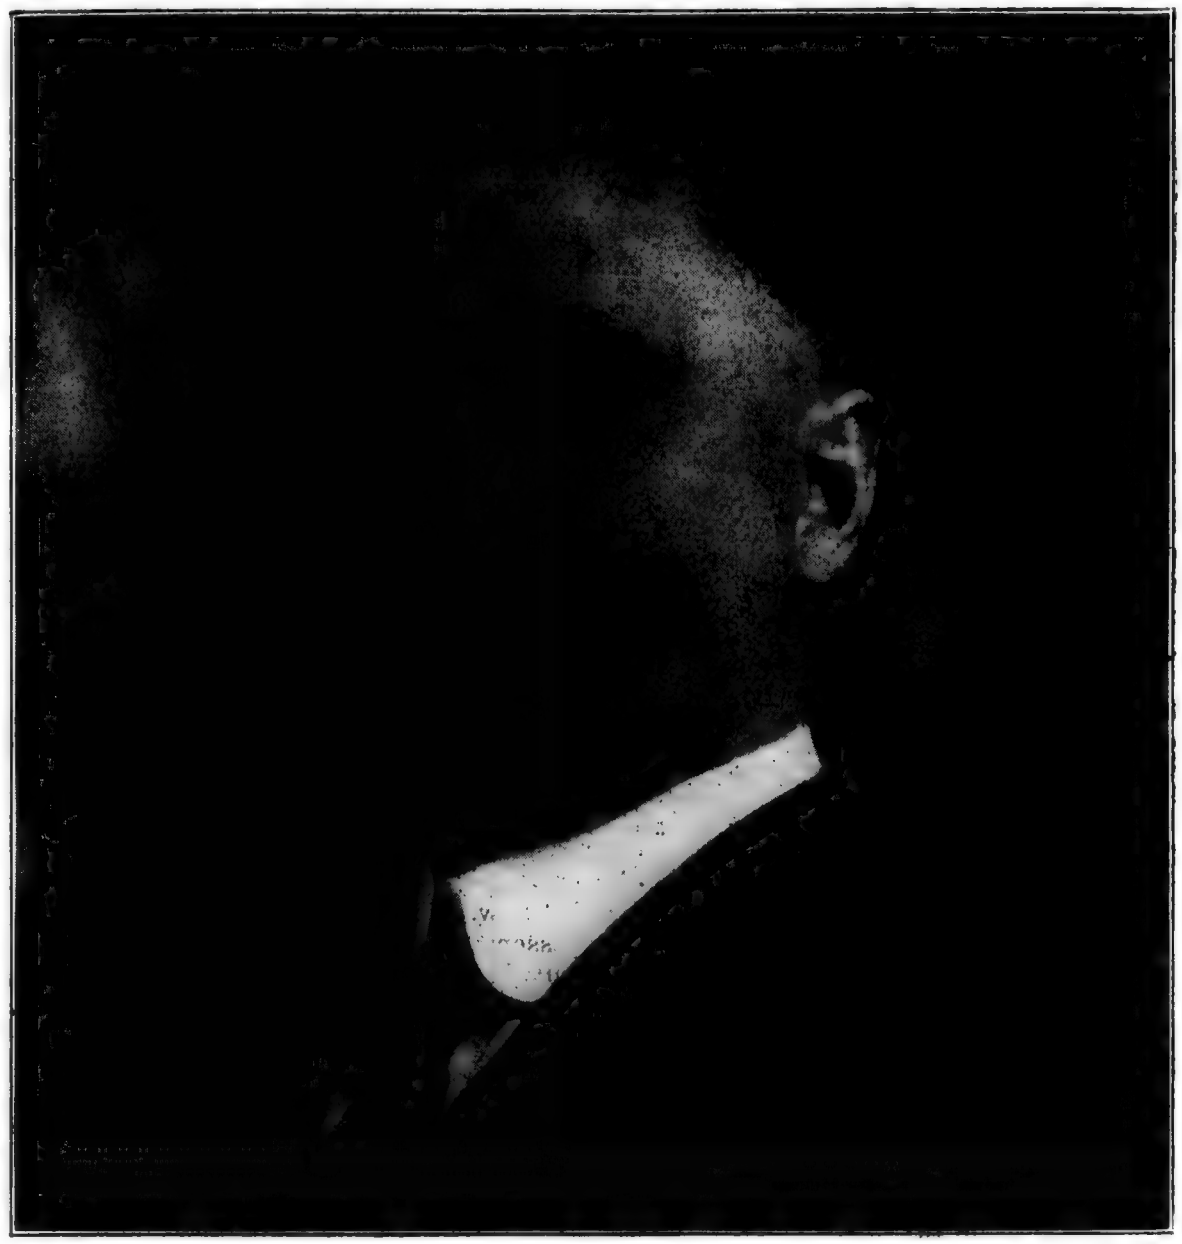
For president, Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., was nominated by W. F. Gude, seconded by F. R. Pierson, Robert Craig, E. G. Hill, Patrick Welch and Otto Lang. A. L. Miller, of Jamaica, N. Y., was nominated by James McHutchison, W. R. Pierson and Anton Schultheis.

For vice-president, Jules Bourdet, of St. Louis, was nominated by Frank Gorly, on behalf of the St. Louis Florists' Club.

For secretary, John Young, of New York, was nominated amid much applause.

For treasurer, J. J. Hess, of Omaha, was nominated and seconded by J. T. D. Fulmer.

For directors, Joseph Manda, of South Orange, N. J., was nominated by George Asmus, and C. E. Critchell, of Cincinnati, was nominated by Patrick Welch, two to be elected.



Wind Storm Insurance.

The special committee consisting of A. Rasmussen, E. G. Hill and J. F. Ammann, appointed to investigate the subject of wind storm insurance, presented the following report:

Inasmuch as the State Florists' Association of Indiana is working to form a mutual company among the florists and greenhousemen of the United States for protection against damage from wind and hail, to be known as the Florists' Mutual Casualty Association, Inc., and in view of the fact that this committee has not sufficient data on the progress or plan of this proposed movement at this time to recommend an indorsement of it by the S. A. F., your committee would recommend that a committee be appointed to investigate the Indiana project and to report to the board of directors at their next regular meeting, said committee to be made up of men not officially connected with the Florists' Hail Association, or with the movement started in Indiana.

In order to give all sections of the country representation, we suggest that committeemen be appointed accordingly, and their traveling expenses be paid by the S. A. F. We further recommend that this committee, in conjunction with the board of directors, be given authority to indorse the Florists' Mutual Casualty Association, should it deem it worthy of the support of the S. A. F.

Mr. Rasmussen then reported individually on the progress of the movement in Indiana, most of the details of which are familiar to readers of The Review, after which the report of the committee was unanimously adopted.

Jules Bourdet.
(Vice-president-elect Society of American Florists.)

Publicity and Prosperity.

The afternoon session of August 22 was devoted to the discussion of publicity and prosperity. The subject of publicity was introduced by W. F. Therkildson, chairman of the standing committee of that subject, and the related topic of the state of business and the prospect for continued prosperity was brought up by Robert Craig, to whom had been assigned the duty of giving a view of the future. Practically everyone who spoke was highly optimistic as to the business outlook for the approaching season.

$50,000 for Publicity.

W. F. Therkildson presented a complete plan for a campaign of national publicity for flowers, with details worked out to show a cost of $50,000. It looked so good that the committee was authorized to raise the funds and put the plan into operation. Joseph Heacock headed the subscription list with $500, and in a few minutes and with great enthusiasm about $6,000 of the money was raised, to which the S. A. F. will subscribe $5,000 from its treasury. It was the general opinion that it was the most important step the organization ever took.

THE HAIL ASSOCIATION.

The Florists' Hail Association held a highly important meeting at Newark, N. J., August 20. By putting it the day before the S. A. F. convention it was hoped to secure a fairly large attendance, but only about a dozen of the 1,621 members were present. All the officers and four directors were there.

The chief business was in connection with renewing the charter of the organization under the laws of New Jersey. All the formalities have been complied with, so that the legal life of the organization, formed in 1887, is extended another thirty years. New by-laws, drafted by J. A. Valentine, were adopted with minor amendment, so that the details of administration are clearly defined.

The following officers were unanimously reëlected: President, E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; vice-president, J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; treasurer, Joseph Heacock, Wyncote, Pa.; secretary, J. G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J. The directors are: For three years, J. A. Valentine, Denver; Samuel Murray, Kansas City, Mo.; Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J.; J. C. Vaughan, Chicago. For two years, E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill. For one year, F. C. W. Brown, Cleveland.

The annual reports showed that the increase in the rate of assessment last year obviated the necessity for an extra assessment to meet the heavy losses of the year and the same rate was levied for the thirtieth assessment.

The books showed:

Receipts for year	$46,051.34
Expenses	1,805.18
Losses	37,517.62
Invested funds	11,000.00
Cash on hand	9,932.01

The association now has 1,621 members and insures 43,000,125 square feet of glass against breakage by hail. Since its organization 2,535 losses have been adjusted for $406,000. During the last year 151,427 square feet of single thick glass were broken, for which $7,571.34 was paid, and 427,804 square feet of double-strength glass, for which $29,946.28 was paid.

There was discussion at the meeting, as there had been at a previous meeting of the board of directors, of broadening the association's activities by writing wind storm insurance, but it was again pointed out that the law of the state of New Jersey under which the association is chartered allows only insurance against damage to glass by hail and does not permit the assumption of cyclone risks.

The new by-laws provide for holding the annual meeting in the autumn, instead of during the S. A. F. convention as in the past thirty years.

FLORISTS' TELEGRAPH DELIVERY

With that admirable presiding officer, Wm. F. Gude, in the chair, the F. T. D. held a three hours' session at New York August 21. President Gude began by saying that the annual meeting will take place at Detroit in October and that this one was only a taste of what is to come. Neither Treasurer Rock nor Secretary Pochelon was present, but each sent a letter urging a large attendance at Detroit.

After each person present had risen and announced his name and business, President Stumpp, of the New York Florists' Club, made an address of welcome. He urged members to make greater efforts to secure orders from the public to send out, stating that the incoming orders then would increase as a natural result.

Vice-president Asmus read a number of communications, one from Mrs. R. E. Darbee, of San Francisco, causing considerable discussion. W. R. Pierson, a non-member, brought up the subject of losses in express shipments by delay and frost. There was general discussion and the consensus was that the trade is not getting what it pays for in the matter of express service. Mr. Pierson said he intends to defend his own, which are the trade's, interests, before the Interstate Commerce Commission if necessary, and he received assurance that the F. T. D. also will combat any attempt to obtain rulings relieving the carriers from liability for delay or neglect.

The program for the Detroit convention was discussed, a large number of suggestions being made, out of which a program committee will seek to select the most available material.

In the talk it was apparent that most of those present endorsed President Gude's statement that business is good, not heavy, perhaps, but at least as good as in previous summers, and that the retailers' chief trouble is in getting and keeping enough capable assistants. The speakers, one after another, referred to the necessity of pushing for orders to send out rather than seeking only those coming in.

There were fifty present, members and others interested.

LADIES' S. A. F.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' S. A. F. was held at 10 a. m. August 22. President Perle B. Fulmer presided and delivered the president's annual address, which was as follows:

"It affords me much pleasure to stand before you today as your presiding officer. Ten years ago in Philadelphia we held our first annual meeting, a small affair compared in numbers with that of today, but lacking in no other respect. To me, because I had gone to conventions for some years when we had no society, that first meeting was indeed a pleasure. I had seen the members of the S. A. F. greet each other year after year and, although the ladies were not forgotten at the conventions, the feeling of cordiality among them was lacking because there was no common interest.

"Now for ten years that has all been changed. We meet as members of a society, each year we look forward to meeting the same ones and we, too, have a common interest—the desire to see our society prosper.

"We are met this year for a large purpose—the adoption of a new constitution and by-laws. When we were organized, the constitution then adopted was entirely adequate, but with added years have come added needs, and it remains for the session of 1917 to see that those needs are provided for.

"In these trying times we, following largely the lead of one of the largest florists' clubs in the country, have provided for ourselves no form of entertainment as has been our custom in former years. The suggestion has been made that we use the money for philanthropic purposes instead—give it to the Red Cross, or to any one of the many needs of our soldiers now mobilizing for their journey across the sea. Personally that side appeals to me, but in that as in all other matters, it is for the majority to decide.

"Since our work is all before us, it is deeds, not words, that we need, and with these few words of preface from your president, we will proceed to the routine of business for the morning."

At the executive committee meeting, held August 22 at the headquarters of Mrs. Charles H. Maynard, secretary, there were present President Fulmer, Secretary Maynard and Mrs. J. T. D. Fulmer, Mrs. Julius Roehrs and Mrs. Albert Herr. After the committee disposed of its business, the members were the guests of Mrs. Frank H. Traendly for an automobile trip about the city, Mr. Traendly acting as chauffeur. Following the ride, the party was entertained at dinner by Mrs. Traendly.

South Bethlehem, Pa.—Foulsham the Florist is the name at the windows of a well equipped new retail store just being opened at 419 West Wyandotte street. The proprietor is George Foulsham, a member of the S. A. F.

THE CONVENTION GARDEN

THE convention garden this year is a disappointment in size, but what it lacks in area is made up by the quality of the trade exhibits. The garden is located at Bronx park. Although 50,000 square feet of space were set apart for the use of the exhibitors, only 10,000 feet have been utilized.

The apathy of the growers near New York was a mystery to Secretary Young, who, in his annual report, said that he had made strenuous efforts to arouse interest in the garden. However, he said, interest lagged to a surprising extent in spite of the great advertising opportunity presented, and the fact that plantings could be continued without cost for several seasons.

Prof. N. L. Britton and George V. Nash, of the New York Botanical Garden, who have charge of the convention garden, are optimistic as to an S. A. F. permanent garden in New York. The ground allotted to this year's garden is available, they say, and its location is ideal for the purpose. There is a background of old forest trees. A stream through it and the uneven topography of the grounds make it an attractive spot.

Fifteen exhibitors have planted in the garden and all of the displays have come along so as to be in excellent condition. Bronx park can be reached by the subway, the Third avenue elevated and the surface lines.

As will be seen by the illustrations, cannas are the predominating plants at the garden. The photographs were taken from opposite sides of the garden, and show the layout of the beds.

Bobbink & Atkins.

The exhibit of Bobbink & Atkins, of Rutherford, N. J., is a single, large bed devoted to hybrid giant-flowering Marshmallow hibiscus.

A. T. Boddington, Inc.

Two beds of Canna Firebrand in perfect bloom form the exhibit of A. T. Boddington, Inc., of New York city.

Cannas and Gladioli, with the A. N. Pierson, Inc., Roses at the Back, Convention Garden, New York.

John Lewis Childs.

John Lewis Childs, of Flowerfield, N. Y., has a large exhibit of gladioli. There are thirty-three varieties of Childsii, mixed, and America. For some of the exhibit, the convention came too late for it to be at its best.

The Conard & Jones Co.

The Conard & Jones Co., of West Grove, Pa., has a bed of cannas at the entrance to the garden. The feature of the display is the new canna named New York, which forms the center of the bed. It was produced by Antoine Wintzer and has a deep red flower with bronze foliage. Snow Queen also is prominent.

Arthur Cowee.

Arthur Cowee, of Berlin, N. Y., confines his large gladiolus exhibit to three varieties, Peace, Peachblow and Papilio Rose. The exhibit was timed so it is in full bloom.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., of Philadelphia, Pa., has a fine exhibit of cannas. The varieties are Gem, Orange Bedder, Eureka, Favorite, Lahneck and Scharfenstein.

Hicks & Son.

Hicks & Son, nurserymen of Hicksville, N. Y., have 500 square feet near the entrance planted with an assortment of evergreens artistically grouped. The planting was completed only a few days before the convention and the stock was in excellent condition.

W. A. Manda, Inc.

A miscellaneous collection of evergreens, dahlias and flowering and foliage plants is the exhibit of W. A. Manda, Inc., of South Orange, N. J. The display of plants includes roses, hibiscus and golden privet.

Thomas Meehan & Sons.

A large bed of hibiscus in three varieties, Mammoth, Monstrosa and Triumph, the latter in the center, is the display of Thomas Meehan & Sons, of Philadelphia, Pa.

A. L. Miller.

A. L. Miller, of Jamaica, N. Y., has 300 square feet of space, laid out in three oval beds. One is planted to heliotropes, one to coleus and the other to miscellaneous plants, including some fine specimen begonias.

A. N. Pierson, Inc.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., has three beds of roses, which include Red Radiance, Crimson Champion and Panama, and two beds of phloxes, bordered with funkias and stokesias.

Raymond W. Swett.

A large bed devoted solely to gladioli is the exhibit of Raymond W. Swett, of Saxonville, Mass.

B. Hammond Tracy.

B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., timed his four beds of gladioli so that they came into perfect bloom. Halley and Independence were the specialties shown.

The William Tricker Estate.

The only aquatic exhibit at the garden this year was made by William Tricker, of Arlington, N. J. He has a number of varieties of water lilies in the stream that flows through the garden.

Vaughan's Seed Store.

A large oval bed in the center of the garden, devoted to gladioli and Canna Yellow King Humbert, is the exhibit of Vaughan's Seed Store.

THE SMITH MEMORIAL.

The S. A. F. committee on memorial to the late William R. Smith at the New York convention reported progress and asked for further time on account of the pending legislation and erection of a suitable monument. The committee has on deposit with the Munsey Trust Co., to the credit of the William R. Smith Memorial Fund, William F. Gude, chairman, $1,838.02.

PLANT REGISTRATIONS.

The following is a list of the new plants registered with the Society of American Florists, taken from the report of Secretary Young as presented at the New York convention:

Oct. 14, 1916. Rose Mrs. Sarah Yeats, by J. E. Yeats, Champaign, Ill.

Dec. 2, 1916. Dahlia Mrs. John Gribbel, by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Dec. 2, 1916. Dahlia Joan Kerr, by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Dec. 2, 1916. Dahlia John D. Rockefeller, by W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Feb. 10, 1917. Canna Evening Star, by Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

Feb. 10, 1917. Canna Snow Queen, by Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

Feb. 10, 1917. Canna Druid Hill, by Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

Feb. 10, 1917. Canna Morning Glow, by Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.

Apr. 21, 1917. Laelio-cattleya Adela Griswold, by William E. S. Griswold, Wyndhurst, Lenox, Mass.; Alfred J. Loveless, gardener.

THE TRADES' DISPLAY AT NEW YORK

THE conditions have been so unusual this year that Secretary Young, as manager of the trades' display, has had a more difficult task than ever before. Exhibitors have been slow to make up their minds and many of them have increased or decreased their spaces during the last days before staging. Dutch bulbs not being available as had been hoped was one of the principal reasons for this and the seedsmen's displays are smaller than heretofore at eastern conventions, being limited to a few French bulbs, Harrisii lilies and cold storage giganteums. The supply houses have taken full advantage of the opportunity. It really is the first good chance they have had in four years, as their imports did not arrive for the Boston convention in 1914 and the 1915 and 1916 meetings were too far away from the big supply centers to permit a full showing. Now, however, the supply houses have developed American manufacture to a point never attained with foreign goods and their displays are the strong feature of the convention exhibition. The plantsmen, too, make splendid displays, some of them large in size and all of them of splendid quality. Considering that this is commercial stock, it is open to question if such uniformly good stuff has been seen at any previous convention. The greenhouse builders also have come to the front with large and comprehensive exhibits.

There are an even half-hundred trade exhibitors. The total space used is 4,000 square feet. Comparisons sometimes are said to be odious, but the man who could not see it for himself perhaps will get a clearer idea if he is told that this is a little less than the space sold for the trades' display at the Boston convention and a little more than half what was sold in the Chicago Coliseum for the record convention of 1912.

On the whole it is a large, comprehensive and well staged exhibition. Those who have displays are:

American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago.

This booth contains enlarged, framed photographs of some of the greenhouses the exhibitor has built in the middle west, notably the recent additions to the Gullett establishment at Lincoln, Ill. There also is a display of parts to show the details of the construction. Special emphasis is put on the eave and on the company's new bar clasp. P. L. McKee, president of the concern, is in charge.

Basket Novelty Co., New York.

This display consists of baskets, vases and bird cages in considerable variety, in charge of Charles Falkenheim.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

There is practically a complete stock of florists' supplies in this space of 600 square feet of floor with two walls, the latter covered with wreaths. The strong leader is the red, white and blue line of vases and plant boxes, which is said to have had perhaps the largest sale of any specialty the house ever has put out. Quite different in character, but also a big seller, is the creton line, a variety of baskets and vases the bodies of which are covered with various colored cretons. Something entirely new is a line of baskets made of cornstalks; these are said to have been a great hit with the florist who heretofore has had the exclusive sale. The exhibit is in charge of S. H. Bayersdorfer, I. Bayersdorfer, S. D. Green, John Welsh and Robert Collum.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.

There are four fine big bays at the corners of this group, which includes Dracæna indivisa, ferns in variety, Ficus elastica and other pot plants for retail stores. Leo Oesternei is in charge.

Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co.

The display included large glass globes, etc., filled with samples of the exhibitor's full line of commercial fertilizers. The souvenir was a record book for the use of growers. There were feeding charts and other literature. H. E. Humiston was in charge.

John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y.

The primulinus hybrids are featured in this display of cut gladiolus blooms, but it also contains many of the Childsii type. There are about thirty-five varieties in the collection, a commercial selection. I. S. Hendrickson is in charge, assisted by Carleton Childs, son of John Lewis Childs, who this year is forming his first business acquaintance with gladioli.

Robt. Craig Co., Philadelphia.

This is a display of plants of more than ordinary character. It contains crotons of 125 varieties, several pieces of each of many of them, including some large plants. But the number and quality of the plants are not more notable than is the fact that nearly all are seedlings raised in the Craig greenhouses. The Norwood fern, another Craig novelty, also is shown in quantity, in from 4-inch to 6-inch pots. Something new to most of the visitors is a variegated pineapple in fruit. Other samples include dracænas, begonias and ficus in variety, French hydrangeas, and many representatives of the nephrolepis family of ferns, in all the largest display of fine pot plants in the hall. The exhibit is in charge of Robert A. Craig, C. Van and L. J. Seiger.

Crowl Fern Co., Millington, Mass.

A display of fancy and dagger ferns, laurel roping, etc. The exhibit is in charge of F. W. Vineca.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee, San Francisco.

This was a display of cut asters and everlastings, the asters in several varieties being in surprisingly fine shape considering their journey across the continent. In charge was C. H. Gooch.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia.

This was a large exhibit of staple plants for retail stores and young stock for growing on. Perhaps the most noteworthy feature was the collection of crotons in many varieties and sizes; it undoubtedly was the best lot of crotons this exhibitor ever has sent to a convention. The display of palms included a complete line of sizes, a notable point in view of the impossibility of importing during the last season. The ferns were Scottii and Teddy, Junior, unless we include Cyrtomium Rochfordianum compactum, Asplenium Nidus-avis and Adiantum gloriosum, which latter is said to be a specially popular Christmas plant with New York retailers. There also were ferns for dishes, small dracænas in many fancy varieties and the usual display of Cocos Weddelliana, glazing points, etc. J. J. Karins and J. J. Goudy were in charge.

Fritz Dressel, Weehawken, N. J.

President Wilson is the name of the new nephrolepis staged by this exhibitor. There were nine fine plants in various sizes. It is a sport of Teddy, Junior, and has received the certificate of the New York Florists' Club and of the International Flower Show. It will be distributed next year. The originator was in charge of the display.

J. A. Evans Co., Richmond, Ind.

This is a display of the Challenge ventilating apparatus, a line of fittings, and the Evans salt sprayer for red spider. J. A. Evans is in charge.

Expanded Wood Co., Evansville, Ind.

The exhibit consists of samples of the so-called expanded wood pot cover and demonstrations of the large number of ways in which it can be used to cover pots, plant boxes, etc. F. J. Moore is in charge.

C. E. Falls Co., Kansas City.

A booth for the display of advertising literature for retail florists. C. E. Falls in charge.

J. H. Fiesser, North Bergen, N. J.

This is a group of exceedingly well grown ferns, an unnamed nephrolepis sport on the order of an attenuated Teddy, Junior. There also are some dracænas in the display. Mr. Fiesser, who is in charge, has not announced his plans for the fern.

General Rubber Co., Cleveland.

The display is of samples of Vitalic brand greenhouse hose, a two years' service grade. George A. Field is in charge.

Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa.

The exhibit included Kentia Belmoreana from 2½-inch pots to 9-inch tubs, Kentia Forsteriana from 6-inch pots to 12-inch tubs, Areca lutescens and Cocos Weddelliana. It was the usual Wyncote quality. James Heacock was in charge.

Some of the Canna Beds in the Convention Garden, Bronx Park, New York.

Heatherhome Co., New York.

The Heatherhome Seed & Nursery Co. is the name of the reorganized Knight & Struck Co. The exhibit consists, as usual, of acacias and ericas, the E. melanthera being especially good. Thomas Knight and George F. Struck in charge.

Hitchings & Co., New York.

This exhibitor has come into the convention much stronger than any other greenhouse builder, being the only one to put up a section of full-sized greenhouse. The house is what is known as the reconstructed construction and the section shown is thirty-six feet wide. It is said that this is similar construction to the iron-frame houses, five of them, each 61x500, just being completed for the Duckham-Pierson Co., at Madison, and a party is being organized to visit this and other Madison places as the guests of Hitchings & Co. after the convention. A large sectional boiler also is a part of the convention exhibit. James McArthur is in charge.

Wm. Hunt & Co., New York.

Desk space for the sale of seeds, bulbs, plants and hose. In charge of Wm. Hunt and E. W. Holt.

R. J. Irwin, New York.

Desk space for meeting those interested in the purchase of plants, bulbs, seeds or insecticides. In charge of Roman J. Irwin and M. J. Cahill.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y.

Pot-grown plants of French and otaksa hydrangeas, deutzias and lilacs. The exhibit is in charge of C. G. Perkins, who says the demand exceeds the supply this year.

The Kervan Co., New York.

This exhibitor has a large space fitted up as a reception room, with desks and chairs. L. W. Kervan or one of his four brothers is on duty there to greet customers or anyone interested in decorative greens.

King Construction Co., N. Tonawanda, N. Y.

This booth, in charge of Fred Cowperthwaite, the company's Philadelphia representative, contains no exhibit, but there are some extremely comfortable chairs for those who want to talk about greenhouses.

C. J. Kraus, New York.

This display consists of a line of garden pottery. Mr. Kraus in charge.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago.

The exhibit consisted of large, framed photographs of the several types of boilers in the Kroeschell line, the greenhouse hot water boiler, the high pressure steam boiler, the water tube steam boiler and the Kroeschell system of artificial refrigeration for florists; also many photographs of establishments in which the Kroeschell products are in use. Fred Lautenschlager is in charge.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.

This is a table of orchid plants, principally cattleyas in variety. J. E. Lager is in charge.

Lion & Co., New York.

This display features fancy and novelty chiffons and includes a general line of ribbons and corsage shields. Milton Alexander is in charge.

Lord & Burnham Co., New York.

This is a booth with comfortable furniture for the reception of those who wish to discuss any phase of greenhouse building with Sales Manager Cobb or his staff of assistants. No attempt has been made to show construction details, as the company's general offices are only three blocks from the convention hall.

Mead-Suydam Co., Newark, N. J.

This is a new sectional concrete bench, much in the same style as the monolithic bench heretofore shown, but with the members of convenient size and shape for easy handling. J. F. Mead is in charge.

H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia.

In this exhibit there is a greater variety of goods than in any other in the hall. There are Paper Whites, Romans and Harrisii, also another new nephrolepis from Randolph & McClements, Vernon, Pa., and some Japanese palms. There is a large line of garden and greenhouse sundries, a display of Geranium Helen Michell, a large collection of cut flowers of hardy perennials and a collection of cut flowers of the standard varieties of gladioli. The booth is in charge of Frank Michell, Isadore Rosnosky and Philip Freud.

Mirror Mfg. Co., New York.

A line of gazing globes, a specialty the florists' trade has taken up to go with aquariums, bird cages and similar decorative materials. Max Oppenheimer is in charge.

John C. Moninger Co., Chicago.

This is an especially neat reception pavilion, with photographs and catalogues showing a few of the greenhouses the exhibitor has built recently, also parts to demonstrate the details of the various styles of construction. Special emphasis is put on security. The booth is in charge of R. E. Kurowski, general manager of the company, and A. Hammarstrom, manager of the New York office.

J. G. Neidinger Co., Philadelphia.

In addition to a general line of baskets, wax, metal and perpetuated wreaths, this exhibitor shows a large line of Christmas novelties of home manufacture; even the Japanese frieze has been dyed here in order to get the desired red. George W. Hampton is in charge, with several assistants.

Nitrate Agencies Co., New York.

This is a new exhibitor at S. A. F. conventions, having only recently entered the field by establishing a special department to handle the business of seedsmen and florists. The display consists of bags of nitrate of soda, ground tankage and ground steamed bone. Harry A. Bunyard, manager of the new department, is in charge.

S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia.

This exhibitor has three tables, one displaying baskets, vases and plant boxes in variety, but featuring an ivory finish; the other two carrying a large line of ribbons, chiffons, corsage ties, pins, etc. The better quality of ribbons only are shown, the belief of the house being that permanent business can be based on nothing else. E. J. Fancourt and Robert Greenlaw are in charge.

J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati.

A table of plants, "just to show them that we are still in the business," as J. A. Peterson put it. There were fairly large plants of Asplenium Nidus-avis and pandanus, but the cyclamens and begonias of course were plants for growing on. The begonias were of the exhibitor's own origination and dissemination, including Cincinnati, Melior and Mrs. J. A. Peterson. Mr. Peterson thinks his fame as a begonia raiser eventually will rest on Melior. He has practically discontinued growing Adiantum Farleyense, long one of his specialties.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.

This display represents only the pot plant department of the business. There are araucarias, kentias, pandanus, Phœnix Roebelenii, nephrolepis in variety, some excellent large adiantums and other stock of similar character. H. C. Neubrand is in charge.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y.

This exhibit is one with which most S. A. F. members are acquainted, as it has been staged all over the country—an almost complete line of nephrolepis varieties. This year there are two new ones, shown for the first time and not yet named. There are a few rose plants, but no bulbs this year. J. R. Fotheringham and Theodore Trevellian are in charge.

A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

This is a large display of new shapes and colors in baskets manufactured in tne exhibitor's own factory, of vase lamps in many sizes and of self-contained electric fountains for window, store and table decoration. Frank McCabe and R. E. Blackshaw are in charge.

In connection with the Randall exhibit is that of the Duro Paper Products Co., an allied concern, in charge of S. Freund. This is a display of cut flower boxes.

Reed & Keller, New York.

This is not the exhibitors' largest convention display, but it certainly excels in quality anything done before. Consisting almost entirely of baskets, the goods are almost wholly of New York manufacture. A novelty is what is called velvet art ware; American Beauty vases with the horn covered with velvet. Creton ware is similarly covered with fabric, the awning basket being an elaboration of the trellis box. A new gates ajar provides for all flowers being in water. Lamp vases and bird cages are among the other items shown in variety. George Maunze and Herman Kurth are in charge.

M. Rice Co., Philadelphia.

This exhibitor has 700 feet of space and has used it to the best of advantage, the display being staged more artistically than at any previous convention. A 5-ton truck brought the material the ninety miles from Philadelphia and on the load were the materials for staging. Steep steps rise against the wall, with a lattice partition every little way, each of the sections thus created being used for one line of baskets. Special attention has been paid to the color scheme. Across the walls a row of tables affords space for other articles. The Gray Leader line of plant boxes and vases and the Riceco corsage boxes with patent felt flower decorations are new and distinct. Old-fashioned paper bouquet holders are shown, tinted in many flower colors. Baskets, aquariums and Christmas novelty wreaths were every one made in America. B. Eschner and Raymond Brunswick are in charge, with five assistants.

Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.

This display consists of palms and a general line of decorative plants, also begonias and young stock for growing on.

B. Rosen, New York.

This exhibit consists entirely of Christmas specialties made of Japanese frieze, a wood fiber dyed red or green, now worked up in many forms, including mats, roping, wreaths, bells, stars, etc. L. A. Rosen and A. H. Rosen, sons of the proprietor, are in charge.

Russin & Hanfling, New York.

These exhibitors have a general line of staple florists' supplies, with enough space so that the stock is not crowded and each article can be examined with as much comfort as though shown in a store. The senior partner, Sam H. Russin, is in charge.

John Scheepers, Inc., New York.

A decorative reception booth, Hawaiian style, fenced and well furnished with comfortable chairs, at one of the points of vantage to see those who enter the hall. The display consists of some large vases of lilies and gladioli of the newer varieties, including some unnamed seedlings. Mr. Scheepers is in charge.

Schloss Bros., New York.

The display includes a large variety of ribbons, chiffons, bouquet holders, shields, corsage ties and novelties in these lines. Emil Schloss is in charge.

Geo. L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I.

This exhibitor reserved space for a display of gladioli, but afterward found the public would not be admitted and did not send his flowers. He does not cater to the trade, but was present and had a rest room in his space.

B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass.

This display was what is known as the Cedar Acres collection of gladioli. The varieties were only the newer ones. Mr. Tracy was in charge.

Wertheimer Bros., New York.

There is said to be an invoice value of $3,000 in this comprehensive display of ribbons, chiffons, gauze and corsage ribbon and the notable feature is that with the exception of one number the entire exhibit is of American manufacture. Since the European supply became uncertain the firm has developed the Werbro Mills, at Paterson, N.J., and is independent. The line has been built up with special reference to florists' needs and to the neglect of the dry goods trade. Every flower color is reproduced. Special emphasis is put on Areoweve and other corsage ribbons, but Werbro gauze is one of the leaders. Sam Seligman is in charge, with four assistants.

Vaughan's Seed Store, New York.

There are some sixty varieties of gladioli in this display, cut blooms from the exhibitor's farms in Illinois and Michigan. The stock traveled well. French, Japanese and Bermuda bulbs also are shown. S. W. Pike is in charge, assisted by Ed. Boylan.

MOTHERS' DAY COMMITTEE.

[This is the report of O. J. Olson, of St. Paul, Minn., chairman of the Mothers' day committee, at the New York convention.]

Mothers' day has now developed into one of the big flower days of the year throughout the greater part of the country. There is a greater and more widespread call for flowers for Mothers' day than for any other day, although the sales average less, and the total sales do not amount to as much as at Easter and Christmas.

We have, however, the biggest opportunity to make this the banner day of the year, if we will but realize it. There is no limit to the amount the public will spend when prompted by the tender sentiment which is attached to the magic name of "Mother."

Many of our retailers have already seen the desirability of interesting the customer in something better and different than the ordinary bunch of carnations and are showing many things to take the place of carnations for Mothers' day. Blooming plants have been a big aid in this, and if we will make the effort along this line it will help solve the problem of supplying the demand for flowers, as well as to hold down the exorbitant price of carnations which the demand causes.

There was not the big percentage of call for white carnations this year that has been experienced in former years. This is the result of the use of the slogan, "Bright flowers for mothers living; white flowers for mother's memory," used by many florists in advertising for Mothers' day.

On account of the lack of a definite program, due to there being no opportunity for the widely scattered members of this committee to meet and formulate one, little has been accomplished. The collection of a fund to be turned over to Miss Anna Jarvis has not had the response from the trade that it should have had. An effort to secure promises of yearly subscriptions has not proved successful so far, but it is hoped that this plan will still prove successful.

Many florists have expressed a desire that this committee endeavor to secure the coöperation of all those interested in furthering the sale of flowers for Mothers' day, and to concentrate our efforts on one general plan. Another expression heard from retailers is the desire to get the growers to supply more suitable stock for Mothers' day, and also to eliminate the so-called pickled stock as far as possible.

I regret that circumstances prevent me from being present at the convention to make a more complete report, and also to discuss matters pertaining to Mothers' day.

Many of our retailers have already seen the desirability of interesting the customer in something better and different than the ordinary bunch of carnations and are showing many things to take the place of carnations for Mothers' day. Blooming plants have been a big aid in this, and if we will make the effort along this line it will help solve the problem of supplying the demand for flowers, as well as to hold down the exorbitant price of carnations which the demand causes.

There was not the big percentage of call for white carnations this year that has been experienced in former years. This is the result of the use of the slogan, "Bright flowers for mothers living; white flowers for mother's memory," used by many florists in advertising for Mothers' day.

On account of the lack of a definite program, due to there being no opportunity for the widely scattered members of this committee to meet and formulate one, little has been accomplished. The collection of a fund to be turned over to Miss Anna Jarvis has not had the response from the trade that it should have had. An effort to secure promises of yearly subscriptions has not proved successful so far, but it is hoped that this plan will still prove successful.

Many florists have expressed a desire that this committee endeavor to secure the coöperation of all those interested in furthering the sale of flowers for Mothers' day, and to concentrate our efforts on one general plan. Another expression heard from retailers is the desire to get the growers to supply more suitable stock for Mothers' day, and also to eliminate the so-called pickled stock as far as possible.

I regret that circumstances prevent me from being present at the convention to make a more complete report, and also to discuss matters pertaining to Mothers' day.

THOSE PRESENT

THE visitors at the New York convention have been slow to register. The S. A. F. button badge admits to everything, so registration to procure tickets is not necessary, as in years when there has been a splendid program of outside affairs. The attendance is large, but many who came from near-by places for a day did not put their names on the books and a complete list of those attending is impossible. Among those from outside New York whose presence was noted the first two days were the following:

A.

Ammann, J. F., Edwardsville, Ill.
Amrhyn, Gustave, New Haven, Conn.
Anderson, S. A., Buffalo, N. Y.
Armitage, F. W., Elizabeth, N. J.
Aschmann, Edward J., Philadelphia.
Aschmann, Howard E., Philadelphia.
Asmus, George, Chicago.

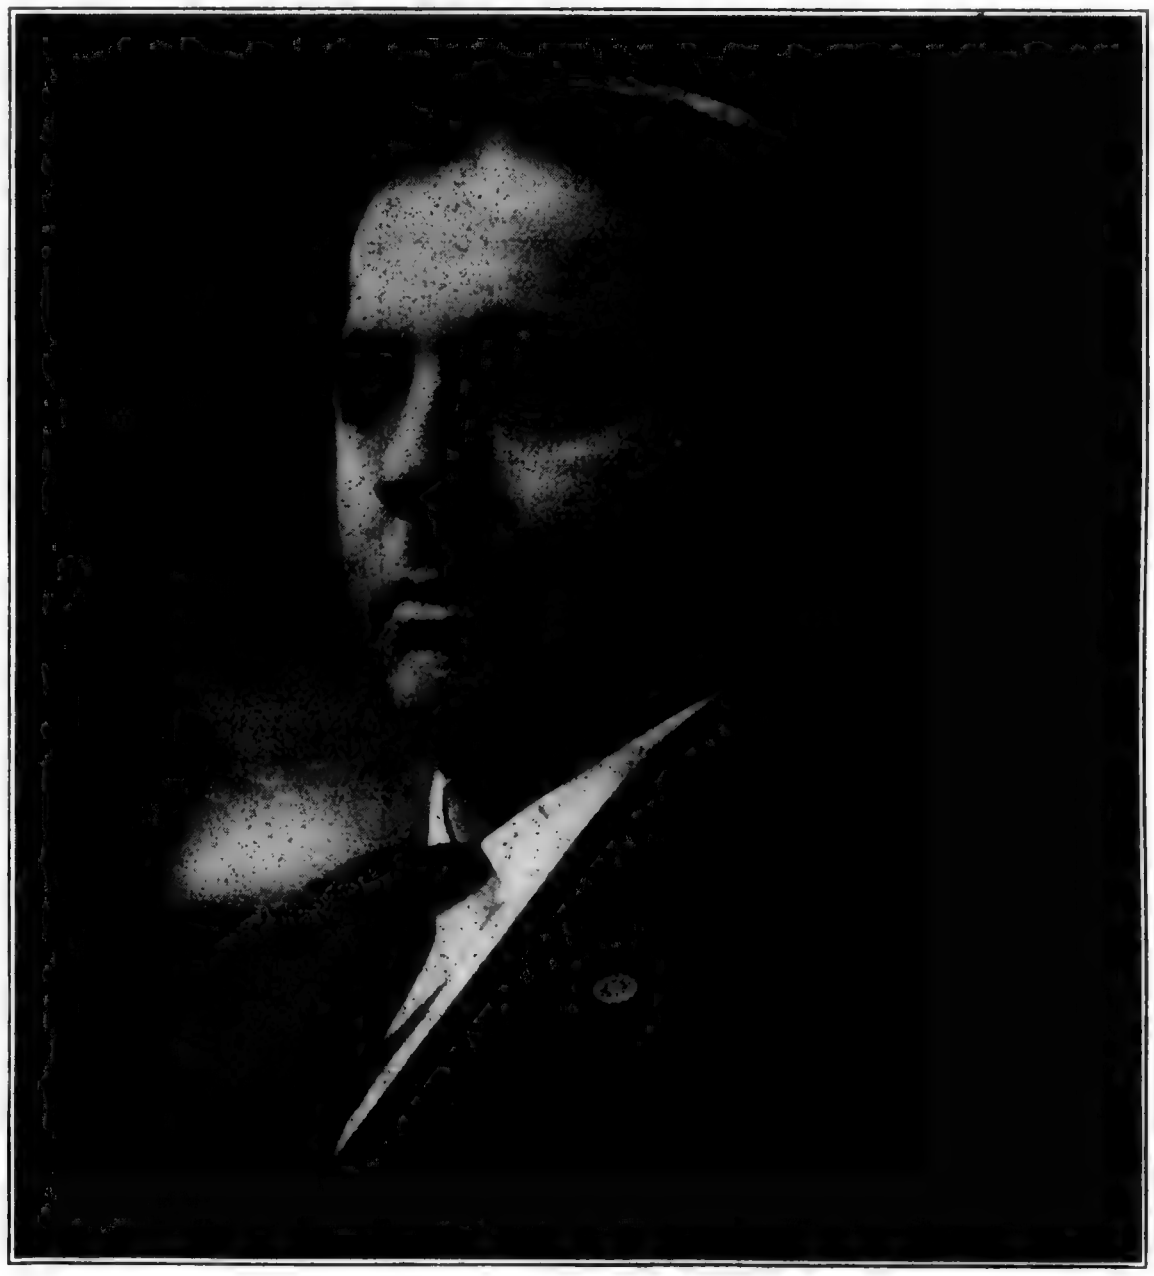
PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

The full text of the address of Robert C. Kerr, president of the Society of American Florists, delivered at the convention in New York, August 21, 1917.

WE are gathered here today, in this, the greatest American city, an assemblage of loyal members of a great organization. We have come from the far west, north and south, to this extreme eastern city, and those who have come in these unsettled times show their loyalty to this organization and their firm belief in these United States.

It is with much happiness that we assemble in this spacious auditorium, with the evidences of the fact that we are all Americans, owing allegiance to but one flag, and that the flag of the American fathers, the Stars and Stripes, the symbol of free government—the Red, the White, the Blue.

Here we renew our pledges to stand by the great and good man, Woodrow Wilson, and wherever he leads we will follow, to uphold the rights of this, our American country, and when this terrible struggle is over we hope it will bring peace and comfort and plenty to every nation for all time.



Citizenship.

In these strenuous times, my brothers, it behooves us, as true American citizens, to conserve our resources in every way possible, to be able to meet any demands that may be made on us during this terrible struggle, and to be able to respond quickly to every call of our country.

Never before were conventions apparently so handicapped as the ones that are called this year, but, after all, it is a great test for us all, for surely it has developed stability and independence. Yet, with many handicaps, we assemble today in what I hope will be the greatest convention of the society—perhaps not the greatest in number present, not the greatest in lavish entertainment, but I hope the most efficient, through our opportunity for real results.

Our conventions in the past have been most efficient, but at this convention the opportunity is provided not only to help ourselves, but to prepare to help and comfort our brothers in the craft, in this world war, over there.

We are given the opportunity to make this convention different, and distinct from all others. We have all appreciated each convention, each type of man that serves, and it is the same spirit of appreciation of the circumstances that makes this a convention different from others. Old methods and manners are changing—in fact, must change—and is it not well that the Society of American Florists should be put to the test, and show to all that our national conventions do not depend on entertainments? And I am proud of the fact that the convention over which I am allowed to preside shows that loyalty to service.

Robert C. Kerr.
(President of the Society of American Florists.)

Time has flown fast during the last and most eventful twelve months, since this great organization honored the south, and especially Texas and Houston, with our convention.

From Boston in the extreme east to San Francisco in the extreme west, to Houston in the extreme south, is a record of which any organization may be proud. And I feel particularly proud of being so closely associated with this organization when we are making such great progress.

As our charter indicates, we are a national organization, and when we journeyed to San Francisco we not only showed that we were national in spirit, but created new interest, thereby adding both numbers to our membership and money to our treasury.

Then you voted the convention to Houston, and it was another instance of increased membership and increased treasury.

Membership.

A trade paper, commenting upon the conventions west and south, said, "The society will return to the east by slow and easy stages." The south is often considered slow, but in this case we have not been so slow, for we are this day delivering the society again to the east, and I trust that you will find its affairs in even a better condition than upon its departure from Boston to San Francisco. And, in return for our loyalty to the society, we trust you will honor both the west and the south, with the convention in our midst, in some near future day.

While the increase in our membership during the last year has been satisfactory, compared with previ-

And I am proud of the fact that the convention over which I am allowed to preside shows that loyalty to service.

Robert C. Kerr.
President of the Society of American Florists.

Time has flown fast during the last and most eventful twelve months, since this great organization honored the south, and especially Texas and Houston, with our convention.

From Boston in the extreme east to San Francisco in the extreme west, to Houston in the extreme south, is a record of which any organization may be proud. And I feel particularly proud of being so closely associated with this organization when we are making such great progress.

As our charter indicates, we are a national organization, and when we journeyed to San Francisco we not only showed that we were national in spirit, but created new interest, thereby adding both numbers to our membership and money to our treasury.

Then you voted the convention to Houston, and it was another instance of increased membership and increased treasury.

Membership.

A trade paper, commenting upon the conventions west and south, said, "The society will return to the east by slow and easy stages." The south is often considered slow, but in this case we have not been so slow, for we are this day delivering the society again to the east, and I trust that you will find its affairs in even a better condition than upon its departure from Boston to San Francisco. And, in return for our loyalty to the society, we trust you will honor both the west and the south, with the convention in our midst, in some near future day.

While the increase in our membership during the last year has been satisfactory, compared with previ ous years' records, it is astonishing that there are numbers of our profession who are not members of this organization. And there is no excuse for this state of affairs. There are many lines of activities in our organization that have done much to elevate our profession, and all members of our craft who are deriving a direct benefit from this work, and are not contributing to its support, are disloyal to the cause, or I might add, if you please, are "slackers."

It is my intention not to unnecessarily criticise, but I must say that we have a weak point in our organization. Instead of having 2,000 members, we should have a national organization in numbers, say 10,000, from every corner of the whole United States. The great work that is being done by this organization should interest every man in our profession, and the fact that any are not members shows our weak point. The majority of our state vice-presidents are active, and doing a commendable work, but some are inactive. I have sent out many letters during the last year, trying to stir up interest, and a few state vice-presidents do not even reply; others reply, pleading that they are too busy. We do have a number of hard workers, who get results, and I notice that these are usually the busiest men in our profession. But these conditions must be remedied; we should provide ways and means of reaching the non-members and putting before them the necessary information as to our activities.

In going over the reports of past presidents, I note that recommendations were made to the members to get active individually. This, of course, is necessary, but we are not getting results as we should, and we must find even a better way in which to work. Now, the methods to use to overcome this obstacle would be hard to work out without considerable study, and I recommend to the society that a committee be appointed to devise ways and means for a membership campaign that will bring results.

National Flower Show.

When the society adopted, in Houston, an amendment to our by-laws to place within the power of the executive board the changing of the date of our meetings, I feel that this was a great step forward. More particularly will it give us the opportunity to try out the holding of our convention and National Flower Show in conjunction. Our first combined convention and show will be held in St. Louis in the spring of 1918. This will demonstrate to the members the feasibility of the plan. This plan has been discussed by our most able and conservative members on both sides of the question.

I predict that this new arrangement in the conduct of our annual meetings will see a decided change in the interest taken in our work. The time has long passed when our members want only entertainment and a good time at these conventions. Instead, they want information along all lines. They want to return home with new ideas that will assist them in furthering their business. I predict that the new plan will stimulate both in attendance and membership. The year following the St. Louis convention we will hold a summer convention, and this will reach the members who cannot attend the spring convention. To my mind, this would be a wise plan to follow in the future.

I want to take this opportunity of commending the chairman of the National Flower Show, George Asmus, and his most efficient committee, for their most excellent service rendered to the society. Members who are not in close touch little realize the great volume of work undertaken and carried out by the members of this committee, or the tremendous responsibility that rests upon their shoulders. The National Flower Show has been the means of rapidly increasing our funds, by putting dollars in our treasury from the Philadelphia show. While the finances are secondary, these shows must be made profitable if we expect to continue them. The shows are of a wonderful educational value to the flower-buying people. There is no better medium by which we can increase the sale of flowers than by holding these shows in different sections of the country.

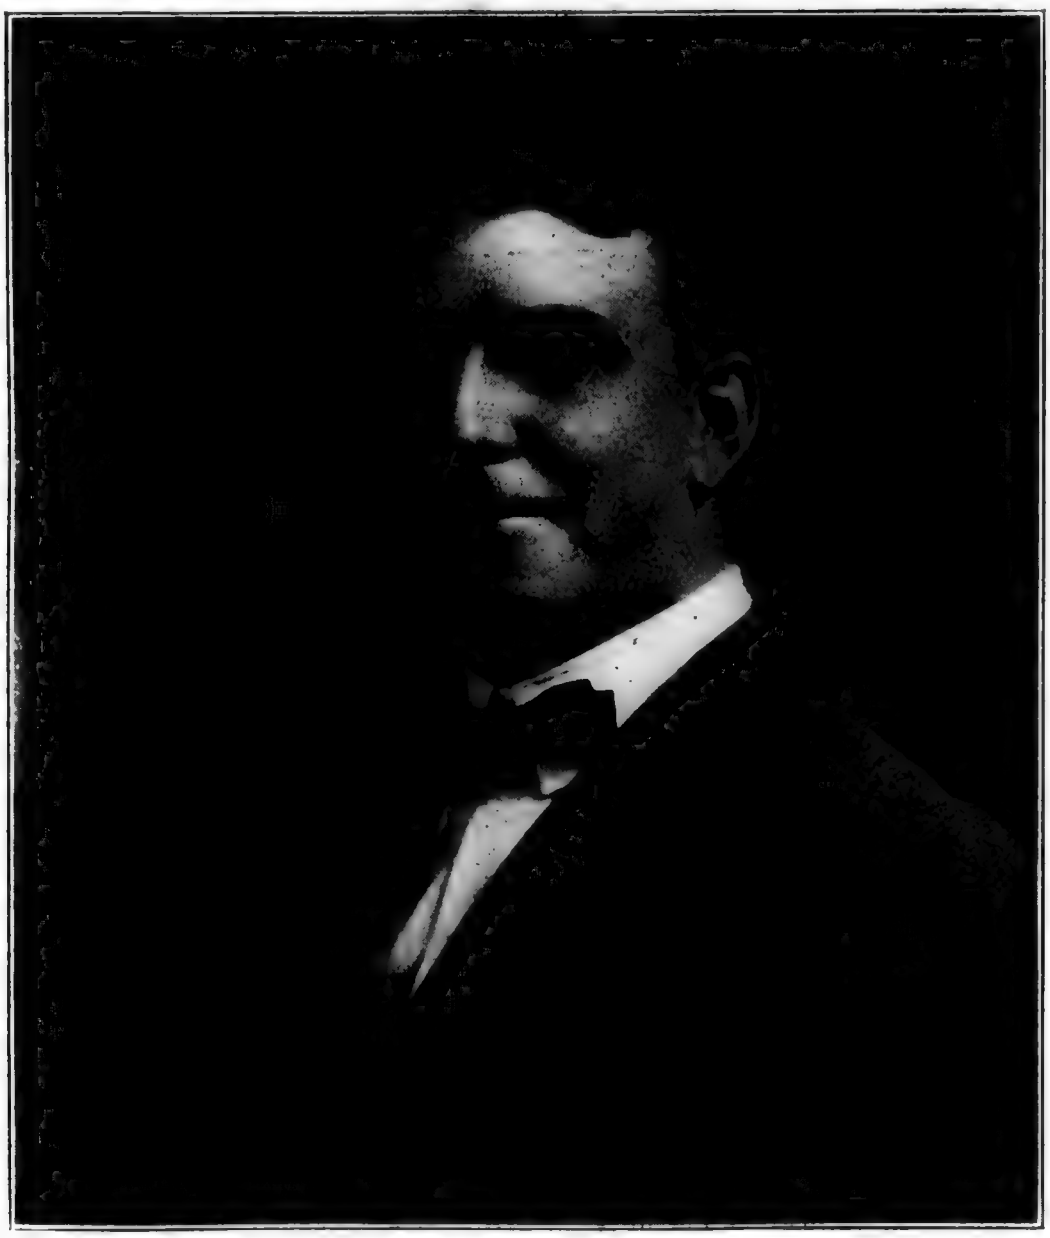
I wish most heartily to recommend the holding of our National Flower Show every two years, and that the National Flower Show committee carry this into effect as soon as practical.

School Gardens.

I have been watching with interest the good work accomplished by the most efficient chairman of our school garden committee, Benjamin Hammond. He seems to be peculiarly fitted for this work.

The minds of our people are rapidly turning in the direction of more home products. It has been proven that the way to reach the parents is through the children. If the children are interested in floral and horticultural work, the parents can not help but become enthused and encourage the work. Aside from beautifying the home, it forms habits of training and uplift that have no parallel in the shaping of the character of the children. My only regret is that this work is not taken up in every school in these United States.

I trust that we will lend every encouragement to further the work along this line.



Convention Gardens.

Due to the holding of the convention and National Flower Show at the same time in St. Louis in the spring of 1918, it will be necessary to dispense with the convention garden for that year. But I am confident that this will add more interest in the garden the coming year. Having these gardens every two years will give more time to the preparation and we can have even a better display than heretofore.

It is hardly probable that we can improve in all respects on previous gardens, or on the one we have the pleasure of viewing this year in New York, but as time goes on and we profit each time by past experiences, we shall be encouraged, and this will be one of the leading features at our summer conventions.

Legislation.

It is strange to say, but is nevertheless true, that unless we are continually on the alert, laws are likely to be passed that will be of serious detriment to our profession. I will call your attention to the proposed drastic quarantine law, which, if it goes into effect, will practically eliminate the importation of all foreign stock. If not for the alertness of our legislative committee, this law will likely be passed.

C. E. Critchell.
(Director-elect Society of American Florists.)

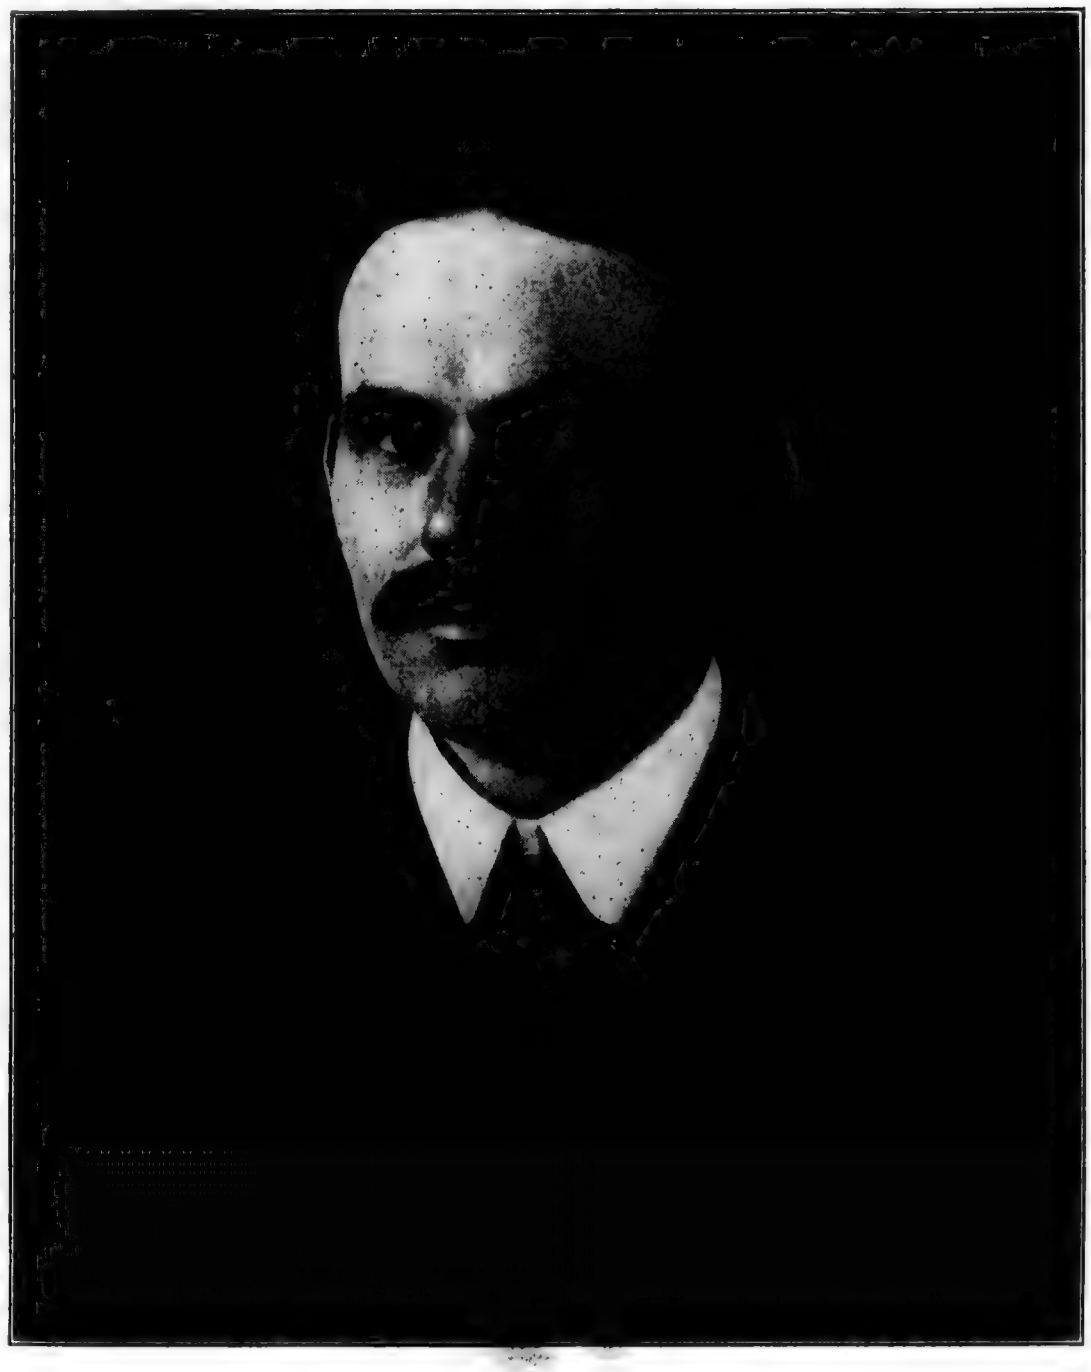
I also want to call your attention to a matter that will be presented to the interstate commerce committee, in regard to allowing the express companies a delay of twenty-four hours on cut flowers, as a reasonable delay in transportation. The florists of the country realize the extremely heavy loss this would mean in the transportation of their stock.

There is at this time a great need for a uniform interstate inspection law, and I would urge the legislative committee to work in connection with the committee of nurserymen, who have already started the movement to get this matter adjusted.

These are just a few of the numerous things that confront this committee from time to time. Yet, regardless of this committee's effective work, a number of live florists have asked me, "What good is to be derived from being a member of the Society of American Florists?"

I wish here to thank personally each member of this committee, and wish to urge each member of the Society of American Florists to lend his coöperation in the furthering of this great work.



Publicity.

Great men have told, and great events have shown, how patriotism and good business go hand in hand in these days of America at war. The value of an even keel, and a steady pull through the rough waters of international strife, has been shown in many ways. The maintenance of everyday business, in its accustomed even routine, has its magnificent part in the winning of freedom for all. It is the nation's normal heart-beat, pumping blood to the brain and muscles of war. This is why great minds have seen in the perpetuation of everyday business conditions the real winning of the war. And if there ever was a time in the history of our profession when we needed a nation-wide cooperative publicity campaign, it is now. During this time of so much publicity given to economy, we are liable to suffer if we do not give more publicity to the use of flowers, plants and other ornamentals.

Just an example of what does happen occasionally: An article appeared in one of our Houston local papers, addressed to one of the local charities, saying, "Find enclosed my check for $10, which, under former conditions, would have gone for flowers, but I feel it my duty to send this instead." This article was published just after the funeral the same afternoon of one of our townsmen, and would have had telling effect if it had appeared in the morning paper. I am only looking at this from the viewpoint of my having flowers to sell—my only commodity for selling and making my living—and not from another viewpoint which we must often take, that of helping willingly and liberally in all deserving causes.

Such agitation, you see, calls for us to keep ever before the public the use of flowers. We must keep the sentiment alive. We must have some means of quick action, and I am convinced that it would be well for every city to follow plans similar to those of the Chicago Florists' Club, every florist in the city contributing his pro-rata to a coöperative advertisement to appear as often as is deemed best, on the subject of the general use of flowers. If this is done by individuals, they can sign their names; if by clubs, then the club name, or some similar plan can be followed.

Our publicity committee can be of vital importance, stirring up interest throughout the country by such a cooperative plan. And a movement of this kind is inexpensive but effective, deriving a direct benefit. I would strongly urge the publicity committee to give serious consideration to this or some other good plan, that will get immediate results. This is a time to think, and think straight. Use your heads, you business men, not your hearts alone. You have got to think straight for the future, not for the present. The cross currents are strong, and sweep from whirlpools of immeasurable depth.

National Credit and Collections.

For the last two years there has been a great deal of discussion on this important subject. These two years have been devoted to serious study and investigation, and we are now ready to get down to business.

We all realize the importance of this department of our work. I am not going into details in this matter, as the chairman of this committee, Patrick Welch, will present this matter in detail, and you may depend upon his committee bringing this work into successful operation.

Our Revenues.

We return this organization to the east, bringing to you more members, a larger treasury, the society in a more thriving condition than ever before. And we have discussed, from time to time, the duty of expending our revenues in such a way that the trade, as a whole, will be most benefited.

Many times I have been asked by members, "What do you expect to do with the accumulations in the treasury?" I think we have reached a sufficient amount to give serious consideration to the proper expenditure of it, and I would recommend to the members of the incoming board that they give consideration to this matter. In making the recommendation, I am mindful of the fact that expenditures through the legislative committee, the publicity committee and our other important committees, are benefiting our membership in general. But a study of the reports shows that this money is coming out of our revenues each year. I am of the opinion that revenues from our interest should be devoted to some specific purpose, and I see no reason for further delay in this matter.

I am sure that the members of our organization will be exceedingly pleased to know that our treasurer was authorized to invest $10,000 in Liberty Loan bonds. Undoubtedly this shows the

ous years' records, it is astonishing that there are numbers of our profession who are not members of this organization. And there is no excuse for this state of affairs. There are many lines of activities in our organization that have done much to elevate our profession, and all members of our craft who are deriving a direct benefit from this work, and are not contributing to its support, are disloyal to the cause, or I might add, if you please, are "slackers."

It is my intention not to unnecessarily criticise, but I must say that we have a weak point in our organization. Instead of having 2,000 members, we should have a national organization in numbers, say 10,000, from every corner of the whole United States. The great work that is being done by this organization should interest every man in our profession, and the fact that any are not members shows our weak point. The majority of our state vice-presidents are active, and doing a commendable work, but some are inactive. I have sent out many letters during the last year, trying to stir up interest, and a few state vice-presidents do not even reply; others reply, pleading that they are too busy. We do have a number of hard workers, who get results, and I notice that these are usually the busiest men in our profession. But these conditions must be remedied; we should provide ways and means of reaching the non-members and putting before them the necessary information as to our activities.

In going over the reports of past presidents, I note that recommendations were made to the members to get active individually. This, of course, is necessary, but we are not getting results as we should, and we must find even a better way in which to work. Now, the methods to use to overcome this obstacle would be hard to work out without considerable study, and I recommend to the society that a committee be appointed to devise ways and means for a membership campaign that will bring results.

National Flower Show.

When the society adopted, in Houston, an amendment to our by-laws to place within the power of the executive board the changing of the date of our meetings, I feel that this was a great step forward. More particularly will it give us the opportunity to try out the holding of our convention and National Flower Show in conjunction. Our first combined convention and show will be held in St. Louis in the spring of 1918. This will demonstrate to the members the feasibility of the plan. This plan has been discussed by our most able and conservative members on both sides of the question.

I predict that this new arrangement in the conduct of our annual meetings will see a decided change in the interest taken in our work. The time has long passed when our members want only entertainment and a good time at these conventions. Instead, they want information along all lines. They want to return home with new ideas that will assist them in furthering their business. I predict that the new plan will stimulate both in attendance and membership. The year following the St. Louis convention we will hold a summer convention, and this will reach the members who cannot attend the spring convention. To my mind, this would be a wise plan to follow in the future.

I want to take this opportunity of commending the chairman of the National Flower Show, George Asmus, and his most efficient committee, for their most excellent service rendered to the society. Members who are not in close touch little realize the great volume of work undertaken and carried out by the members of this committee, or the tremendous responsibility that rests upon their shoulders. The National Flower Show has been the means of rapidly increasing our funds, by putting dollars in our treasury from the Philadelphia show. While the finances are secondary, these shows must be made profitable if we expect to continue them. The shows are of a wonderful educational value to the flower-buying people. There is no better medium by which we can increase the sale of flowers than by holding these shows in different sections of the country.

I am sure that the members of our organization will be exceedingly pleased to know that our treasurer was authorized to invest $10,000 in Liberty Loan bonds. Undoubtedly this shows the great patriotic spirit of our organization.

Our Patriotic Duty.

While we have subscribed $10,000 to the Liberty Loan, this is a substantial investment. We should go further and sacrifice something at this time for the good of the cause.

Florists and their allied interests have enjoyed such prosperity as few lines of business have enjoyed. We, as patriotic American citizens, should subscribe something to the cause of the Red Cross. I feel that this convention should, before we adjourn, subscribe $1,000 to the Red Cross, either from our treasury or by public subscription. I trust that this convention will immediately authorize the appointment of a committee to recommend at our next session the proper procedure to raise this money.

Our Secretary.

Our society has many valuable assets, and one of these is the service of an efficient secretary.

Few members realize the great volume of business transacted through this office, which, to my knowledge, is transacted in a most detailed and efficient manner.

The executive board is responsible to the membership for the work of the secretary. Then why should it not be left to the directors to elect the man for whom they are responsible? You will have presented to you, at this convention, an amendment to our by-laws, which, if passed, will empower your board to elect a secretary, instead of his being elected by the membership at the convention. Personally, I can hardly conceive of anyone objecting to this change, as it is only fair to the executive board. If, perchance, this amendment shall fail, and if at some future date you elect a secretary who is incompetent and inefficient, and the affairs are not carried on as they should be in every detail, do not blame the executive board.

The responsibilities of the secretary of our society are great. And I say to you at this time, that it is your duty to vote for this amendment and give to the executive board the power to elect a secretary and let the responsibility rest with them, as they must account to the membership for the conduct of the affairs of this office.

Coöperation.

We all remember the old adage, "Competition is the life of trade." But we live in the age of progressiveness, and we have changed the old adage to read, "Coöperation is the life of trade." Just as I began this part of my report, I had returned from a comeeting of the boards of two civic organizations, rivals in some respects, but both working to the same end and both striving to make Houston a greater city. There had been a lack of harmony, just because we failed to get together. When we met on common ground we discovered that there was really no cause for friction. Today these two organizations are linked together and they will accomplish great results in the future.

The point I want to bring out is this: Get a little closer to your neighbor. There may have been a lack of harmony, but when an understanding is reached, there is no necessity for friction of any kind. I will cite another instance: The Texas State Florists' Association was organized, and we have close coöperation among the florists of the state and are getting wonderful results. More organizations in every state are forming each year and these organizations should affiliate with the Society of American Florists. Through our personal coöperation, by state organization, together with our special organizations, such as our Rose and Carnation Societies, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery and other bodies of similar nature, centered in our society as a national body, we should reap wonderful results.

You have come to this convention to make your profession more efficient, so that you can be of greater service to the world. Your object is business betterment through better methods. You serve the world, your country and yourselves by helping with your work in facilitating all business as usual. We are always willing to help one another, and I am glad to see you are here in the spirit of helpfulness. You are here with open hearts, with warm handclasp and with smiling faces, typical of members of the Society of American Florists. You are ready to give value for value—everyone hand in hand, side by side. Your coöperating in this great national Society of American Florists is a national force for better business. You can do great things for yourselves, and for all, at this meeting. We want you to do them with your whole heart, as true members, and we know you will.

THE SECRETARY ON THE SOCIETY'S ACTIVITIES

AGAIN I have the pleasure to report most satisfactory progress made by the society, with a strength in membership which augurs well for the immediate future. In little more than five years I have had the satisfaction of seeing the membership increase over eighty per cent, nearly twofold. When I took office January 1, 1912, the membership comprised 994 annual and 281 life members, a total of 1,275. December 31, 1916, five years later, we had 1,304 annual, 447 life and 25 pioneer members, a total of 1,776, a gain of 501 members, of whom 166 had taken out life memberships. August 10 last we had, presuming the 1917 dues will be paid, 1,694 annual, 496 life and 25 pioneer members, a grand total of 2,215. I need hardly say that this growth is most gratifying to me, and must be equally so to all our members. But we are not nearly so strong as we should be, when we consider that we yet include in our membership perhaps only ten per cent of the total number of florists in this country and Canada, all of whom should be earnestly interested in the work of the society, which is ever in the direction of benefit for the trade at large.

We may congratulate ourselves upon the standing of our society, both as to membership and finances, especially in these days of war and unrest. We should also bear in mind that our last two conventions were held remotely apart and far from greatly populated centers—one in the far west, the other in the far south—which, undoubtedly, cut down our prospects for a large influx of new members; yet, it is equally plain that we made no mistake in meeting in these sections, and that our membership increased under natural rather than abnormal conditions.

The Year's Membership Score.

I have been a little disappointed because of the small number of new members secured through the efforts of the state vice-presidents. While a few of these officers have given evidence of endeavor, the great majority have not seemed to be able to induce florists in their respective territories to join our organization. I have sent out thousands of pieces of mail through different sections explaining our objects and soliciting applications for membership, but the results from persuasion by mail have been meager. There is nothing like personal solicitation by the man on the spot.

The society long ago made provision for the payment of incidental expenses attaching to the office of a state vice-president up to the amount of $25, and this sum would cover the cost of quite a little missionary work.

The following have sent in one or more names for membership since the last convention:

F. T. D. and Publicity.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery is doing good recruiting work as a section of our society, securing for us a large influx of new members. It will be noticed that we are publishing a full report of the meetings of this organization in our annual proceedings. Upward of 121 pages appeared in the 1916 volume. We also publish a list of F. T. D. members, with addresses and names of the retail establishments represented. Our executive board has recommended that any appropriations for publicity work made by the society shall be expended by the society's publicity committee in conjunction with a similar committee appointed by the F. T. D. This will insure that the interests of all branches of the trade will be conserved in publicity work.

Publicity for flowers and the best means of getting it is a problem your publicity committee has been wrestling with for some time. It is a matter requiring deep thought, and any step made must necessarily be in the right direction, otherwise expenditures on the project would be entirely wasted. Many plans have been suggested, but none has yet been adopted. You will have noticed that in the report of the meeting of the board of directors a recommendation was made that the society appropriate $1,500 to the use of the F. T. D. to augment the fund which the latter is raising for a general advertising campaign.

The bureau of credits and collections is another of the society's projects in which the policy of "make haste slowly" is paramount. The committee in charge of the proposition, however, is beginning "to see daylight" and it will not be long before a working plan will be evolved. The committee is fortunate in having at its head as able a chairman as Patrick Welch.

Next Year's Show and Meeting.

The committee on Mothers' day worked earnestly early in the year to promote a fund for advertising flowers for this day, as its report will show. In collaboration with Chairman Olson, I sent out 13,200 circular letters to florists, dealers in supplies, etc., soliciting subscriptions. The amount received was only $571 and the expenditures, including postage, amounted to $516.50, leaving a net balance of $54.50.

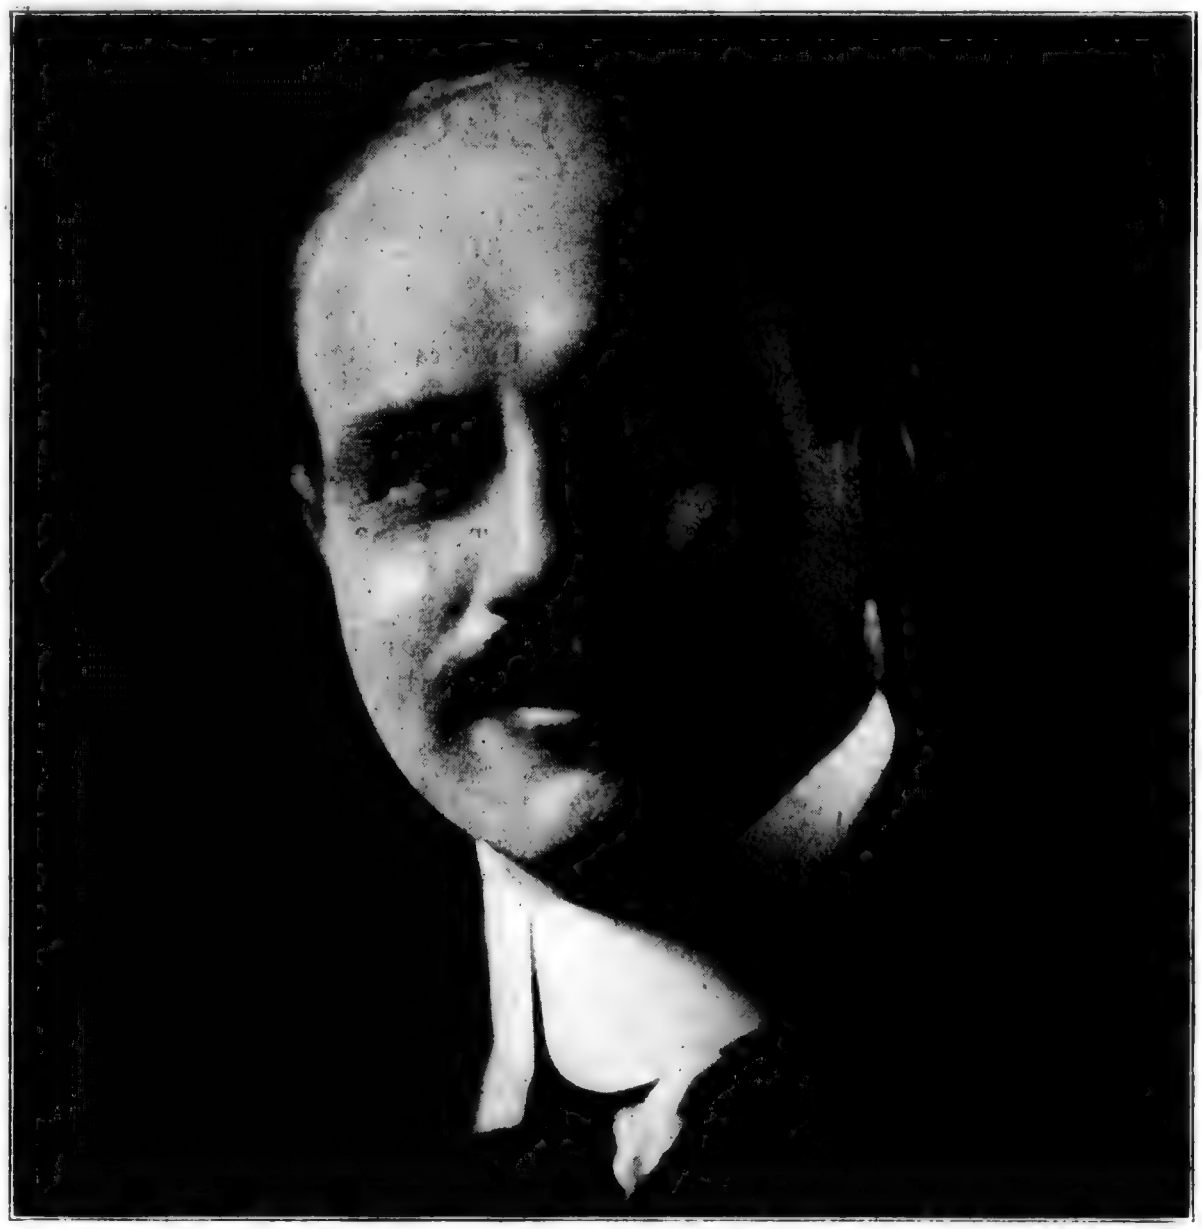
The work of the secretary's office in the promotion of the Fifth National Flower Show has been quite active for many months. I have been successful in raising the required $10,000 guarantee fund and have published and distributed two preliminary schedules, important and necessary features of the work.

The plan to hold the 1918 convention of the society in St. Louis in conjunction with the National Flower Show, while at first thought to be a questionable policy, is meeting with hearty approval, and I am assured on every hand that it has been a wise move and undoubtedly pleases the majority of our members. The double attraction should insure a larger attendance of the trade than we have hitherto had at any of our gatherings, and the possibility of combining the usual flower show trade exhibits with the regular convention trade exhibition should result in a grand exposition of florists' products, auxiliaries, supplies and accessories, as well as of everything used in the line of horticultural work, both professional and amateur.

The Garden and Exhibition.

I would particularly direct the attention of members to the fact that all dues are payable January 1, and should not be permitted to run until convention time. The dues are small and remitting is easy, so why not make an immediate remittance on receipt of the bill from the secretary's office and save the society the unnecessary postage entailed by subsequent billings?

I regret to say that, in spite of the most strenuous efforts I could put forth, interest in the convention garden lagged to a surprising extent, in spite of the great advertising opportunity presented and the fact that plantings could be continued without cost for several seasons. The support received by the society in the garden project this year has been meager, indeed. In this great city of New York, with its extensive suburbs where horticulture is a general hobby of the residents, plantings of novelties or meritorious varieties in plants and flowers would have obtained publicity the value of which could hardly be estimated in dollars and cents—and at such little cost.



When we consider the disturbed condition of commerce, lack of transportation facilities and other drawbacks at present in evidence, it must be admitted that our trade exhibition is as large and as comprehensive as could be expected. While it compares favorably with other exhibitions, had times been normal it would, undoubtedly, have been exceptionally large.

Exit Organized Entertainment.

In line with recommendations made from time to time by our executive board that organized entertainment in convention cities be discontinued, for the reason that they detract from the interest of our society's meetings, such entertainment forms no part of our program. Feeling that a precedent might better be established in a large city, New York has set an example, the sincerity of which is unquestioned, and it is meeting the approval of the majority of our membership. If the precedent is turned into custom, many more cities will find it their unhampered privilege to offer themselves for future conventions.

I desire at this time to express publicly my appreciation of the most congenial relations which have existed between the committees of our society and the secretary's office. Such relations I recognize to be most important in conducting the work of the society, and it is a great pleasure to me to testify to the great harmony prevailing. I am at all times ready to render any assistance in my power to committee work, promptly and most cheerfully.

It is also fitting at this time that I should mention the great services rendered to the society by the trade press. Our trade papers have promptly published the large number of articles sent in by me during the last year and their unselfish assistance in our work should be recognized to the fullest extent possible.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that Dailledouze Bros., Lenox road and Troy avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., submit for registration the new rose described below:

Ophelia Supreme—Sport of Ophelia; color, light rose-pink with darker shading in the center and yellow at the base of each petal; much like Souv. de la Malmaison, but decidedly brighter. Habit, same superb growth, foliage and quick cropping qualities as its parent; petalage, will average four to five petals more than Ophelia, making it a much better half-open rose.

Frederick H. Dressel, Weehawken, N. J., offers for registration the new fern described below:

President Wilson—Sport of Teddy, Jr.; leaves small, curly, dark green and more hardy looking than Teddy, Jr.

Any persons objecting to these registrations, or to the use of the proposed names, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objections to the registrations, the same will be made three weeks from this date. John Young, Sec'y.

And I say to you at this time, that it is your duty to vote for this amendment and give to the executive board the power to elect a secretary and let the responsibility rest with them, as they must account to the membership for the conduct of the affairs of this office.

Coöperation.

We all remember the old adage, "Competition is the life of trade." But we live in the age of progressiveness, and we have changed the old adage to read, "Coöperation is the life of trade." Just as I began this part of my report, I had returned from a co meeting of the boards of two civic organizations, rivals in some respects, but both working to the same end and both striving to make Houston a greater city. There had been a lack of harmony, just because we failed to get together. When we met on common ground we discovered that there was really no cause for friction. Today these two organizations are linked together and they will accomplish great results in the future.

The point I want to bring out is this: Get a little closer to your neighbor. There may have been a lack of harmony, but when an understanding is reached, there is no necessity for friction of any kind. I will cite another instance: The Texas State Florists' Association was organized, and we have close coöperation among the florists of the state and are getting wonderful results. More organizations in every state are forming each year and these organizations should affiliate with the Society of American Florists. Through our personal coöperation, by state organization, together with our special organizations, such as our Rose and Carnation Societies, the Florists' Telegraph Delivery and other bodies of similar nature, centered in our society as a national body, we should reap wonderful results.

You have come to this convention to make your profession more efficient, so that you can be of greater service to the world. Your object is business betterment through better methods. You serve the world, your country and yourselves by helping with your work in facilitating all business as usual. We are always willing to help one another, and I am glad to see you are here in the spirit of helpfulness. You are here with open hearts, with warm handclasp and with smiling faces, typical of members of the Society of American Florists. You are ready to give value for value—everyone hand in hand, side by side. Your coöperating in this great national Society of American Florists is a national force for better business. You can do great things for yourselves, and for all, at this meeting. We want you to do them with your whole heart, as true members, and we know you will.

THE SECRETARY ON THE SOCIETY'S ACTIVITIES

AGAIN I have the pleasure to report most satisfactory progress made by the society, with a strength in membership which augurs well for the immediate future. In little more than five years I have had the satisfaction of seeing the membership increase over eighty per cent, nearly twofold. When I took office January 1, 1912, the membership comprised 994 annual and 281 life members, a total of 1,275. December 31, 1916, five years later, we had 1,304 annual, 447 life and 25 pioneer members, a total of 1,776, a gain of 501 members, of whom 166 had taken out life memberships. August 10 last we had, presuming the 1917 dues will be paid, 1,694 annual, 496 life and 25 pioneer members, a grand total of 2,215. I need hardly say that this growth is most gratifying to me, and must be equally so to all our members. But we are not nearly so strong as we should be, when we consider that we yet include in our membership perhaps only ten per cent of the total number of florists in this country and Canada, all of whom should be earnestly interested in the work of the society, which is ever in the direction of benefit for the trade at large.

We may congratulate ourselves upon the standing of our society, both as to membership and finances, especially in these days of war and unrest. We should also bear in mind that our last two conventions were held remotely apart and far from greatly populated centers—one in the far west, the other in the far south—which, undoubtedly, cut down our prospects for a large influx of new members; yet, it is equally plain that we made no mistake in meeting in these sections, and that our membership increased under natural rather than abnormal conditions.

The Year's Membership Score.

I have been a little disappointed because of the small number of new members secured through the efforts of the state vice-presidents. While a few of these officers have given evidence of endeavor, the great majority have not seemed to be able to induce florists in their respective territories to join our organization. I have sent out thousands of pieces of mail through different sections explaining our objects and soliciting applications for membership, but the results from persuasion by mail have been meager. There is nothing like personal solicitation by the man on the spot.

The society long ago made provision for the payment of incidental expenses attaching to the office of a state vice-president up to the amount of $25, and this sum would cover the cost of quite a little missionary work.

The following have sent in one or more names for membership since the last convention:

F. T. D. and Publicity.

The Florists' Telegraph Delivery is doing good recruiting work as a section of our society, securing for us a large influx of new members. It will be noticed that we are publishing a full report of the meetings of this organization in our annual proceedings. Upward of 121 pages appeared in the 1916 volume. We also publish a list of F. T. D. members, with addresses and names of the retail establishments represented. Our executive board has recommended that any appropriations for publicity work made by the society shall be expended by the society's publicity committee in conjunction with a similar committee appointed by the F. T. D. This will insure that the interests of all branches of the trade will be conserved in publicity work.

Publicity for flowers and the best means of getting it is a problem your publicity committee has been wrestling with for some time. It is a matter requiring deep thought, and any step made must necessarily be in the right direction, otherwise expenditures on the project would be entirely wasted. Many plans have been suggested, but none has yet been adopted. You will have noticed that in the report of the meeting of the board of directors a recommendation was made that the society appropriate $1,500 to the use of the F. T. D. to augment the fund which the latter is raising for a general advertising campaign.

The bureau of credits and collections is another of the society's projects in which the policy of "make haste slowly" is paramount. The committee in charge of the proposition, however, is beginning "to see daylight" and it will not be long before a working plan will be evolved. The committee is fortunate in having at its head as able a chairman as Patrick Welch.

Next Year's Show and Meeting.

The committee on Mothers' day worked earnestly early in the year to promote a fund for advertising flowers for this day, as its report will show. In collaboration with Chairman Olson, I sent out 13,200 circular letters to florists, dealers in supplies, etc., soliciting subscriptions. The amount received was only $571 and the expenditures, including postage, amounted to $516.50, leaving a net balance of $54.50.

The work of the secretary's office in the promotion of the Fifth National Flower Show has been quite active for many months. I have been successful in raising the required $10,000 guarantee fund and have published and distributed two preliminary schedules, important and necessary features of the work.

The plan to hold the 1918 convention of the society in St. Louis in conjunction with the National Flower Show, while at first thought to be a questionable policy, is meeting with hearty approval, and I am assured on every hand that it has been a wise move and undoubtedly pleases the majority of our members. The double attraction should insure a larger attendance of the trade than we have hitherto had at any of our gatherings, and the possibility of combining the usual flower show trade exhibits with the regular convention trade exhibition should result in a grand exposition of florists' products, auxiliaries, supplies and accessories, as well as of everything used in the line of horticultural work, both professional and amateur.

The Garden and Exhibition.

I would particularly direct the attention of members to the fact that all dues are payable January 1, and should not be permitted to run until convention time. The dues are small and remitting is easy, so why not make an immediate remittance on receipt of the bill from the secretary's office and save the society the unnecessary postage entailed by subsequent billings?

I regret to say that, in spite of the most strenuous efforts I could put forth, interest in the convention garden lagged to a surprising extent, in spite of the great advertising opportunity presented and the fact that plantings could be continued without cost for several seasons. The support received by the society in the garden project this year has been meager, indeed. In this great city of New York, with its extensive suburbs where horticulture is a general hobby of the residents, plantings of novelties or meritorious varieties in plants and flowers would have obtained publicity the value of which could hardly be estimated in dollars and cents - and at such little cost.

When we consider the disturbed condition of commerce, lack of transportation facilities and other drawbacks at present in evidence, it must be admitted that our trade exhibition is as large and as comprehensive as could be expected. While it compares favorably with other exhibitions, had times been normal it would, undoubtedly, have been exceptionally large.

Exit Organized Entertainment.

In line with recommendations made from time to time by our executive board that organized entertainment in convention cities be discontinued, for the reason that they detract from the interest of our society's meetings, such entertainment forms no part of our program. Feeling that a precedent might better be established in a large city, New York has set an example, the sincerity of which is unquestioned, and it is meeting the approval of the majority of our membership. If the precedent is turned into custom, many more cities will find it their unhampered privilege to offer themselves for future conventions.

I desire at this time to express publicly my appreciation of the most congenial relations which have existed between the committees of our society and the secretary's office. Such relations I recognize to be most important in conducting the work of the society, and it is a great pleasure to me to testify to the great harmony prevailing. I am at all times ready to render any assistance in my power to committee work, promptly and most cheerfully.

It is also fitting at this time that I should mention the great services rendered to the society by the trade press. Our trade papers have promptly published the large number of articles sent in by me during the last year and their unselfish assistance in our work should be recognized to the fullest extent possible.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that Dailledouze Bros., Lenox road and Troy avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., submit for registration the new rose described below:

Ophelia Supreme Sport of Ophelia, color light rose pink with darker shading in the center and yellow at the base of each petal much like Souv. de la Malmaison, but decidedly brighter. Habit, same superb growth, foliage and quick cropping qualities as its parent, petalage, will average four to five petals more than Ophelia, making it a much better half-open rose.

Frederick H. Dressel, Weehawken, N. J., offers for registration the new fern described below:

President Wilson Sport of Teddy, Jr., leaves small, curly, dark green and more harsh looking than Teddy, Jr.

Any persons objecting to these registrations, or to the use of the proposed names, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objections to the registrations, the same will be made three weeks from this date. John Young, Sec'y.

TARIFF AND LEGISLATION COMMITTEE

ONE of the first and most serious problems presented to your committee since the last report was a bill prohibiting imports. The demand for the stopping of imports of all kinds of plants, trees and bulbs from all sources, comes from a small group of entomologists, who seem to think that legislation, often ill-advised, is the solution of all evils. They do not seem to know how dependent our trade is upon other countries for such raw materials as lily bulbs, valley pips, azaleas, Manetti stocks, Dutch bulbs, etc., but they think that the prohibition of these imports will reduce the annual damage done to our crops and forests by insect pests and plant diseases. We will not weary you with the details in this report, as the facts have been published by the trade papers.

The seriousness of the matter to this organization comes from the fact that this small group of entomologists had the American Forestry Association endorse the plan. This body has a membership of more than 5,000, so is politically powerful in Washington. It consists largely of lumbermen, who, of course, are enthusiastically in favor of any plan which they are told will protect our forests, from which their supply of lumber comes.

The Fight on Quarantine.

Since the proposed prohibition affected the nurserymen almost as vitally as the florists, arrangements have been made whereby the nurserymen join with the florists in combating the plan, and share the expenses of employing what talent may be necessary. During the summer months our committee and the nurserymen's committee are to meet with the entomological committee in charge, and there the matter now stands.

It has been stated that the entomological committee would be satisfied at this time with a partial quarantine on what they term "finished product." This would then quarantine only such items as bay trees, azaleas, boxwood, etc., but your committee has good reasons for believing this would only be the thin end of the wedge, largely used to divide the nurserymen and florists in their opposition. If this plan of the prohibition of imports is allowed to become effective, there is little doubt that the next step will be an embargo on interstate trade—every argument that is used for one prohibition can be used for the other—and it has been frankly said by our opponents that they hope to see the time come when no plant or nursery stock shipments shall be allowed passage in interstate trade. You can imagine what such a plan would mean to the horticultural trade of the United States.

Our committee has authority from the executive committee of the S. A. F. to oppose this measure and in coöperation with the nurserymen will exercise that power for the best interests of our members.

Report of William F. Gude as chairman of the S. A. F. committee on tariff and legislation, presented at the New York convention.

Licensed Firemen.

Requests for aid have come from several states in the effort to prevent legislation going into effect requiring the service of licensed firemen and engineers on low-pressure boilers in small greenhouse establishments. That would legislate many small growers out of existence. More than 100 such bills are now pending in the different states, and it is impossible for your committee to handle all of them. The matter was referred to the executive committee for action, although the remedy must come from the growers in the affected states through their representatives.

War Duties.

In last May's war revenue measures, the Ways and Means committee of the House proposed a straight additional ten per cent ad valorem duty on all imports, and it was embodied in the bill passed by the House. The imposition of an ad valorem duty to items already dutiable on a specific basis would renew many old abuses and make the importation of many of the finer varieties prohibitive. While not objecting to an increased duty, your committee demanded a specific increase on items at present dutiable on a specific basis, and failing to get redress from the Ways and Means committee of the House, it was taken to the Senate Finance committee, where the whole tariff increase failed of passage.

Express Labels.

In March last, a number of members of the S. A. F. executive committee, together with Max Schling, of New York, had a lengthy interview with the vice-presidents and general managers of the Adams Express Co., American Express Co. and the Wells, Fargo Express Co. in reference to effecting a more expeditious handling of cut flowers. As that was on the eve of the great railroad strike, we did not make much headway, but the officials all announced themselves as being anxious to help expedite the florists' business and transmission of flowers by express in every way possible. Subsequently, through the indefatigable efforts of Max Schling, of New York, the express companies allowed us to use the following label, which, no doubt, in our mind, will do much toward facilitating delivery of express packages:

FLOWERS HIGHLY PERISHABLE IMPORTANT NOTICE
EXPRESS AGENT:

If immediate delivery of this package cannot be effected, communicate with consignee by telephone or otherwise, advising of arrival of shipment, and say why immediate delivery cannot be made. Your assistance in expediting delivery will be appreciated.

This label is approved by E. M. Williams, vice-president Adams Express Co.; D. S. Elliot, vice-president American Express Co.; F. S. Holbrook, vice-president Wells, Fargo Express Co.

Express Claims.

Under date of July 6, we received complaints from several large cut flower shippers (including a complaint from the Leo Niessen Co., of Philadelphia, through our secretary, John Young) that the express companies were about to claim, through the Interstate Commerce Commission, that a 24-hour delay on cut flowers and plants would not be unreasonable. This was referred to your chairman at Washington, who immediately took the matter up with the Interstate Commerce Commission through Mr. Fishback, who was formerly confidential secretary to the Interstate Commerce Commission, and therefore especially qualified to handle such matters, with the following results:

July 16, 1917.

Wm. F. Gude,
1214 F Street, N. W.,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Gude: Referring to the communication which you submitted to me, from the secretary of the Society of Florists, I have talked with the official of the commission having immediate charge of matters relating to rates and regulations of express companies. He states that no communication has come to his hands requesting a ruling by the commission in regard to the subject of claims for delays to flowers in transit. I will have the officials go further into the question, and have explained that the law confers no authority upon the commission to make a ruling of the character suggested, namely that twenty-four hours is not unreasonable delay to cut flowers; that the question of what is unreasonable must be determined on the facts in each case, and if the shipper and express company cannot agree on the subject of a particular claim, the question must be settled in the courts. Therefore, where a controversy arises over a particular shipment as to damages caused by delay, and the carrier denies liability, no rule that the Interstate Commerce Commission might lay down could bind the court in its decision on the facts presented in a suit. The commission has always avoided expressing opinions concerning questions which it would not authoritatively decide if presented in a formal proceeding before it, and it is perfectly obvious that it would decline to do so in the case mentioned in the letter received by you from the secretary of the Society of Florists. The commission acts within its province, and Congress has not conferred power upon it to pass upon or adjust claims for loss, damage or delay in transit. Those are claims which the courts alone have authority to determine.

If any express company should propose a rule by tariff publication, I will keep in touch with the situation in such a way as to be immediately informed, and will take such actions as necessary to secure suspension of the proposed rule, although I am confident that no traffic official, or legal advisor of express companies, would expect to be able to establish a fixed basis for settlement of claims for delay by traffic rules or regulations. They could have no force in law, as the courts would still use their own judgment, and proceed as now to hear and determine causes of this character, without regard to any rule or regulation published in tariffs of the express companies.

Yours very truly,
J. H. Fishback.

P.S.—A peculiar duty rests upon express companies in transporting cut flowers, these being a highly perishable commodity, and they may not absolve themselves from liability unless thay have strong justification.

July 17, 1917.

W. F. Gude,
1214 F Street, N. W.,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir: I have conferred further at the office of the commission with regard to the attempt of express company officials to avoid payment of claims for damage due to delay where the delay does not exceed twenty-four hours. I now find that shippers have communicated with the commission informing it they had been advised of this position of claim agents or other officials of the express companies, principally the Adams Express Co., I understand, but this had reference more particularly to non-perishable property, and not to cut flowers, and was due to the fact that owing to operating conditions on railroads, traffic congestion and congestion of terminals, etc., which have existed for many months, the movement of trains and delivery of property has been interfered with and delayed.

However, as I have explained, the commission has made no ruling on the subject, and it is not within its province to do so, as the liability of carriers for delay must be determined on the facts in each case, and where the carrier denies liability, the question can be settled alone in the courts upon the facts presented. If any claims on cut flowers are declined on the basis explained to me, they should be taken up with the chief executive officials, or by suit in the courts.

Yours very truly,
J. H. Fishback.

Embargo on Valley Pips.

Last fall your committee was appealed to by various large importers about getting their lily of the valley pips from Copenhagen into the United States. After many conferences and long delays, we were advised by the Department of State that the majority of valley pips in Copenhagen were not grown in Denmark, but were German-grown and, therefore, the British authorities were not inclined to let them come through.

Importation of Azaleas.

Last fall much time was consumed between the German and British embassies and the State Department in endeavoring to have the embargo raised on azaleas and other stock from the Ghent district on shipments into the United States from Belgian growers. This seemed to be an insurmountable problem, and we had practically given up hope of getting the azaleas and other stock in, when we were advised that owing to a misunderstanding between the counselors in London and Berlin, the azaleas had been held up, in error. And, when this misunderstanding was rectified, the azaleas came through.

In reference to the shipment of azaleas and rhododendrons this year, we beg to advise that we have taken the matter up with the State Department and under date of August 2, 1917, we were assured that so far as the department knows there have been no restrictions or laws changed since 1916 by which azaleas have been permitted to come in, and payment made to the Belgian Bank in London. Our committee, however, feels that until war conditions change in Belgium, no azaleas or other stock can come into the United States from that country.

Fumigation of Orchids.

In May last, several communications were received from the Orchid Growers' Association to have an interview with the Department of Agriculture as to the fumigation of orchids, which, some of the growers claim, was so detrimental to the plants that some had been killed. We took the matter up promptly with the Federal Horticultural Board May 27 and were told that the fumigation of newly imported orchids had been suspended until May 31 to see what effect the fumigation would have. Subsequently, we have been told that the fumigation orders have been modified so far as orchids were concerned until they are now being fumigated without detriment to the plants.

Embargo on Raffia.

Early in the European war the French government placed an embargo on all raffia exported from the island of Madagascar. The importers became interested and were anxious to have the embargo lifted. We took the matter up with the State Department and after many interviews and cablegrams (paid for by James McHutchison, of New York city) we were advised August 1 that the embargo had been lifted by the French government, and raffia is now coming in as before.

Coal.

Under date of August 9, we received a communication from Philadelphia in reference to the coal situation which seemed to agitate many of our members. We immediately took the matter up with the director of the Geological Survey, who submits the following:

For your information I would say that blanks exactly similar to those mailed the florists have been sent to many other industries, among the larger of which are flour mills, breweries, steam railroads, municipal gas works, automobiles and automobile motors. In all, more than 16,000 blanks have been mailed out requesting information on these points. Only the limit of the clerical force available has prevented the canvass of an even greater number of industries. The object of the investigation is primarily to secure specific information on the consumption and storage of coal in order that the proper governmental agencies may be able to act intelligently on any situation which may arise.

I wish to take this opportunity of thanking every member of our committee for willing assistance rendered whenever the occasion required, especially since James McHutchison, who is most thoroughly versed in all these matters, has been untiring in bringing about the desired results for our organization.

SCHOOL GARDENS.

[Report of Benjamin Hammond as chairman of the school garden committee, presented at the New York convention.]

The year 1917 will go down in history as a special year of gardens, for gardens are no longer regarded as of no account and suitable only for laboring people to attend to. The Society of American Florists has for several years been encouraging the efforts to teach the school children of the country about garden cultivation. The florist, wherever he may be, usually has premises that are a model for tidiness and beauty, and an example that people of good taste love to follow. The fact that from one end of the country to the other, we have sent each spring a well-illustrated circular letter to school authorities in every town or city that has a member of the S. A. F. has had its effect, judging from the correspondence that has come to hand therefrom. It would be difficult to name any city or town of prominence but what is giving attention to school gardening. The city of Grand Rapids, Mich., has issued one of the best circulars that we have seen. Chicago, Ill., in various parts of the city, has made it a point to instruct the children. On the Pacific coast the movement has extended from San Diego, Cal., to Tacoma, Wash., and much attention has been given this work. Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has been one of the leaders in the work. Boston, Mass., which has always been a thrifty town from the time it was first settled, keeps up the good work. Cleveland, O., Philadelphia and Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Buffalo, N. Y., Cincinnati, O., Denver, Colo.—and so we may go on indefinitely, and what at first was regarded sometimes as a fad in school studies has spread from end to end of the United States, and the last year, owing to the conditions arising from the destruction now going on in Europe, it has brought a realization of the practical value of the little garden that engaged the thoughts of the ablest men of the nation. President Wilson especially laid stress on the desirability of this work. As your committee, we have followed up the work and we believe that the florists in every town where one is located can be a lighthouse showing what can be done, not only with flowers, but with vegetables, to the benefit of their communities, and will fix in this country a desire for gardens—both plants and flowers—to an extent that will remain a permanent benefit to their business.

AT THE CAPITAL

THERE have been many problems submitted to me during the last twelve months, some of them unusual and only affecting one or more individuals of the organization, other matters of vital importance affecting, more or less, all of our members. Many of these matters are handled by your Washington representative to the best of his ability by the liberal use of telephone messages and friends at court, and thus are easily and satisfactorily disposed of. Other questions take months of time and much correspondence. Still others are matters for the committee on tariff and legislation.

Botanic Garden.

Since my last report, when the society went on record as favoring the maintenance of the United States Botanic Garden in its present location, I am happy to state that through the indefatigable efforts of Hon. Jacob H. Gallinger, United States senator from New Hampshire, a bill has passed the Senate authorizing the acquisition of the two government reservations lying just west of the garden, known as East and West Seaton parks. This addition would materially increase the area of the Botanic Garden. It is hoped that the measure may soon become a law, for if the people throughout the country could but witness the thousands of visitors from all parts of the world who visit the Botanic Garden annually, there surely would be no hesitancy in enlarging the garden at once. During the last season, there has been much of special interest to attract the citizens of Washington and the tens of thousands of visitors to the Botanic Garden. Our daily press has been most liberal in exploiting the educational advantages of the Botanic Garden and its influence for good to the public in general. Our genial, whole-souled superintendent and fellow-director, George W. Hess, is ever to the front in aiding and pushing that which seems best for the uplift and education of all mankind for the more beautiful in life, and it is our sincere hope that the additions asked for from Congress may be granted ere long.

Rose Gardens.

The rose gardens at Arlington Farms have made material progress since my last report. About 100 varieties have been added to the collections and the gardens as a whole are improving in appearance. The winter of 1916-17 was especially hard on the tea and hybrid tea roses and they did not look as well in the early spring as in previous years, but they have since grown vigorously and have bloomed well during the season. It has been necessary to do some rearranging in the gardens to provide more room for several types. Additional trellises have been erected to accommodate the increasing numbers of climbing roses. It was found that the rugosas were too crowded for satisfactory development; so one-half of them were taken out and placed in a new bed in order to give chance for development. The older climbing roses on the outside fence and the arches added greatly to the interest and appearance of the gardens this season. A large number of visitors inspected the gardens every week and June 4 an outdoor meeting of the American Rose Society, which was largely attended, was held in the garden.

Peonies and Chrysanthemums.

A peony garden in coöperation with the American Peony Society has been established, more than 400 varieties having been planted last fall. They are making good growth, and in a year or two this garden promises to be interesting to flower lovers. The iris collection of 250 varieties has been increased by a number of unnamed seedlings.

The hardy chrysanthemum collection now includes about 1,000 varieties. An attempt has been made to make a special collection of the most desirable kinds for this section, with the expectation of eliminating other varieties from the collection as these selections prove themselves to be good. The object of the work with chrysanthemums is to find a few good early hardy varieties as bases for breeding others which may be relied upon for outdoor growth in more northern sections of the country without protection—varieties that would be suitable for the grounds of the ordinary suburbanite or a farm home where intensive culture and much special care are impossible. There are growing this year 5,000 seedlings, from which it is hoped to get a few to bloom earlier than the average of the large collection.

Some work is also being done in the breeding of carnations, and on some of the problems in connection with the propagation of roses.

U. S. Doing Good Work.

I again wish to draw the attention of members to the splendid work the Department of Agriculture at Washington is doing for the benefit of horticulture and floriculture in general, not only in the outdoor work of the garden, but also in the forcing and propagating lines in the greenhouse of the Experimental Gardens and in the grounds on the Mall, where all manner of new plants are being propagated and tried out. E. M. Byrnes, the able superintendent of the houses and grounds, is ever ready to assist in giving information to anyone seeking it.

The annual chrysanthemum exhibition, held October 30 to November 5, 1916, was attended by many thousands of visitors, and as in the past since these exhibitions have been held, does much towards encouraging the growing of flowers by individuals.

The last year in the florists' business in Washington has been good and profitable to grower, wholesaler and retailer, notwithstanding the fact that since our last meeting our own United States of America has been drawn into this horrible war, and the demand for money and men, already heavy, bids fair to be heavier. Yet the future for our business looks bright. The work in connection with representing this large, influential association is an honor of which any man should be exceedingly proud. I wish to reassure every fellow-member that I fully appreciate the honor, and I tender my grateful thanks to all who have willingly rendered assistance for the benefit of the S. A. F.

This is the report of William F. Gude, Washington representative of the S. A. F., presented at the New York convention.

SECRETARY'S FINANCES

THE financial affairs of the secretary's office have become so diversified that they not only run to a large total but are so complex and involved that a high order of accounting ability is required to keep the society's affairs straight.

The following is the financial statement of the office from January 1, 1916, to August 10, 1917, taken from the report of Secretary Young, presented at the New York convention:

THE NATIONAL SHOW

IN submitting my report to the convention, I wish briefly to touch upon the objects of the National Flower Show, which, it is understood by the committee from instructions received at the various conventions, are to promote horticulture in all its branches and to make the show self-sustaining, the idea of profit being a secondary consideration.

It is my opinion that the time will soon be at hand, if it is not now, when the National Flower Show and the annual convention of the S. A. F. should be held together in the spring. Statistics kept by the secretary show that the attendance at the National Flower Shows by the members of our society is three times as great as at the conventions. It is also a natural buying season and the exhibitor finds the florist visitor at the convention in a mood for buying.

There are not many buildings in the country large enough to stage the exhibition as carried on now by the committee. In the city of St. Louis, where we go next spring, we were forced to lease ground adjacent to the Shriners' temple, to erect a temporary structure to stage our show, but there is a movement in a number of larger cities to build large convention halls, and in a few years there will be a number of large buildings available in cities where the exhibition can be held.

Preparations for St. Louis.

We are going to the city of St. Louis, as you all know, next spring. There is not a large number of big growers close to St. Louis. Therefore, our committee must look for the support of the growers throughout the country. If the committee does not get this support, it will work a severe hardship on it, and will not reflect to the credit of our society or our business.

The American Rose Society will hold its convention and exhibition in connection with the show, and the American Carnation Society, which was represented at our last meeting in St. Louis, signified its intention of making a great effort at the next show. We were greatly encouraged also by the Missouri Botanical Garden, commonly known as Shaw's gardens. Mr. Ohlweiler, the director, assured me that he would do everything possible, and if necessary would move the garden to our exhibition hall.

This is the spirit taken by the florists in general in St. Louis, but if this show is to be national we ought to have exhibits not only from the Atlantic coast, but from the Pacific coast as well.

There was some talk, early in the preparatory part of the exhibition, about abandoning the show on account of the war. This the committee unanimously believes would be a serious mistake, as the motto, "Business as usual," has been supplemented by "Business is better than usual," and as this is strictly a business exhibition our line in particular must keep in advance of the times.

Location Is Ideal.

The committee was fortunate in securing a location that compares somewhat to the one at the recent Philadelphia show, being on the principal boulevard, in the heart of the city and adjacent to four of the most prominent car lines in the city. Also it is the principal drive, surrounded by some of the finest homes in St. Louis. There also is a triangular park space belonging to the city immediately in front of the building, which the park commissioners have promised to plant according to the wishes of our committee.

We are much encouraged by the spirit shown us by the St. Louis Florists' Club and its members. The dates for the show are April 6 to 15, 1918, inclusive, giving us ten full show days, as the laws of St. Louis, Mo., allow exhibitions open on Sunday. The weather in St. Louis at this time of the year, statistics show, is delightful and quite warm.

The lot leased by the committee is 150x350 feet, and is now leveled off and being seeded. We have also contracted for an ornamental electric light billboard to be placed there, which will be in operation this week. The billboard shows the proposed building and announces to the public the contemplated show. Every effort is being made by the committee, which is composed of L. P. Jensen, head gardener of the Busch estate, Mr. Strehle, superintendent of parks in St. Louis, and Mr. Baumann, landscape architect, to have a planting of shrubbery, flower beds, etc.; to make this ornamental, as well as attractive. There is no doubt that in the eight months this board will be up it will give great publicity, and nearly all of the St. Louis people will know of the enterprise.

We have also started a publicity campaign, the first of which appeared in the leading papers last week in the way of editorials commenting on the enterprise.

The Moolah Temple.

Moolah Temple is one of St. Louis' most beautiful structures, consisting of two large auditoriums. We intend to place the trade exhibit in the hall on the main floor, it being without doubt ideal for that purpose. On the upper floor it is the intention of the committee to stage the retail florists' exhibits, using the large stage for effective decoration and special features. There is a balcony in this hall which will seat 1,500 people, thus providing a resting place where a good view can be had of this exhibit. Connected with this is another hall, 40x125 feet, which will be used for lectures. The public at the past shows has shown a great interest in the lectures, and it is the intention of the committee to run them more frequently during the exhibition. The hall has been designed expressly for this purpose. Immediately to the left and right of each entrance are office rooms, one of which can be used by the secretary and officers of the Society of American Florists, the other for the show committee and for press work. There are also suitable places for the meetings of the society and, in fact, for any of the auxiliary organizations to hold their meetings or conventions.

All things considered, the committee thinks that it has the best equipment for conducting the show and convention that it ever had. The cost of the erection of the temporary building used for the main exhibit, it is estimated, will compare favorably with what has been paid in the past for rental, and there are good prospects of leasing to the automobile people for their exhibition and to the Good Roads convention. Also there are several other exhibitions, which we hope te secure and receive rental from.

The committee has arranged to have several leads of water pipe run through the grounds, with three or four outlets. This will enable us to thoroughly water without any damage, and also to keep all dust and dirt off the exhibits. It is the intention of the committee to design this in a beautiful vista effect with rose gardens and groupings of foliage and flowering plants, and with the help and support of the florists' trade this ought to be, indeed, a wonderful spectacle to view.

In a short time the committee will gather in St. Louis to appoint the working committees, and open the office and start the publicity campaign in earnest.

The second preliminary schedule has been sent out by Secretary John Young, and it is hoped that this will receive the consideration of the growers throughout the country. I wish, once more, to impress upon the trade the importance of supporting your committee in doing the work.

Conflicting Dates.

Just a word to the promoters of flower shows throughout the country. There is a likelihood in the near future of a clashing of dates of large shows in this country. It would be better for all concerned if exhibitions could be arranged as the automobile trade does now, by allotment of dates. It brings a hardship upon the exhibitors, both in the trade and in the premium classes, when the shows conflict. Also, where an out-of-town attendance is looked for, it would avoid having a number of prominent exhibitors and trades' people absent by attending a show in another locality.

At the present time, the only large spring exhibition that we know of next year is in New York, and as the dates are fixed from March 14 to 21, just prior to Easter, it will be seen that there will be no conflict there. Thus it can be seen by arrangement there need be no conflict of the dates of exhibitions.

Several times in the past, an instance being last spring when St. Louis and New York exhibitions were being held at about the same dates, a number of people in the trade informed me that they were sorry, as they wished to attend both shows. This also was true in the case of the last big fall show in Cleveland and Chicago, whose dates were identical.

I also wish to call attention to the society's medals which are available as prizes. We are only too glad to offer them where demand is made upon us.

Total	$571.00

At the Houston convention a year ago subscriptions amounting to $634 were reported, making a total of $1,205 the trade has contributed to Miss Jarvis. The second installment no doubt would have been larger had not the following letter been given out for publication in a trade paper while the S. A. F. committee was soliciting contributions:

We wish to call the attention of the trade, and all other persons using or contemplating using Mothers' day for commercial purposes, that the name and emblem of Mothers' day cannot be used on any printed matter or articles for sale. These have been copyrighted and trademarked to protect the Mothers' day movement from commercialism, which is breaking it down on its established lines.

Florists have reaped a rich harvest through the sale of Mothers' day flowers (while we have been lamentably handicapped for real necessities with which to carry on our work), and we must enter our serious objections to their invading the printing field, and infringing upon the legal rights which are used generally for protection of printed matter.

Annually we issue an official poster, leaflets, Sunday school programs for the Mothers' day celebration, and it is expected our friends will use them, or none. We must have some way of existing and meeting the constantly increasing expenses of our work.

We feel if florists understood Mothers' day better they would gladly coöperate with those responsible for the development and perpetuation of the celebration, and we trust in the near future there will be a friendly understanding to this end. In the meantime, we must ask that the trade not only withdraw their printed matter for sale from the market, but be good enough friends to see that any other infringers do the same.

This was over the signature of the Mothers' Day International Association, of which Miss Jarvis is supposed to be founder and head.

OBITUARY.

J. W. Goree.

J. W. Goree, owner of a greenhouse range at Paris, Tex., died at his home in that city August 13 from a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. Goree was taken suddenly ill August 11 and did not regain consciousness. He is survived by his wife, one son, John, and four daughters, Ruth, Pearl, Mabel and Sarah. The funeral services were held August 15. The burial was in Evergreen cemetery.

Mr. Goree was born in Georgia and was 55 years of age. Since his boyhood he had lived in Texas. He started his career as a grower a number of years ago at Whitewright, Tex., and nine years ago moved to Paris, where he erected a greenhouse range. Additions to his establishment were under construction at the time of his death. He recently had visited Chicago and had purchased a large stock of plants for the new greenhouses.

JACOBSEN DISAPPEARS—REPORT.

Chicago detectives are attempting to clear up the mysterious disappearance of John E. Jacobsen, of Muncie, Ind., according to the newspapers.

Mr. Jacobsen came to Chicago about two weeks ago to purchase supplies, and August 10 telegraphed his wife to expect him home the next day. Since then, the papers say, she has heard nothing from him and fears he has met with foul play.

Atlantic City, N. J.—J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, with Mrs. Peterson and their daughter, spent here the week preceding the S. A. F. convention.

Cuyahoga Falls, O.—A newcomer to the trade hereabouts is F. C. Wilson, who will grow cut stock for wholesale and retail sales under the name of Stowe Tavern Greenhouses.

Butler, Pa.—Prosperity has found lodgment in Butler, for a time at least, and as a result William Portmas finds himself so cramped for growing space that the erection of another house is contemplated.

FLORISTS FOLLOW FLAG

HEEDING THE BUGLE CALL.

Florists in Service.

Florists everywhere are joining the various military services of the United States, preparing to go to the battlefields of Europe. Some are in the army as privates, others are either going to the officers' training camps or have returned with commissions, while in some cases they are learning to become aviators. The Review will be glad to hear of those who have forsaken the pursuits of peace for the hazardous duties of a soldier.

Learning to Fly.

Walter Young, of the C. Young & Sons Co., St. Louis, Mo., has enrolled as a student in the United States Signal Corps at Austin, Tex. He now is in the midst of the preliminary training period, at the end of which he will be assigned to the aviation camp at the Texas State University.

Gets a Lieutenancy.

W. A. Elder, of the Lord & Burnham Cleveland office, who enrolled as a member of one of the first officers' training camps, has been commissioned a second lieutenant. He is on a furlough, but expects within a week to go to Camp Sherman, at Chillicothe, O., to assist in training the new army.

Seeking a Commission.

J. R. Cowgill, of Canton, O., is getting his business affairs in condition so that he can join the second officers' training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis. Mr. Cowgill spent several years in the national guard, and this experience, he expects, will be of great help to him in securing a commission.

Physically Fit and Ready.

Frank Ritzenthaler, of Knoble Bros., Cleveland, O., has passed his physical examination and expects soon to be called into service. Mr. Ritzenthaler is one of the best known young men in the trade at Cleveland. He is an enthusiastic fisherman and only a few weeks ago returned from a successful battle with the black bass in a southern Ohio lake. Consequently, he will undoubtedly enjoy the outdoor life of a soldier.

Three Brothers May Go.

"They are all I've got, but Uncle Sam is welcome to them," says Charles W. Wors, of St. Louis, Mo., regarding the probability that his three sons will be in the service of the country before long. Joseph Wors enlisted in the navy some time ago and is stationed at Boston, Mass.; Charles Wors, Jr., last week was accepted for the army, while Arthur Wors is of military age and registered, but has not yet been called for physical examination.

Working and Waiting.

Harry Schlechter, of the George H. Angermueller wholesale house, St. Louis, Mo., laid off long enough last week to take his physical examination for the army. He had been drafted and did not claim exemption. After the examiners told him he was fit physically and had been accepted, Mr. Schlechter returned to the store, and is waiting the call to the mobilization camp.

In Motorcycle Corps.

Edward A. Manda, a son of Joseph A. Manda, West Orange, N. J., is one of the many motorcyclists who will speed for Uncle Sam in Europe when the American troops now in training at Seagirt, N. J., reach the front. He is a member of the Twenty-ninth division headquarters troop. As will be seen by the accompanying illustration, the machines such as Mr. Manda drives are supplied with places for a second soldier.

E. A. Manda and His Mount.

Is Made a Captain.

Joseph H. Barnett, Jr., of Chicago, Ill., was given a commission as captain at the conclusion of the three months of training at the officers' camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis. Mr. Barnett studied horticulture at the University of Illinois, and resigned the position of city forester and landscape gardener at Gary, Ind., to become an army officer.

Jared Moore a Soldier.

One of the members of the trade who did not wait to be drafted into the army is Jared B. Moore, son of Frank L. Moore, Chatham, N. J. He has enlisted and expects soon to be sent to France.

Boston in Arms.

At least twenty-five members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston have enlisted in the army or have been drafted up to date, and the number is expected to reach fifty. Among others are Gordon Fisher, nephew of Peter Fisher, of the Arnold & Fisher Co., Woburn, Mass.; Julius Snyder, of B. A. Snyder & Co., Boston; H. Heckel, salesman for H. M. Robinson & Co., Boston; A. Erickson, of Budlong's, Boston; J. J. Comley, son of N. F. Comley, of Lexington, Mass.

Joins Hospital Service.

Robert V. O'Connor, of South Boston, Mass., has quit the florists' business and enlisted in the hospital service of the army.

PRESIDENT CUTS COAL PRICES.

Reduction $1 Per Ton.

President Wilson took a hand in the coal situation August 21 and, by executive order, cut the prices to approximately $1 per ton less than the maximums fixed by the Council of National Defense and the coal operators at their conference June 28. The action was taken under the powers given the President by the Lever bill.

Ever since the action of June 28, The Review has contended that the prices fixed at that time were no reductions, but merely an affirmation of the prices that obtained previous to that time and since the coal operators got together and raised them January 1. The Review's position brought protestations from Francis S. Peabody, the Chicago coal mine operator, who was the government representative at the June conference. The President's order, the newspaper reports of the action say, was a complete surprise to Mr. Peabody.

The prices fixed by the President, he announced, are based upon the actual cost of production and "are deemed to be not only fair and just, but liberal as well."

The Federal Trade Commission, at the President's order, undertook to determine the production costs in various producing districts. This report was submitted to the President last week and the prices tentatively decreed are based on these costs, plus a reasonable percentage of profit.

Albion, Pa.—A new boiler has been installed at the greenhouses of the Church Floral Co. A good crop of cukes came in handy—coal, delivered, was $5.85 per ton.

Springfield, Ill.—Fire August 17 destroyed the Dome building at the state fair grounds, in which the flower show is staged. The loss, estimated at $150,000, according to B. M. Davison, superintendent of the department of agriculture, will not interfere with plans for the fair, which will open September 7.

which we hope to secure and receive rental from.

The committee has arranged to have several leads of water pipe run through the grounds, with three or four outlets. This will enable us to thoroughly water without any damage, and also to keep all dust and dirt off the exhibits. It is the intention of the committee to design this in a beautiful vista effect with rose gardens and groupings of foliage and flowering plants, and with the help and support of the florists' trade this ought to be, indeed, a wonderful spectacle to view.

In a short time the committee will gather in St. Louis to appoint the working committees, and open the office and start the publicity campaign in earnest.

The second preliminary schedule has been sent out by Secretary John Young, and it is hoped that this will receive the consideration of the growers throughout the country. I wish, once more, to impress upon the trade the importance of supporting your committee in doing the work.

Conflicting Dates.

Just a word to the promoters of flower shows throughout the country. There is a likelihood in the near future of a clashing of dates of large shows in this country. It would be better for all concerned if exhibitions could be arranged as the automobile trade does now, by allotment of dates. It brings a hardship upon the exhibitors, both in the trade and in the premium classes, when the shows conflict. Also, where an out-of-town attendance is looked for, it would avoid having a number of prominent exhibitors and trades' people absent by attending a show in another locality.

At the present time, the only large spring exhibition that we know of next year is in New York, and as the dates are fixed from March 14 to 21, just prior to Easter, it will be seen that there will be no conflict there. Thus it can be seen by arrangement there need be no conflict of the dates of exhibitions.

Several times in the past, an instance being last spring when St. Louis and New York exhibitions were being held at about the same dates, a number of people in the trade informed me that they were sorry, as they wished to attend both shows. This also was true in the case of the last big fall show in Cleveland and Chicago, whose dates were identical.

I also wish to call attention to the society's medals which are available as prizes. We are only too glad to offer them where demand is made upon us.

At the Houston convention a year ago subscriptions amounting to $631 were reported, making a total of $1,205 the trade has contributed to Miss Jarvis. The second installment no doubt would have been larger had not the following letter been given out for publication in a trade paper while the S. A. F. committee was soliciting contributions:

> We wish to call the attention of the trade, and all other persons using or contemplating using Mothers' day for commercial purposes, that the name and emblem of Mothers' day cannot be used on any printed matter or articles for sale. These have been copyrighted and trademarked to protect the Mothers' day movement from commercialism, which is breaking it down on its established lines.
> Florists have reaped a rich harvest through the sale of Mothers' day flowers (while we have been lamentably handicapped for real necessities with which to carry on our work), and we must enter our serious objections to their invading the printing field, and infringing upon the legal rights which are used generally for protection of printed matter.
> Annually we issue an official poster, leaflets, Sunday school programs for the Mothers' day celebration, and it is expected our friends will use them, or none. We must have some way of existing and meeting the constantly increasing expenses of our work.
> We feel if florists understood Mothers' day better they would gladly coöperate with those responsible for the development and perpetuation of the celebration, and we trust in the near future there will be a friendly understanding to this end. In the meantime, we must ask that the trade not only withdraw their printed matter for sale from the market, but be good enough friends to see that any other infringers do the same.

This was over the signature of the Mothers' Day International Association, of which Miss Jarvis is supposed to be founder and head.

OBITUARY.

J. W. Goree.

J. W. Goree, owner of a greenhouse range at Paris, Tex., died at his home in that city August 13 from a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. Goree was taken suddenly ill August 11 and did not regain consciousness. He is survived by his wife, one son, John, and four daughters, Ruth, Pearl, Mabel and Sarah. The funeral services were held August 15. The burial was in Evergreen cemetery.

Mr. Goree was born in Georgia and was 55 years of age. Since his boyhood he had lived in Texas. He started his career as a grower a number of years ago at Whitewright, Tex., and nine years ago moved to Paris, where he erected a greenhouse range. Additions to his establishment were under construction at the time of his death. He recently had visited Chicago and had purchased a large stock of plants for the new greenhouses.

JACOBSEN DISAPPEARS—REPORT.

Chicago detectives are attempting to clear up the mysterious disappearance of John E. Jacobsen, of Muncie, Ind., according to the newspapers.

Mr. Jacobsen came to Chicago about two weeks ago to purchase supplies, and August 10 telegraphed his wife to expect him home the next day. Since then, the papers say, she has heard nothing from him and fears he has met with foul play.

Atlantic City, N. J.—J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, with Mrs. Peterson and their daughter, spent here the week preceding the S. A. F. convention.

Cuyahoga Falls, O.—A newcomer to the trade hereabouts is F. C. Wilson, who will grow cut stock for wholesale and retail sales under the name of Stowe Tavern Greenhouses.

Butler, Pa.—Prosperity has found lodgment in Butler, for a time at least, and as a result William Bortmas finds himself so cramped for growing space that the erection of another house is contemplated.

FLORISTS FOLLOW FLAG

HEEDING THE BUGLE CALL.

Florists in Service.

Florists everywhere are joining the various military services of the United States, preparing to go to the battlefields of Europe. Some are in the army as privates, others are either going to the officers' training camps or have returned with commissions, while in some cases they are learning to become aviators. The Review will be glad to hear of those who have forsaken the pursuits of peace for the hazardous duties of a soldier.

Learning to Fly.

Walter Young, of the C. Young & Sons Co., St. Louis, Mo., has enrolled as a student in the United States Signal Corps at Austin, Tex. He now is in the midst of the preliminary training period, at the end of which he will be assigned to the aviation camp at the Texas State University.

Gets a Lieutenancy.

W. A. Elder, of the Lord & Burnham Cleveland office, who enrolled as a member of one of the first officers' training camps, has been commissioned a second lieutenant. He is on a furlough, but expects within a week to go to Camp Sherman, at Chillicothe, O., to assist in training the new army.

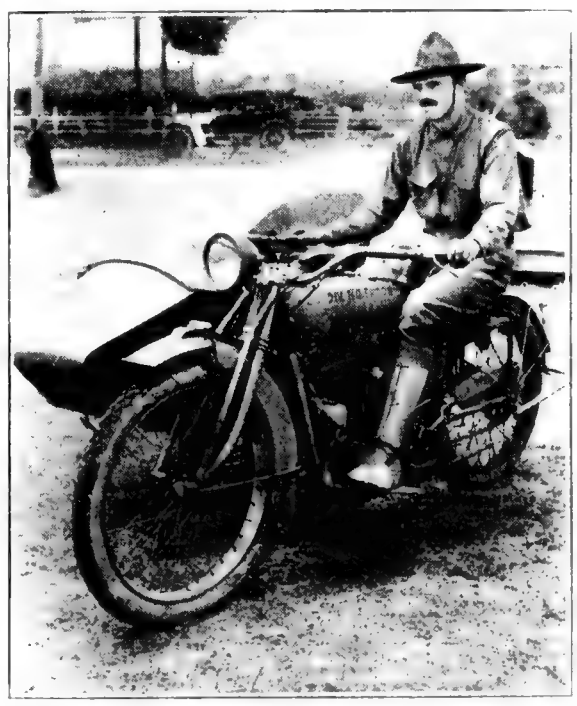
Seeking a Commission.

J. R. Cowgill, of Canton, O., is getting his business affairs in condition so that he can join the second officers' training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis. Mr. Cowgill spent several years in the national guard, and this experience, he expects, will be of great help to him in securing a commission.

Physically Fit and Ready.

Frank Ritzenthaler, of Knoble Bros., Cleveland, O., has passed his physical examination and expects soon to be called into service. Mr. Ritzenthaler is one of the best known young men in the trade at Cleveland. He is an enthusiastic fisherman and only a few weeks ago returned from a successful battle with the black bass in a southern Ohio lake. Consequently, he will undoubtedly enjoy the outdoor life of a soldier.

Three Brothers May Go.



"They are all I've got, but Uncle Sam is welcome to them," says Charles W. Wors, of St. Louis, Mo., regarding the probability that his three sons will be in the service of the country before long. Joseph Wors enlisted in the navy some time ago and is stationed at Boston, Mass.; Charles Wors, Jr., last week was accepted for the army, while Arthur Wors is of military age and registered, but has not yet been called for physical examination.

Working and Waiting.

Harry Schlechter, of the George H. Angermueller wholesale house, St. Louis, Mo., laid off long enough last week to take his physical examination for the army. He had been drafted and did not claim exemption. After the examiners told him he was fit physically and had been accepted, Mr. Schlechter returned to the store, and is waiting the call to the mobilization camp.

In Motorcycle Corps.

Edward A. Manda, a son of Joseph A. Manda, West Orange, N. J., is one of the many motorcyclists who will speed for Uncle Sam in Europe when the American troops now in training at Seagirt, N. J., reach the front. He is a member of the Twenty-ninth division headquarters troop. As will be seen by the accompanying illustration, the machines such as Mr. Manda drives are supplied with places for a second soldier.

E. A. Manda and His Mount.

Is Made a Captain.

Joseph H. Barnett, Jr., of Chicago, Ill., was given a commission as captain at the conclusion of the three months of training at the officers' camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis. Mr. Barnett studied horticulture at the University of Illinois, and resigned the position of city forester and landscape gardener at Gary, Ind., to become an army officer.

Jared Moore a Soldier.

One of the members of the trade who did not wait to be drafted into the army is Jared B. Moore, son of Frank L. Moore, Chatham, N. J. He has enlisted and expects soon to be sent to France.

Boston in Arms.

At least twenty-five members of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston have enlisted in the army or have been drafted up to date, and the number is expected to reach fifty. Among others are Gordon Fisher, nephew of Peter Fisher, of the Arnold & Fisher Co., Woburn, Mass.; Julius Snyder, of B. A. Snyder & Co., Boston; H. Heckel, salesman for H. M. Robinson & Co., Boston; A. Erickson, of Budlong's, Boston; J. J. Comley, son of N. F. Comley, of Lexington, Mass.

Joins Hospital Service.

Robert V. O'Connor, of South Boston, Mass., has quit the florists' business and enlisted in the hospital service of the army.

PRESIDENT CUTS COAL PRICES.

Reduction $1 Per Ton.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1917: President, Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

EARLY mums have appeared. They are to the florists' fall business what the robin is to spring.

THE grower who has valley is fortunate, as nearly every city reports a scarcity.

BECAUSE so many people forget, it is repeated here that anonymous inquiries cannot receive attention. If subscribers will sign their full names and addresses, no inquiry will go unanswered.

THE handsomest piece of printing that comes to The Review each year is the report of the board of park commissioners at Minneapolis. The 1916 volume, just to hand, is in keeping with the high standard of its predecessors. It is a book of 164 pages, with many beautiful illustrations.

THE annual convention of the Association of American Cemetery Superintendents will be held at Barre, Vt., August 28 to 31. The Barre Entertainment Association, organized to arrange for the convention, announces that the visitors will be the guests of the New England superintendents at Boston the last day of the convention.

AN object which should be in the mind of every florist not so situated is the accumulation of sufficient capital so that bills can be paid monthly with unfailing regularity. There is just one way to reach such independence—by spending a little less than one's income, by conserving the profit. About the hardest thing most of us have to do is to keep from spending at least as fast as we make, but it is worth the effort.

DUTCH BULBS, a large part of the season's supply, are on the water, according to the New York office of the Holland-America line, which this week notified several importers that one of its steamers sailed from Rotterdam August 18 with a cargo consisting principally of bulbs.

EVERYBODY HAPPY.

An advertiser who has been carrying a 1-inch business card in The Review writes to double his space, and says:

The results have been very gratifying.—Missouri Pottery & Supply Co., St. Louis, Mo., August 10, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CONFIDENCE.

"The retail florists of the United States never were more confident of a good season's business." The speaker was B. Eschner, president of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, at the New York convention this week. "I am not talking generalities," continued Mr. Eschner, "but I have the fact in the most definite and exact form—in the largest number, size and value of orders for fall delivery ever on the books of our house.

"These orders do not come from any one part of the country, but from all over the United States. Practically every traveler we employ has had a record summer trip. It seems to me to be the most conclusive evidence that business will be good with florists this fall—it isn't possible everybody is wrong, and they all are buying more heavily than ever before."

GOOD AND BAD ACCOUNTS.

The receiver for a St. Louis floral company, in winding up its affairs, discovered that there were many unpaid accounts on the books. The fact that the company had turned its business over to the court for liquidation would tend to show that these accounts were uncollectable. The receiver found that not only were a majority of these accounts collectable, but many of them were paid promptly upon notification.

Every account that the florist loses comes out of his net profits. When credit is given there is bound to be some loss. But many times there would be less loss if the florist would make a continuous effort to get his money. That old feeling that to insist on payment might "insult" the customer and drive him from the store, is not in accord with modern business methods. No person can be insulted if asked in a proper manner to pay an account he has contracted.

Care in extending credit and vigilance in collecting accounts are two prime requisites in the successful conduct of the florists' business.

SUBSTITUTION AN ERROR.

In the early days of the trade there may have been justification in substituting when one could not fill an order exactly as given, but today the case is entirely different.

When local supplies were small it may have been excusable, or even commendable, to send something that might possibly be used in place of the stock ordered. Now, with much larger local supplies, it is to be presumed that a man who orders a definite article wants just that thing; if a substitution is to be made he can make it himself from the stock he naturally has on hand or can get at home. Or, if the stock ordered is not for immediate consumption, the man who orders is entitled to the chance to say whether or not the substitution will be satisfactory to him. It is not enough to give value for money received. If the exact stock cannot be supplied, the money should be returned or a chance given to order a substitute.

The other day a florist sent 2,000 miles for 150 strong 3-inch smilax plants, because he needed just that. When he opened the box it contained 316 smilax plants from 2-inch pots. They may have been worth the same money, but they did not serve the same purpose—the buyer had plenty of that grade of stock right at home.

When a substitute is shipped it frequently is a total loss; the plants are worthless if returned and the express company will not accept them for return unless the victim of the substitution will guarantee the return charges.

PLAYING ONE HORSE.

Diffused advertising in the several trade journals of one field is considered an extravagant method in that there is a certain amount of overlapping of circulation. It is called the duplication of advertising, as distinct from the repetition of advertising.

Therefore the cleverest advertisers concentrate their advertising in the dominant trade journal of the trade they want to reach. Instead of backing every horse in the race, they are interested in one, the leading publication, the one with the largest circulation and, therefore, the most advertising.

Of The Review there have been printed not less than 12,000 copies of any issue in the last two years. How many florists do you think there are who do not subscribe to The Review? The Review also leads in advertising volume because it brings business to the advertiser at the lowest cost per sale, like this:

Please do not print my ad of snapdragons in the next issue, as I requested. I am sold out and the orders are still coming in. I must say, for quick results, advertise in The Review.—L. H. Curry, Roseville, Ill., August 15, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Taken by and large, the condition of the wholesale cut flower market is not unsatisfactory. It is true that city trade the last week has been exceedingly quiet, but the demand from out of town, which has been strong and steady, easily made up for the lethargy of the local trade.

Probably the principal feature of the market is the great quantities of asters which arrived during the last week. Although it was said that many plants had been killed this year by stem-rot, the tremendous quantities which arrived indicate that the damage done could not have been extensive. Although much inferior quality stock is arriving, there are certainly enough good asters to meet the demand, which

We Never Lose Faith in the Future of Our Business

ASSEMBLING the product of dozens of skilled growers, most of them specialists in their respective lines, provides the largest supply of high grade Cut Flowers to be found in any one wholesale house—it makes this the most satisfactory source of supply any buyer can have.

The steady annual growth of our business, continued even in an off year, proves we are on the right road.

In our experience it is better to give a man more than he expects than to have him disappointed after extravagant claims.

But, really, relying on Amling isn't a matter of experiment at all—many do it, buyers and growers, and most of them are classed among the shrewdest and most successful men in the trade. Our prosperity—indeed, our very existence—depends on the fact that those who buy or sell through Amling's make money by so doing. It has and it does pay others to rely on Amling—it will pay you. At least, investigate.

We consider our facilities to be the best in Chicago

Our business is large enough to warrant our maintaining the best possible equipment for handling Cut Flowers and for dispatching orders promptly, carefully packed. If we knew of any improvement which could be made in our equipment—or of more capable men than we employ—we should let nothing stand in the way of improving our service.

In the new season now at hand we shall relax no effort—we have again increased our space, our staff and our supply of good stock—we want additional business and we shall seek to merit the continued patronage of everyone who gives us a trial.

Our price list appears on this page of The Review each week. It quotes everything seasonable in Cut Flowers and Greens, including many varieties and novelties not to be had elsewhere. This page is worth watching.

USE THE GLADIOLUS

Use it for window displays—use it for baskets—sprays and decorative work.

It's the flower to use—to sell and to recommend. No other flower will pay you so well in the summer. The quality of other flowers is at its lowest—while the Gladiolus is at its best. You will find a large and most varied supply in Chicago. It has been my specialty for years—having exhibited Prize Winning Stock in the severest competition.

Here are some of my specialties:
America, Beulah, Black Hawk, Dawn, Francis King, Golden King, Halley, Niagara, Pink Beauty, Velvet King and ten others.

is only fair. The best call is for white, with pink, purple and lavender next in order.

American Beauties are commencing to arrive in slightly larger quantities, growers commencing to cut from the new crop. They are in excellent demand. Of the other varieties Russell still leads. The supply is better than it has been and the color also has improved. Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty are next in demand. White Killarney also sells well and the supply, which is short, was at times insufficient to meet the demand. Yellow roses, however, are not finding a good market. The supply of roses is mostly of the medium and shorter grades and these also are in the greatest demand, as they are utilized mainly for funeral work.

A few field carnations of fair quality, considering the season, are coming in. The color is mostly white. They sell fairly well.

Gladioli are plentiful and are selling satisfactorily. There is also a good supply of Easter lilies, which meet with a fair demand. Valley is a little scarce. Orchids are practically unobtainable. The supply of gypsophila has decreased considerably as compared with last week. The first chrysanthemums of good quality have made their appearance.

Various Notes.

When the deep well air compressor at the Bassett & Washburn plant, at Greggs Station, Ill., broke down last week, there might have been considerable trouble had it not been for the resourcefulness of Andrew Benson, foreman. About one-half mile from the greenhouses lies a small lake, and to this lake Mr. Benson ran a 1¼-inch steam pipe. A pump was erected at the side of the lake and with this apparatus water is being forced through a 2-inch pipe into the reservoir. The difference in level between the top of the reservoir and the lake surface is about twenty-five feet.

There are a number of growers who think that the popularity of Russell will wane as rapidly as it grew. Among those who look for the variety to be comparatively short-lived is Emil Buettner, who says he thinks it will be displaced, in all probability, by one of Hill's Ophelia seedlings, the one having a flower of the size of Russell and the color of Bridesmaid at its deepest and best.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The hot weather had an unfavorable effect on business, but cooler days have brightened up conditions considerably. The main feature in business has been funeral work, with a fair sprinkling of wedding orders. The principal item of stock is gladioli; they are in excessive supply, and apparently all growers are producing them. The favorable conditions under which they have developed this season have made them extremely good. The white varieties, however, have not done so well. The demand for roses has been large this week, but the supply has not been sufficient. White roses are scarce and the demand for them is heavy.

The supply of Easter lilies is adequate, but the call is light. The same may be said of rubrums and giganteums. Asters are scarce, especially those of good quality, while many show the effects of the hot weather. The carnation crop is about over, there being few flowers on the market. There are a few good dahlias, but the demand is poor. Good pompons are arriving and sell well. Feverfew, achilleas, snapdragons, candytuft, bachelor's buttons, coreopsis and zinnias are plentiful, but the demand for them is chiefly for cemetery work. Sweet peas are neither good nor plentiful; good stock is difficult to procure at any price. Magnolia leaves and galax are utilized considerably during the summer season. The supply of greens meets all demands. Blooming plants are not plentiful. A few good gloxinias are seen.

Various Notes.

J. W. Langenbach, of Albion, has returned from an automobile trip through the Berkshires. He purchased a 7-passenger car and made the initial trip to Norwich, Conn. His father, F. J. Langenbach, a florist of Norwich, accompanied him. The whole trip of more than 1,500 miles was made without puncture or engine trouble. J. W. Langenbach has a 100-foot house of sweet peas, which he hopes to have in the market during the early days of December. Business with him has been good.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The cut flower market continues dull. There are plenty of flowers to meet a light demand. Asters are the principal flowers; Semple's Branching asters are fine. Any that remain of the earlier varieties are poor. Most of the gladioli are poor and the quality is falling off. The price is low. There has been a fair demand for Easter lilies. The supply is smaller and the price has advanced. Cattleyas are quite scarce at high prices. Valley is to be had on timely notice. There are some good Russells and Beauties, besides fine flowers of other roses that stood the summer sun. A few hydrangeas are sold. Not much green is apt to accumulate.

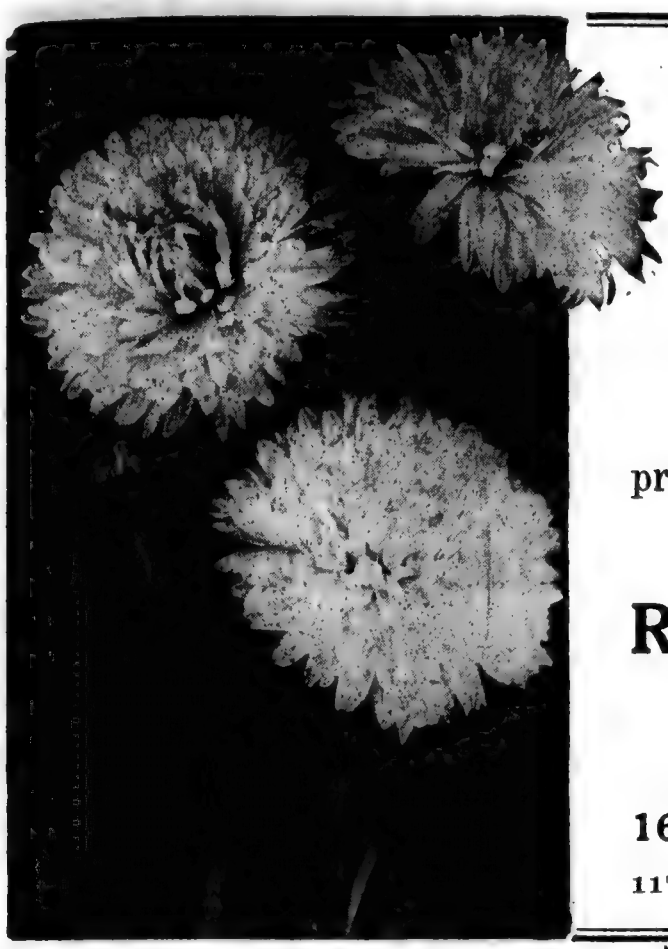
The Belgian Mission.

A ripple of activity disturbed the slumbering summer sea of business August 20 when the Belgian mission came to Philadelphia just for a day. The Chamber of Commerce tendered the visitors a luncheon of perhaps 600 covers at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. The Manufacturers' Club gave them a dinner in the evening. The decorations, arranged by Harry W. Jones, of J. J. Habermehl's Sons, were of flags of the two countries, Belgium and our own, of plants and of cut flowers. In order to make the visitors feel at home, Mr. Jones sent for an extra supply of well trimmed bay trees. The cut flowers, arranged in low baskets, were of the Belgian national colors, red, yellow and black. Can you guess the flowers? The red was Gladiolus Mrs. Francis King; the yellow and black were supplied by sunflowers. The guests left in the evening for New York.

Coal.

There are times when it requires some special aim to keep at work, an aim much higher than mere money return, important as that return must be. The aim in writing this column is, and always has been, to try to benefit my brother florists, to interest and amuse them, too, but, most of all, to benefit them; to tell them any little thing that may be of value to them; to tell it without fear or favor. This is merely introductory.

John R. Andre, of Doylestown, is a successful florist and a successful coal merchant. Mr. Andre was asked the question August 16, "Should florists buy their coal now?" Mr. Andre replied positively that they should. "There is always a possibility," Mr. Andre said, "of being wrong, but all the indications point to the danger of waiting. Even now deliveries are slow. While prices may go down, it is most unlikely that they will do so."



Mr. Eisele Is Speaking.

There is a little group of people seated on the porch of a homelike house at Riverton. It is J. D. Eisele's house and it is Mr. Eisele who is speaking:

"It looks as though we should have to adapt ourselves to some changes this season. Take, for example, the almost certain absence of azaleas and araucarias from abroad. We have an excellent substitute for the azaleas ready at hand. The hydrangea, now that we have the new French varieties, should make a splendid substitute. For certain purposes Hydrangea otaksa will continue to hold a leading place. The variety of color and form shown in the French varieties, combined with their grace, makes them invaluable for decorative purposes. The embargo that the railroads have at times placed on freight and the difficulty in securing freight cars," Mr. Eisele continued, "has made increased need for motor truck delivery. We had shipments of plants for Cuba and Mexico at a time when conditions were particularly bad. We sent the boxes of plants by motor, direct to the docks in New York, insuring their catching the boats in time. There have been cases where, with an embargo in effect on one railroad and a shortage of freight cars on the other railroad, we have used our own trucks for long-distance delivery, with good results.

"We generally carry a good lot of coal over each summer as an insurance. This summer we are taking no chances and have ordered all our coal for both places for a year. Delivery is slow, but we expect to get it all before October. The price is so high that it has given us much anxiety. I find, however, that people are reasonable. They do not object to paying a fair advance on plants where it is necessary to ask it."

The Club Meeting.

Monday, August 13, the Gardeners' and Florists' Club held one of the best attended meetings it has had in a long time, the reason for this being the special business for the evening. At the July meeting the question, "Should the production of cut flowers for the season be limited on account of war conditions?" was made the special order of business for this meeting, and each member of the club was notified.

As one sat and listened to the discussion pro and con, one could not help but notice the spirit of optimism that is steadily growing among florists over the future of the florists' business. Everyone who spoke on the subject reported that up to this time his books showed a larger volume of business done, but with profits diminished. This naturally brought out the fact that it is costing the grower more to produce flowers and the retailer more to sell them, bringing the question down to a readjustment of prices.

It was most interesting to note the deep thought and study that had been given to this question by everyone. It is a thing which I feel sure will be of great value to everyone in the trade, for this investigation has given every man a deeper insight into his business. The unanimous opinion was that each man should grow all the stock he could; that he should make it a point to eliminate inferior quality and to increase the selling price of his commodity in proportion to the increase in the production account. If this resolution is carried out faithfully—and there is no reason why it cannot be—the florist has nothing to fear from war conditions of the future.

Various Notes.

That the people, and many of the florists themselves, have no conception of the quantity of flowers used in our city daily, was forcibly brought home to me August 17. Just before closing time I visited the store of the S. S. Pennock Co. and J. J. Perry, the manager, showed me through the cooling vaults, of which there are two. One of these, 15x30 feet, was filled with rubrum and Harrisii lilies and gladioli. There were 1,000 each of the lilies and 6,000 of the gladioli, with the day's morning cut still to come. I remarked to Mr. Perry that this was a lot of stock to move in half a day, but he informed me that there were orders on the books then for half of it and that at closing time Saturday they would be cleaned up. In the other vault roses, asters, hydrangeas, Golden Glow and a little of everything were to be seen.

At the establishment of the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co. some fine asters and Harrisii were to be seen. H. Glick reported business good in all stock for funeral work.

At the Leo Niessen Co. store I found H. F. Ekas. He told me last week that he would be off on his vacation, but this was a case of where "the best laid schemes o' mice an' men gang aft agley," for they were so busy, with a bookkeeper in the hospital, that Mr. McKissick found it necessary to recall him.

Busy times in the middle of August! Yet some people have fears for the future of the florists' business. In a lifetime's connection with the florists' business I have never seen a summer during which such a volume of business has been done by florists as this one. Of course, I realize that there is a reason for this, that there has not been a week this summer that two or three prominent people did not die, and added to this has been the great number of war weddings. Does not this extraordinary midsummer business demonstrate clearly that flowers are being used for these occasions despite the war, and perhaps more profusely than formerly? At every place the report was the same: "We have a war wedding for this week."

In these turbulent times it gives me pleasure to report some greenhouse building. P. C. Erdman is erecting a range of three houses, each 28x150, out on Taylor avenue, and this range can be depended upon for some fine sweet peas next winter.

Robert L. Graham left last week for Niagara Falls, returning via New York for the convention. He will spend the remainder of August at Atlantic City. His daughters, the Misses Margaret, Jessie and Mabel, have returned from a ten days' vacation at the seaside resort.

Baltimore's trade seems to have been most fortunate regarding the draft. I have not heard of a young man among florists who has been taken. Otto H. Guerth has an idea of what it is to work for Uncle Sam during war times. Since June 5 he has been secretary for the exemption board of the Fourth district, which meets in his store at 733 West Baltimore street.

Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, had some new dahlias on exhibition at the club that made the boys sit up and take notice. The perfection to which this flower is now being grown is marvelous. Mr. Vincent told me—in a manner as if it were an everyday occurrence—that his company had a shipment of geraniums for China that day.

The Market.

Last week was quiet in the cut flower market and convention week opened equally so. There has been a big surplus of asters and gladioli. Few American Beauties are arriving and most of those are small. The good flowers find ready sale at prices up to $25 per hundred. Hadley roses have arrived and sold last week for from $6 to $8 per hundred. Some fine Russells brought $10 per hundred. Most of the roses, however, are small and open quickly. These sell at from 50 cents to $2 and $3 per hundred. The demand for good roses is greater than the supply.

The market is bare of carnations. Lilies are in abundance. Longiflorums sold August 18 at $2.50 per hundred. Some of the finest flowers brought as high as $5 per hundred. There is little call for rubrums. Valley still is scarce and $8 per hundred was offered, but the supply was not sufficient for the demand. The few perfect gigas that arrived brought $1.50 and $2 each. The latter is said to be a record quotation.

The market is overloaded with the usual variety of summer flowers. There are fine flowers of Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora in the market. Goldenrod is at its best. There also are water lilies, sunflowers, daisies and cosmos; in fact, anything and everything from outdoors.

Various Notes.

Many vacationists have returned ruddy and healthy, and in fine condition for the coming season.

New York florists are putting their stores in condition for the coming season by redecorating and making other repairs.

A. J. Guttman celebrated his fortieth birthday August 15.

George O. Sullivan has returned from a vacation of two months spent at Spring Valley, N. Y.

Clarence Slinn is receiving some fine Sylvia and Burgess dahlias

George W. Crawbuck last week attended the dinner of the Rotary Club, of which he is a member.

The Cadieux Co. decorated the Majestic hotel for a wedding August 15, and this week has a similar decoration at Plainfield, N. J.

J. J. Coan is again back at his headquarters, 115 West Twenty-eighth street. The store has had its annual redecoration. Walter Singleman, Mr. Coan's head salesman, returns from his honeymoon trip this week.

C. C. Trepel's store at Fifty-ninth street and Lexington avenue will be one of the largest in the world when completed. Fifty marble tables will be used for the display of cut flowers and plants. On the roof, additions are being made to the show houses and greenhouses. Mr. Trepel has purchased the store adjoining and mirror effects on a large scale are contemplated. He expects that everything will be complete by October 1.

The Walter R. Siebrecht Co. will be succeeded this week by the Barney B. Jacobs Co. Prominent in the new company are Barney B. Jacobs, Samuel Salsberg and Mary E. Persico. Mr. Siebrecht will retain an interest in the company. Messrs. Jacobs and Salsberg have had some twenty years' experience in the business, having been in the employ of several of the leading wholesalers. The present location will be retained. Mr. Siebrecht leaves in September for Pasadena, Cal., where he will grow orchids and nursery stock.

George Mitchell, of the United Cut Flower Co., has returned from a two weeks' vacation in New England.

Many improvements have been made to the store and offices of the Growers' Cut Flower Co., of which Anton Schultheis is president.

Frank C. Woodruff, of S. D. Woodruff & Sons, seedsmen, is in California.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has received the first of the French bulb importations, consisting of narcissi, freesias and Roman hyacinths.

Uriah Goldberg, manager for Russin & Hanfling, has returned from a two weeks' western trip, including Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo.

H. E. Froment has returned from a two weeks' visit at Saratoga. After the convention he will spend two weeks in the Adirondacks. His office has been doubled in size, with a more convenient arrangement. Philip Ditzenberger, head salesman, is back from his three weeks' vacation at Atlantic City; W. Sampson and family are at their bungalow at Closson's Point, and Miss Mabel Conklin has returned from Sackett Lake in the Catskills, where she spent seven weeks with Mr. and Mrs. George Bennett, of Flatbush.

Robert C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., president of the S. A. F., arrived in New York August 17, and with Secretary John Young spent several busy days getting ready for the convention.

J. Austin Shaw.

Thomas Reynolds, 757 Manhattan avenue, Brooklyn, has returned home from St. Catherine's hospital, where surgeons amputated the second finger of his right hand to prevent the spread of blood poison. The infection, Mr. Reynolds believes, was caused by a wire or a rose thorn. It was necessary to remove the finger and the bones and tendons back of it to the wrist, which is said to be an unusual surgical feat.

THE original Album of Designs was published in response to many requests from florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book that could be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it was not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it would be when ready for use. With the publication of this album it became possible to show the finished work in beautifully printed pictures. The first edition sold like hot cakes, a second and third edition went quickly. Now a fourth edition is off the press. Everything is in it—all the standard designs and many new pieces.

Florists' Publishing Co., 508 South Dearborn Street, (Caxton Building) Chicago, Ill.

It will be several months before Mr. Reynolds will again be at the store.

NEWARK, N. J.

Dahlias have come upon the stage during the last ten days and now play a leading part. Gladioli, asters and Easter lilies are plentiful enough, but outside of these and hydrangea blooms there is little variety. Counter sales have been few, but war weddings and funeral work have kept some of the stores busy.

W. H. Witheridge smilingly remarks that he is content with business. Funerals have been more numerous this summer, it seems.

George Penek has returned from his vacation at Asbury Park. Business has been quiet at the Penek store, but it averages better than that of last summer.

Word has been received at Millburn, N. J., of the death at Jupiter, Fla., of Mrs. Sarah Wilson, wife of John Wilson, after a few hours' illness of typhoid fever. The Wilsons were residents of Millburn and Short Hills for many years. Mr. Wilson's range at Short Hills was completely destroyed by a snow storm four years ago, entailing a loss of $40,000. Soon afterward Mr. and Mrs. Wilson removed to Florida, where Mr. Wilson started a florists' business. Besides her husband, Mrs. Wilson is survived by several children.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

Last week was an exceedingly wet one and, for the greater part, a cool one. As a result asters are holding up well; in fact, I doubt if there have ever been better asters grown in Nashville. Some of the florists are growing their stock in lath houses, and this seems to be just the thing needed in this climate. Growers farther south may find that this method will solve their aster problem.

Roses continue scarce and, of course, there are no carnations. Gladioli are plentiful and of excellent quality. Business was good last week, thanks to funeral work.

The Joy Floral Co. is rebuilding and refurnishing its store. A large balcony will contain the office, as well as serve for storage purposes. This doubles the floor space of the salesroom and permits the installation of several new refrigerating show cases. Thomas Joy was unable to attend to business last week on account of an operation. Tom's tonsils simply had to be removed.

Leo Geny and family left by auto for Louisville last week. They visited friends there for some days, after which they made a tour of a number of the larger growers.

J. Ewing, of McKay, Reese & Co., is away on his vacation. He will inspect seed crops before his return.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Club Meeting.

The Lancaster County Florists' Club was entertained by B. F. Barr, Thursday evening, August 16, at his country home. More than thirty were in attendance. Inspection of the Barr grounds revealed fine plantings of conifers and specimen shrubbery. Considerable space is being planted to shade trees, spaced for specimen stock. The fourteen acres of tobacco, almost ready for housing, is not surpassed in Lancaster county. The registered Holstein cows are among the finest.

President H. A. Schroyer called the meeting to order on the porch, after cigars had been passed to all. Fred Ritchey gave an interesting account of a 1600-mile auto trip through the New England states. Arthur Niessen, of Philadelphia, who has been visiting many of the growers throughout the county in his car, was present and made some remarks. He thinks the prospects for the florists' business for the coming year are bright and says that his company is preparing to do the largest amount of business in its history. He pointed out two valuable points to growers, that they should keep a sharp eye on any unnecessary expense and that they should grow the best stock possible.

The Market.

The market is in better condition now than for several weeks. The supply is not so heavy and the demand is steadier and better. Toward the end of last week the stock was cleaned up more easily than during previous weeks.

Roses are in fair supply and the average quality of the daily cut is improving. Asters are in adequate supply and meet with an active market. Gladioli are plentiful, but the weather is dry and it is hard to tell just how much longer the cut will continue to be heavy. Easter lilies have become scarce; rubrums sell well. Some hardy hydrangeas may be had. Greens are plentiful. Ferns, bronze galax and new leucothoe have a good sale.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Herr and son Irwin spent a number of days fishing on the Susquehanna river and made some really wonderful catches of black bass.

Ira H. Landis has almost completed the shipping of his large planting of gladioli.

L. S. Landis pleasantly entertained some of his friends at his orchard farm, Cold Springs, when the early peaches were ripe.

Maurice J. Brinton, of Christiana, is chairman of the eastern exemption board of the county.

Paul Murphy, manager of the B. F. Barr & Co. store, expects to be called to the colors at any time and will be much missed by his employers and his many friends. H. K. R.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The market is in better condition now than for several weeks. The supply is not so heavy and the demand is steadier and better. Toward the end of last week the stock was cleaned up more easily than during previous weeks.

Roses are in fair supply and the average quality of the daily cut is improving. Asters are in adequate supply and meet with an active market. Gladioli are plentiful, but the weather is dry and it is hard to tell just how much longer the cut will continue to be heavy. Easter lilies have become scarce; rubrums sell well. Some hardy hydrangeas may be had. Greens are plentiful. Ferns, bronze galax and new leucothoe have a good sale.

Various Notes.

The flower show at the Carthage fair last week was the best in the history of the Hamilton County Agricultural Society. Director C. Delaney Martin, who

TO KEEP NARCISSI DORMANT.

How shall I care for Paper White narcissus bulbs to keep them dormant until the last planting? The bulbs begin to grow after a few weeks and we are forced to plant them. K. G.—Kan.

I find the best plan is to place all the Paper Whites in flats as soon as received. By holding the flats in a cold cellar just clear of freezing in winter, we held some bulbs until early in May last season. C. W.

The Market.

Not much can be said about the cut flower market these days. Two items continue dominant, gladioli and asters. Prices on the first-named are low, even for fancy spikes of Panama, Chicago White, America and other good sorts. Asters are not so good in quality as they have been. The early sorts are on the wane and heavy thunder storms have damaged many. Prices average fully as good as in previous years, however. Lilies, both longiflorums and speciosums, are abundant and cheap. Carnations are out of the market and roses are not of good quality, but they are selling somewhat better than they did. Valley is scarce and high-priced. Cattleyas are almost unprocurable, but some white phalænopsis is available. A few gardenias of good quality are coming in. Sweet peas are short-stemmed, but in demand for wedding bouquets, which are having a steady call this summer. Outside of a few perennials, such as liatris and aconitums and some everlastings, there are hardly any other flowers coming in, and anyone having calls for choice flowers has hard work to fill orders satisfactorily.

Various Notes.

At the store of D. & E. J. Welch business for July and August has been decidedly better than a year ago. I am sorry to report that E. J. Welch recently met with a painful accident at Old Orchard, Me. He was below an automobile which was temporarily hors de combat, and when the machine started up suddenly two wheels passed over Mr. Welch's legs. He sustained in addition an injury to his spine. The accident spoiled his vacation in considerable measure, but, fortunately, he is now convalescing nicely.

Among the numerous local men connected with the trade who have been drafted are Gordon Fisher, nephew of Peter Fisher, of the Arnold & Fisher Co., Woburn; Julius Snyder, of B. A.

At Penn's both wedding and funeral business has been good for August. August 18, for the wedding of Miss Whipple, daughter of Sherman Whipple, a noted local attorney, the bride's bouquet was composed entirely of valley. August 20, for another large wedding, white phalænopsis and valley were used, and for still another wedding, August 23, orchids and valley were again used. There were church and house decorations for each of these large weddings.

William H. Elliott is cutting a fine lot of Kaiserin, Ophelia, American Beauty and Hadley roses. The last named is just coming in nicely. Mr. Elliott prefers to rest in the Maine woods rather than attend the New York S. A. F. convention.

The coal situation remains quite acute. Many growers have received none of their next season's supply and at the present price of $9 per ton for bituminous, which is double that of a year ago, growers state that they would be able to just about break even. Anthracite coal is arriving rather more freely than bituminous and there is not a great difference in the prices of the two varieties.

Among visitors last week we were glad to welcome J. W. Duncan, formerly assistant superintendent of parks here, for some years in charge of the Spokane, Wash., park system. Mr. Duncan will attend the New York convention. Other visitors included Thomas A. Havemeyer, of New York; Adolph Miller, of the De Kalb Nurseries, Norristown, Pa., and William Graham, of Greenwich, Conn.

Norris F. Comley is cutting a good grade of roses now. He has Francis Scott Key, Red Radiance, Stanley, Ward, Hoosier Beauty and Shawyer, in addition to the Killarneys.

Henry M. Robinson & Co. are keeping quite busy this month and are receiving fine shipments of roses, asters, gladioli, sweet peas and other seasonable flowers. They are also active in their large sundries department.

Wheeler & Co., of Waban, are cutting a nice lot of Phalænopsis amabilis, which are in demand for weddings. They are the only local growers sending in good gardenias. They have a splendid lot of cattleyas and many of the labiatas have their buds prominent in the sheaths.

William Sim, of Cliftondale, is one of the heaviest local shippers of asters at present. His aster crop will soon be over. Of tomatoes he is picking heavily, Comet being his favorite variety.

At the establishment of Patrick Welch the best demand at present is for valley and white roses. Mr. Welch left August 19 for the New York convention, going via Portland, Me.

Martin Wax is having excellent success fishing at his private camp at Crocker Point, Me., and has forwarded some fine boxes of trout to his friends. Business with Wax Bros. has held up well this month.

William H. Carr is receiving a fine lot of Liatris pycnostachya and aconitums, which make attractive subjects for window displays.

B. A. McGinty, at the Coöperative Market, now is handling all the roses from the Quidnick Greenhouses, of Quidnick, R. I. They include Ophelia, Double White Killarney and other popular sorts.

Local seed and bulb merchants have received some good orders for Dutch bulbs, but are in doubt as to whether the bulbs will arrive from Holland. Freesias have sold extremely well. Stocks of vegetable seeds were never so low. Hardly a pea or bean now is obtainable at any of the stores and, with every probability of an increased call in 1918, dealers wonder where they will be able to secure sufficient seeds. Many growers, both commercial and private, are saving vegetable seeds this season in anticipation of shortages.

A. H. Hews & Co. have not prepared any stock of azalea pots this season, as prospects of any arriving from Belgium are remote. They are uncertain whether to accumulate stocks for bulbs or not, considering the uncertainty of any coming in from Holland. Their season so far has been a good one, labor troubles being the great drawback.

The Janiten & Wollrath Co., of Clematis Brook, have a splendid lot of Cincinnati, Lorraine, Mrs. Heal and other winter begonias, in addition to cyclamens, primulas, poinsettias and other plants. The company has practically transformed its establishment, which was formerly devoted entirely to roses, now specializing in pot plants, in which they are undoubtedly successful.

Boston and vicinity sent a fair representation to the New York convention, the majority preferring the water route. Memories of uncomfortable climatic conditions at the convention here three years ago and a fear of similar discomfort in New York kept not a few at home.

James Wheeler has finished cutting his early asters, but has a large batch of midseason and late varieties in fine condition. His carnations now are well established and starting to flower.

No finer gladioli are coming into the market than the Panama and America handled by M. Liebman for Peter Hylen, of Randolph. W. N. C.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

Summer dullness still holds the market, and aside from the morning sales there is little doing. There was much stock shipped in, with but little that could be called first-class. There were quantities of asters and gladioli. Carnations are few, and those that arrive are of poor quality and little in demand. Roses also are poor and show the effects of the hot weather. Hydrangeas and tuberoses are not so plentiful as usual at this time of the year. Valley and orchids continue scarce. The few Easter and auratum lilies sell at sight. Other flowers in the market are Shasta daisies, snapdragons, cornflowers, calendulas and gypsophilas. Some fine smilax arrived last week and there is plenty of asparagus and galax.

ciation held its annual picnic August 16 at upper Creve Coeur lake. The day was fine, the attendance large and every one had a good time. It was agreed that it was the best outing the association ever has held. Many St. Louis florists also attended.

There was a program of sports for the young and old, and Deutschmann's band furnished music for the dancers, while the big lake attracted the fishermen, the banks being lined all day.

Among the winners of the contests were Mrs. Hugo Werner, who won a stein; Mrs. W. C. Smith and W. J. Pilcher, the dancing contest; Mrs. William Meier, a clock, the prize in the guessing contest; Miss Edwards, daughter of William Edwards, the carnation grower, the prize in the ball throwing contest, and Arthur Lampert, of the Windler force, won a ham in the horseshoe pitching contest.

The baseball game between the wholesalers and growers was enjoyed by the crowd. The game ended in a victory for the growers by a score of 4 to 1, but the wholesalers put the blame for their defeat on W. A. Rowe, who acted as umpire.

Various Notes.

The opening of the new Post-Dispatch building August 13 created considerable work for the florists. The office was filled with floral designs. A 10-foot vase with a top-dressing of 100 American Beauty roses from Vandervoort's floral department, and a 10-foot horseshoe made by Grimm & Gorly, were the largest among the many seen.

George Waldbart and John Hoolihan made an automobile trip as far south as De Soto August 12, visiting the members of the trade in that section. Count von Hoffmann cut his vacation trip short and returned to the store last week.

It seems probable that three sons of Charles Wors will see service before the war is over. Joseph Wors already is in the navy and is stationed at Boston; Charles, Jr., was accepted for the army last week, and Arthur has been drafted, but not yet summoned for examination. Mr. Wors says: "They are all I've got, but Uncle Sam is welcome to them."

A boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. William Ossick August 14, and their friends in the trade are extending congratulations.

Harry Schlechter, of the force at George H. Angermueller's store, was accepted for the army last week. He did not claim exemption. He is at the store waiting to be called.

Edward Pieper, head of the Pieper Floral Co., is supervising the erection of the new store building at St. Louis and Grand avenues. The building is near completion and Mr. Pieper expects to open for business the latter part of September.

Funeral work continued heavy at the store of Grimm & Gorly last week. Letters from Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gorly said they had a good time at the northern resorts they visited and that they were leaving for New York to attend the S. A. F. convention.

Joseph Hauser, of Webster, is sending a fine lot of asters in various colors to the William C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. He soon will be cutting dahlias.

Edward Eisner, recently with Schiller the Florist, of Chicago, has taken a position as designer with Grimm & Gorly.

George Rye, "Some Florist," of Fort Smith, Ark., was a visitor last week. Mr. Rye was on his way east for a ten days' vacation.

has many friends in the trade here, spent last week in St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Berning returned August 15 from a ten days' trip to Yellowstone park.

Miss Marie Richeson, designer for Thomas Carr, at the Union Market store, is away on a vacation for ten days.

Jules Bourdet spent last week fishing along the east side of the river. He reported excellent luck.

Albert Gumz, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., is bringing fine eating pears from his farm near Sappington, Mont., much to the delight of his friends.

Foster, the Florist, has several thousand fine Boston ferns at the Marcus avenue greenhouses, grown especially for the retail store at 703 Olive street.

It is rumored that the new Statler hotel at Ninth and Washington avenues will have a flower store in the main lobby. It has not been announced who will manage the store.

The Henry Shaw annual banquet to florists, nurserymen and gardeners will be held during the convention of park superintendents in September, instead of in November, the usual time. Delegates to the convention will be invited.

The Bourdet Floral Co., John Held, William Schray & Sons, Charles Beyer, George Windler and J. J. Fillmore, on the south side, all have their places in shape for the fall season. Chrysanthemum plants at these establishments looked especially fine.

L. Baumann is cutting some fine outdoor roses at his place at 3233 Portis avenue.

The quarters of the cut flower department at C. A. Kuehn's wholesale store have been treated to a coat of white paint.

Because of the sudden illness of Mrs. Bourdet, Jules Bourdet was unable to attend the convention of the society in NEWPORT, R. I.

The members of the Newport Horticultural Society held a meeting last week in Music hall, President Urquhart presiding. The principal topic of discussion was the fall exhibition and annual ball, which will be held at the beach September 5 to 7, the ball being on the last night. A committee was elected as follows: Frederic Carter, James Robertson, William MacKay, Andrew Meikle, Andrew Dorward, Bruce Butterton, C. M. Bogholt, William Smith and John T. Allan.

The Wilson Nurseries report an unusually brisk demand for trees and shrubs this season.

DETROIT.

The Market.

The local growers are unable to supply the demands for quality stock, and the shipments of roses received from Chicago and Fort Wayne are quickly disposed of. Beauties are of good quality and find ready buyers. Orchids and valley are steady in supply and demand. Gladioli, asters and carnations are inclined to drag somewhat, only the best quality stock being in demand. Sweet peas are becoming better in quality, but are not in demand. Harrisii and rubrum lilies have shortened up in quantity, being more steady. A good stock of ferns, greens and smilax is to be had.

Club Meeting.

The Detroit Florists' Club held its regular meeting August 15 at the Heidelberg. The election of officers was held and the results were: President, E. A. Fetters; vice-president, A. J. Stahelin; treasurer, R. Rahaley, and secretary, Henry Foster.

The bowling teams are to meet the first week in September to elect captains and draw up rules for the season. Joseph Streit was appointed to engage the Broadway alleys, beginning the middle of September. The Detroit bowling team will bowl the first of three games with the Cleveland team during the Cleveland flower show.

Another topic of great interest was the planning of F. T. D. week in Detroit for the first week of October. A number of F. T. D. members and their employees, and a number of supply salesmen, are expected. J. F. Sullivan and Harry Taylor were appointed a committee to urge the retailers to put in special F. T. D. window displays. Samuel Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, offered a cash prize of $25 for the best window display, out-of-town F. T. D. members to be the judges, and at least ten entries to be made.

Various Notes.

The Detroit florists who attended the S. A. F. convention at New York this week are E. A. Fetters, A. J. Stahelin, Joseph Streit and Thomas F. Browne.

John Breitmeyer's Sons' employees held an outing Sunday, August 19, at Silver Lake, Mich., the guests of Mrs. Gray, of Breitmeyer's Park store.

Peter Papes, of the Central Floral Co., has a new car.

Philip Foley, of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago; Samuel Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, and M. A. Leganger, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, were visitors last week, calling on the trade here. A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, motored to Detroit on business.

Bailey's Cyclopedia

—florists' 6-volume library

Bailey's "Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture"—the recognized authority, the best work of its kind, the best for florists, growers and nurserymen—is offered in its new edition. Six volumes of advice—4000 engravings—95 full-page cuts.

Bailey's splendid work now is offered on monthly terms of $3.00 per month, or on a cash basis of $36.00 for the 6-volume set. No florist who is in the game to win can afford to be without a set, even at three times this price.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

ACCORDING to present indications, the Michigan bean crop will be good this year.

THE Denver seedsman, C. R. Root, president of the Colorado Seed Co., visited Chicago tradesmen last week.

A SCARCITY is said to be developing in Wisconsin peas, although it cannot as yet be ascertained how great the shortage will be. Canning operations in this district have been completed.

ARNOLD RINGIER, on his return from a recent trip to Wisconsin, where he inspected the crops, reports that the potato yield should be heavy, as the crop appears to be in excellent condition.

THE Adams Seed Co., of Decorah, Ia., which commenced business August 7 of this year, has been incorporated by Burton H. Adams, Roy N. Gilkinson and Walter G. Adams. The amount of capital stock authorized is $350,000.

THE official staff of the Rudy-Patrick Seed Co., Kansas City, is: President, Howard S. Patrick; vice-presidents, Frank Rudy and Roy A. Edwards; secretary, John W. Miller; treasurer, Wilbur E. Hoover; directors with the foregoing, Fred A. Starry and Ross M. Eldridge.

MR. AND MRS. E. L. PAGE passed through Chicago August 20 on their way to California. Mr. Page is president of the Page Seed Co., of Greene, N. Y., and is largely interested in the growing of seeds in various sections of the country. Besides the wholesale business at Greene, there is a large retail and mail-order business at Toledo, O.

tives of leading houses dealing in canners' seeds met at the Hotel Gordon, Washington, D. C., August 21, to discuss with Food Controller Hoover the question of seed supply for 1918 in all its bearings. The seedsmen were taken somewhat by surprise by the telegrams requesting their presence, because the situation otherwise, perhaps, than with peas, does not afford reason for alarm. The pea crops in Wisconsin and the northwest have been damaged to a considerable extent by unfavorable weather, but neither tomatoes nor canners' corns indicate serious shortage or prices

The Newest and Best Winter-flowering Sweet Peas

We offer with the greatest confidence the splendid Novelties listed below. These are all true, thoroughly fixed in type and are a great improvement on our various colors.

From sowing made under glass in August they may be flowered in time for Thanksgiving. September sowing will produce the finest flowers by Christmas. If grown in the open they flower several weeks ahead of the Standard or Summer-flowering Spencers, and with proper treatment continue to bloom quite as long as that type.

Burpee's Early Enchantress The flowers are immense in size, measuring two and one-half inches in diameter; they are exquisitely waved or frilled, well placed on stiff stems and usually produced in threes and fours. The color is most attractive and pleasing. It is a bright rose-pink, becoming deeper toward the edges of standard and wings, gradually softening in tone toward the center of the flower. ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25.

Burpee's Early Loveliness The color is white, the entire flower being suffused soft pink until it reaches the edges, which are distinctly picoteed with rose-pink. A flower of immense size and great substance, beautifully waved and usually produced three or four on the longest stout stems ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25.

Burpee's Early King A glowing, rich, bright crimson. The flowers are of great size, perfect form, averaging fully two inches in diameter, and are produced freely in threes and fours on strong stems of great length. ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25.

Burpee's Early Pink Beauty The color is soft rose-pink on white ground, richer toward the edges, gradually softening in color as it reaches the center of standard and wings. The flowers are of great size, beautifully waved and finely placed on the immense stems, which usually carry three or four of the magnificent blooms. ½ oz., 85c; oz., $1.50.

Burpee's Primrose Beauty An attractive shade of deep primrose, flushed with rose. Flowers of great size and splendid substance, beautifully waved in true Spencer form. ½ oz., 85c; oz., $1.50; lb., $15.00.

Burpee's Early Sankey This truly magnificent white was awarded a special Silver Medal when exhibited at the great International Show in New York, 1915, also Certificate of Merit at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, 1915. Black seeded. ½ oz., 85c; oz., $1.50; lb., $15.00.

Fordhook Pink and White The most popular color in early-flowering Sweet Peas. Similar to the old Blanche Ferry, having a bright rosy pink standard, with creamy white wings, lightly suffused rose. The flowers often measure fully two and one-half inches in diameter. The form is perfect, the beautifully waved blooms being carried on stiff stems of great length, usually in threes and often fours. ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25.

Fordhook Pink A distinct shade of pink, suffused with lavender throughout. Flowers of large size, exquisitely waved, and usually produced in threes and fours on long stems. Particularly pleasing under artificial light. Oz., 85c.

Fordhook Rose This lovely variety is a charming shade of rosy carmine. The flowers are of largest size and usually borne in threes and fours on long, stiff stems. ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25.

Yarrawa First exhibited at the great International Flower Show, New York, 1914, awarded a Certificate of Merit by the American Sweet Pea Society. From seed sown in early October at Fordhook Farms, the plants came into bloom December 20, and bloomed profusely until May. Color, a bright rose-pink, with a clear, creamy base. Floradale grown seed exclusively. Oz., 80c; lb., $8.00.

Rose Queen (Pettit). Greenhouse-grown seed, greatly to be preferred to the California open-air grown seed of the variety that is sold at cheap prices. Oz., $3.00.

Mrs. Burke Light blue, received Certificate of Merit at New York Flower Show, greenhouse-grown. Oz., $5.00.

out of line with other merchandise. The seed trade's representatives indicated their willingness to coöperate with the government to the fullest extent to insure a full pack by canners next season. son.

DUTCH BULBS ARE AFLOAT.

Practically all doubts as to the arrival of a large part of the season's supply of Dutch bulbs has been removed. August 20 the New York office of the Holland-America line notified certain large importers that one of its steamers sailed from Rotterdam August 18, its cargo consisting principally of bulbs. In the natural course of events, the steamer should reach New York in about two weeks.

PROPOSED CATALOGUE TAX.

Now is the time for seedsmen and others to write to their representatives and senators in Congress in strong protest against that part of the proposed Senate war revenue bill which, if it becomes law, would require a stamp tax on all catalogues weighing more than four ounces and sent by parcel post. The bill provides for a tax of 1 cent on every parcel post shipment weighing more than four ounces—1 cent for each 25 cents or fraction thereof represented in the postage charged for transportation.

It is the consensus that comparatively few business men would object to a tax on their parcel post shipments of merchandise, on the proposition that a tax on finished business is fair; but a strenuous objection is being registered

Snapdragon Seed

It is a proved fact that, for profit and easy doing, there is no greenhouse plant that will equal good Snapdragon. They require very little attention and seed sown now will yield continuous blooms from February until July, giving a bumper crop at Memorial, the great special flower day.

Start some seedlings today and be ready to fill all empty space after mums are done. It is far better and cheaper to grow your own plants.

Seeds of our famous Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.: 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Melrose, Yellow, White, Garnet, Light Pink, Buxton and Fancy Mixed, 35c per pkt; 3 for $1.00. A special Pink Mixture, $1.00.

Early Snowstorm

A Very Profuse Bearer.

BURPEE'S SWEET PEAS

NEW EARLY OR WINTER-FLOWERING SPENCERS.

With a keen appreciation of the splendid future of the Sweet Pea, and particularly of New Early Winter-flowering or Long Season Spencers, we began crossing the Spencer-flowering Sweet Peas with the Early or Winter-flowering Grandiflora as far back as the summer of 1909. Later we have been using that magnificent Australian variety, "Yarrawa," to a great extent in our crosses.

We now offer with the greatest confidence the splendid novelties listed below. These are all true, thoroughly fixed in type and are a great improvement on the various colors.

From sowing made under glass in August they may be flowered in time for Thanksgiving. September sowing will produce the finest of flowers by Christmas. If grown in the open they flower several weeks ahead of the Standard or Summer-flowering Spencers, and with proper treatment continue to bloom quite as long as that type.

Nine of these varieties were awarded nineteen Certificates of Merit by the following:

PENNSYLVANIA HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY, Philadelphia.
AMERICAN SWEET PEA SOCIETY, San Francisco.
THE INTERNATIONAL SHOW, New York.

Burpee's Early Snowstorm A truly magnificent pure white variety; the best of the white-seeded Early-flowering Spencers yet introduced. Flowers of great size and substance, beautifully waved, borne in great profusion. Snowstorm is an appropriate name, as the plants become a perfect mass of snow-white flowers. Pkt. (12 seeds), 25 cts., less 1/3.

Burpee's Early Enchantress Flowers immense in size, measuring two and one-half inches in diameter; exquisitely waved or frilled; stiff stems. Color most attractive and pleasing. A bright rose-pink, becoming deeper toward the edges of standard and wings, gradually softening in tone toward the center of the flower. 1/2 oz., 75 cts.; oz., $1.25; lb., $12.50.

Burpee's Early King A glowing, rich, bright crimson. Flowers are of great size, perfect form, averaging fully two inches in diameter, and are produced freely in threes and fours on strong stems of great length. 1/2 oz., 75 cts.; oz., $1.25; lb., $12.50.

Fordhook Pink and White The most popular color in early-flowering Sweet Peas. Similar to the old Blanche Ferry, having a bright rosy pink standard with creamy white wings, lightly suffused rose. Fowers often measure fully two and one-half inches in diameter, while the form is perfect. It is an especially early, free and continuous bloomer. 1/2 oz., 75 cts.; oz., $1.25; lb., $12.50.

Fordhook Pink A distinct shade of pink, suffused with lavender throughout. Flowers of large size, exquisitely waved, and usually produced in threes and fours on long stems. Particularly pleasing under artificial light. Flowers early and is a most continuous and free bloomer. Oz., 85 cts.; lb., $8.50.

Burpee's Early Pink Beauty Soft rose-pink on white ground, richer toward the edges, gradually softening in color as it reaches the center of standard and wings. The flowers are of great size, beautifully waved and finely placed on the immense stems, which usually carry three or four of the magnificent blooms. 1/2 oz., 85 cts.; oz., $1.50; lb., $15.00.

Burpee's Primrose Beauty An attractive shade of deep primrose, flushed with rose. Flowers of great size, splendid substance and beautifully waved in true Spencer form, on stems of great length. 1/2 oz., 85 cts.; oz., $1.50; lb., $15.00.

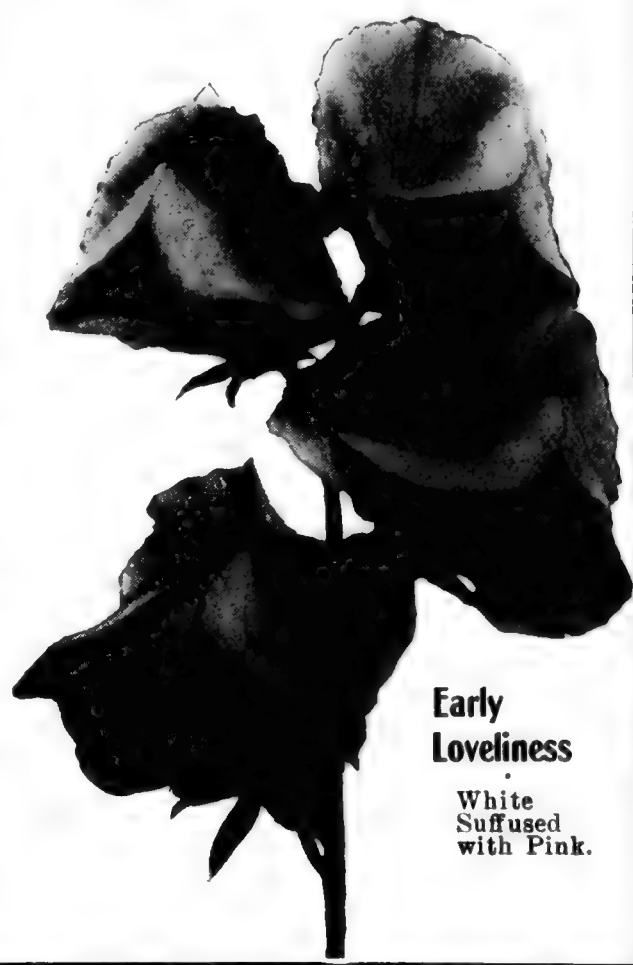
Fordhook Rose This lovely variety is a charming shade of rosy carmine. The flowers are of largest size and usually borne in threes and fours on long, stiff stems. 1/2 oz., 75 cts.; oz., $1.25; lb., $12.50.

Burpee's Rosy Morn A magnificent flower of great size and substance. Flowers grown under ordinary field culture have measured fully two inches in diameter. The color is a pleasing shade of rose, with crimson-scarlet standard, while the immense flowers are usually borne in threes or fours on stiff, long stems. Oz., 85 cts.; lb., $8.50.

Burpee's Early Sankey This truly magnificent white was awarded a special Silver Medal when exhibited at the great International Show in New York, March 20, 1915; also Certificate of Merit at the Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, March 23, 1915. Black seeded. 1/2 oz., 85 cts.; oz., $1.50; lb., $15.00.

Yarrawa We first exhibited this novelty at the great International Flower Show in New York, March, 1914, where we were awarded a Certificate of Merit by the American Sweet Pea Society. Seed sown in early October at Fordhook Farms, the plants come into bloom December 20, and bloom profusely until May. Flowers are exquisitely waved, and when well grown average two and one-half inches in diameter; many of them duplex or double. They are usually produced in fours on extra long, strong stems. Bright rose-pink, with a clear, creamy base. Floradale-grown seed exclusively. Oz., 80 cts.; lb., $8.00.

Burpee's Early Lavender King A first-class rich, true deep lavender throughout; flowers of large size, beautiful, true-waved form and borne in threes and fours on stems of great length. Pkt. (20 seeds), 25 cts., less 1/3.



Burpee's Early Sweet Briar A most distinct and charming variety. Flowers are of good size with great substance, usually in threes and fours; lovely shade of pink throughout, with soft salmon or amber suffusion, this being more accentuated in the younger flowers and buds. A very strong grower and most floriferous. Pkt. (20 seeds), 25 cts., less 1/3.

Burpee's Early Loveliness For dainty and delicate color effect, especially when bunched, this novelty stands head and shoulders above any variety we have seen. The color is white, the entire flower being suffused soft pink until it reaches the edges, which are distinctly picoteed with rose-pink. Immense size and great substance, beautifully waved and usually produced three or four on the longest stout stems. 1/2 oz., 75 cts.; oz., $1.25; lb., $12.50.

W. Atlee Burpee & Company have long been famous as American headquarters for Sweet Peas, and in addition to the Early or Winter-flowering Novelties listed above, we are in a position to supply a wonderful list of Standard or Summer-flowering Spencers.

We were the first to introduce the Spencer type into America, and such famous varieties as King White, Fiery Cross, Primrose Spencer, Apple Blossom, King Edward Spencer and many others. All our introductions serve to justify our claims, and each year many new varieties are tried out, but only those which prove themselves of exceptional value are offered to our customers.

against the stamp tax on catalogues in that it is a burden on business in the making, a thrust at an effort to promote business.

The various industries now are bringing pressure to bear on members of Congress in an effort to have catalogues exempted from the proposed tax, regardless of weight, and every seedsman who believes that a tax of $10 on every 1,000 catalogues he sends by parcel post would be unjust, can do his part by joining in the chorus of protests.

W. F. Therkildson, chairman of the postal laws committee of the American Seed Trade Association, is author of the following letter to Hon. F. M. Simmons, chairman of the Senate committee of finance:

My dear Sir:

As chairman of the postal laws committee of the American Seed Trade Association, I want to enter a vigorous protest against the section of H. R. 4260 as on page 71 of that bill, also to the amendment as noted in calendar 106, report 103, page 13, Schedule A, title of War Stamp Tax.

This, we understand, exempts catalogues or parcel post matter under four ounces. Now, we have no objection to paying our just share of taxes on business done or business already created, but we do object to the proposed ruling of the post office that this should apply to catalogues. The catalogue of the mail order house or any other house that does a part of its business by mail, acts as the salesman. It is an effort to maintain business at normal during these troublous times. No man should have his effort to create business taxed, and this is exactly what the taxation of catalogues means. It will result in just the opposite from what the post office desires, because many catalogues will be discontinued or they will not be sent through the mails. They will be shipped by express or freight and distributed by carriers. The government will be deprived of the postal revenue; also of the revenue obtained from the money order business created by the catalogues; also of the revenue of the outgoing parcel post packages because of the lack of business; and, in all, it is a most unjust proposition.

As stated above, we are perfectly willing to pay our share of taxes on business that is already done or created, but upon problematical business or business that has not been made, it seems to us to be an unfair measure.

If this amendment can so be worded as to exclude catalogues, we certainly have no objection to paying the postage upon the parcel post packages that are the results of the business created by the catalogue.

This clause apparently does not embrace the catalogues because they are third-class matter, and beyond eight ounces they are handled as parcel post. If this new provision pulls them down to four ounces, it will certainly work a great hardship not only on the house that issues catalogues, but also upon every line of business that has to do with the making of the catalogue; namely, the printing business, the photo-engraving business, the ink business, the paper business, the lithograph business and all of their kindred industries, as well as the various labor organizations that find their employment in the manufacture of catalogues.

I trust you can see the seriousness of this proposed tax.

GERMANY ADMITS DUTCH BULBS

Bearing on the market for Dutch bulbs, the following item comes from The Hague: "The German government has agreed to permit the import of Dutch bulbs to a value of 1,500,000 marks ($300,000) on condition that buyers shall make their remittances to a German bank and that the sellers shall not draw the cash until six months after the raising of the state of siege in Germany. The bulb-growing industry is in an unenviable position, for an absolute import prohibition has been put in force by Great Britain and Austria, two other good customers.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Sawtelle, Cal.—Geraniums have had a large sale this year, according to George B. Culver, of Los Angeles, who has five acres here devoted to the business.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

There has been much of the cheaper grades of funeral work during the week and it has helped to clean up some of the surplus stock. Some of the retailers report big business, but the general run of trade is only fair. If full forces were working, business would seem quiet, but there still are a number away on vacations. Regarding the quality of the stock, roses are still poor and thin. There are few coming from outdoors and none of them is perfect. An improvement is noted in dahlias and carnations. Asters are good. Gladioli are less plentiful, but fine in color. For large decorations Golden Glow, goldenrod and Amaryllis Belladonna are good, and there are still more good rubrum lilies. The wild tiger lily is shown in some of the stores, and is pretty, but it does not sell well.

There are no flowering plants fit for shipping, though a few gloxinias and tuberous begonias are displayed. Boston ferns, palms, aspidistras and rubbers are about the only pot stock that can be shipped. In greens, adiantum, plumosus and huckleberry are most in demand, with the gypsophilas to help out in this direction.

Various Notes.

Bassett & Washburn's Pacific coast branch is prospering, according to E. B. Washburn, who has charge of it. Mr. Washburn says that the young kentias, which are mostly grown, are doing well, the fine climate of Sierra Madre evidently suiting them.

James Taylor, superintendent of the Homer Laughlin ranch at Hollywood, is walking on air these days. Eight and one-half pounds of boy arrived the other day to perpetuate the family name and to inherit the ancestral acres. Both Mrs. Taylor and son are doing finely.

Last reports from Fred Sperry, manager of the L. A. Floral Co., were that the operation on his eye had been successful and that he had left the hospital. He hopes to be able to get around in a few days.

S. Murata & Co. are handling quantities of gladiolus bulbs. Shipping business in cut flowers still is a little on the dull side, especially for the cheaper grade of stock.

C. J. Groen, of Montebello, was married August 14 at the Odd Fellows' hall, Los Angeles, to Miss Lavinia Malmquist, and they left for a trip to Catalina. This is to be followed by a trip to the mountains, and after that Mr. and Mrs. Groen will be at home to their friends at the pretty bungalow Mr. Groen has built at his place at Montebello. Mr. Groen has long been known to the trade here, first in connection with Howard & Smith and then in partnership with John Polder, as Polder & Groen.

The Redondo Floral Co. has been busy with funeral work. Mr. Knopf is bringing in samples of lemons from his Santa Ana ranch and Mr. Borden is still putting in all his spare time gardening.

Some attention-winning windows are being arranged by the Southern California Cut Flower Co. at its Seventh street store.

J. Ginsburg, of Salt Lake City, is among our visitors this week.

Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, says prospects are bright for the nursery and landscape business, they having big contracts closed and in process of being closed. Mr. Chafee, manager here, has joined the colors. The cut flower and plant department is keeping up well, according to J. Grover, who runs this end.

Clarence Purdy, for five years on the staff of O. C. Saake, has purchased the store and stock of L. H. Freeman, of 212 West Fourth street, and will run the business himself from now on. Mr. Purdy is a hustler and all his friends in the business will wish him the best of luck. It will be recalled that Mr. Wilson purchased the store from Mr. Freeman, but this was a cross-deal in some real estate transactions and Mr. Wilson, not being a florist, was anxious to get rid of his responsibilities there.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are beginning to arrive in quantities sufficient to make an impression on the market. Early Frost, Early Rose and Golden Glow are the three most plentiful, but the supply as yet is not equal to the demand. So far everything has cleaned up from day to day at rather firm prices. With nothing else of a competitive nature in excessive supply, asters are enjoying a splendid call, both for out-of-town shipments and local orders. All colors show good quality, but the darker shades do not take so well as the lighter ones. They seem to sell in the order named—white first, then lavender, pink, purple and red. Carnations are scarce and poor. One or two of the growers have started to bring in the new crop, however, so plenty of good blooms are due soon. Roses are improving gradually, but there is room for more improvement. Prima Donna shows up well and Russell is good again. Only a few American Beauties are arriving.

Amaryllis is coming satisfactorily and quite a bit of it is being shipped. Rubrum lilies are plentiful and all that can be desired in quality. They constitute an important feature of the shipping business and also figure prominently locally. There seems to be no let-up in zinnias. The offerings are liberal and many find an outlet, but the impression is that too many were produced this year for the good of the market. Dahlias are much in evidence and gladioli are still in ample supply and good in quality. Giant gaillardias maintain their popularity with remarkable persistency. The shortage of orchids is proving a serious handicap at the leading stores, and there are not enough gardenias and valley to offset the shortage. In flowering plants the principal offerings are gloxinias and cockscomb.

Various Notes.

B. M. Joseph used eighteen dozen yellow chrysanthemums in a decoration at the Cliff House August 14. Fred Bertrand, manager of Joseph's, reports a stronger demand for dahlias than in former years. He has been unable to fill all orchid orders of late.

V. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, has no complaints to make about business. This firm is handicapped more or less by the shortage of orchids and the limited supply of valley. In order to curtail the demand, these flowers are kept out of sight at the store.

J. B. Pagano has resumed his duties with Pelicano, Rossi & Co. after a pleasant vacation at Geyserville. A. J. Rossi writes from Santa Barbara, Cal., that he is convalescing nicely and will return home in a short time.

Mrs. David Lichtenstein, of the Terminal Florists, reports much funeral work and sufficient transient trade to make business total up well for this time of the year.

A. J. Clarke came down from Portland, Ore., last week, accompanied by Mrs. Clarke.

The United Flower & Supply Co. is doing well with strawflowers, especially amarantus. The demand for chrysanthemums leaves no ground for complaint, according to Mr. Onishi.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, paid a visit to the local trade last week and reported business good in the capital city, notwithstanding the hot weather.

Exhibition space is being rapidly allotted for the dahlia show, which will be held in the Palace hotel September 3 to 5. Arrangements have been made for more than 5,000 running feet of space to accommodate the display.

Dahlias were exhibited at the monthly meeting of the California State Floral Society. Although a little early for choice blooms, the display was exceptionally fine. The Jessie L. Seal gardens furnished the largest exhibit, the largest single bloom, Nora Lindsay, measuring ten and one-fourth inches. Dr. Tevis, originated by Frank D. Pelicano, attracted much attention.

Miss Rothschild, of the Bellevue Florists, has returned from a two weeks' vacation in the San Joaquin valley and is glad to get back where the temperature is a little lower. Miss Bertha Cohn, the other partner in the business, will take a little rest before the busy season gets well under way. They anticipate an excellent fall and winter trade.

F. C. Jaeger & Son have acquired an automobile delivery car. The body and lettering of the car are distinctive in style, making an attractive advertising medium. Mr. Jaeger says business has picked up decidedly since August 1, the first half of the month being 100 per cent better than the corresponding period of July, the firm's first month.

P. Vincent Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., is satisfied with business. Funeral work has been keeping all hands busy and counter trade has been good.

The annual picnic of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, given August 12 at Pinehurst, on the electric line out of Oakland, was a splendid success. There was some disappointment that all the flower stores did not close, but even this was not permitted to mar the day's pleasure. More than 300 people were present, the Oakland and San Rafael trade being well represented as well as San Francisco. Many arrived at the picnic grounds before 11 o'clock and few left before 6 in the evening. Everyone brought lunch and a 7-piece orchestra was provided to furnish music for dancing.

The C. Kooyman Co. is well pleased with its aster shipping business. It is in receipt of a letter stating that an order in transit six days reached its destination in North Dakota in fine condition. S. H. G.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

There can be no complaint as to business, the retailers declaring that so far the month of August has been better than last year. All stock that reaches the market is readily sold; in fact, much more could be used if the growers would send it in.

Various Notes.

Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., was in Portland last week calling on the trade.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce formal opening August 13 called for many artistic baskets, designs and bouquets.

A. E. Clarke has returned from California, bringing with him some fancy Celosia Pride of Castle Gould and some fine caladiums. At the Clarke greenhouses they are having considerable trouble with leaf curler.

The Swiss Floral Co. has enlarged the basement of its office for the storage of fuel. The company's houses all are planted with chrysanthemums, carnations, ferns and pot plants. There is also a fine strain of petunias, which the manager, J. G. Bacher, has been hybridizing and selecting during the last eight years. All of the petunias are single ruffled blooms, except Elks' Pride, which is a true dark purple with a plain edge. The pink shades are Scarlet Beauty, Pride of Portland and Irvington Beauty.

R. L. Scott, who recently left the Portland Seed Co., has opened a flower store in Tillamook, Ore. He moved one of his greenhouses to that place and has put it on a claim he has six miles from town.

Growers fear that there is going to be a shortage of stock because of the absence of German seeds, the failure of the Holland bulbs to arrive and the high cost of those from Japan.

With labor demanding $3 per day and the cost of fuel so high, the outlook is not bright. W. G. W.

TACOMA, WASH.

The bright sunshine gave way to showers the latter part of last week and this, if it continues, will not tend to improve the asters and peas. Peas are still in good condition and fill a big demand. Asters are arriving in sufficient quantities for the present demand and are of fairly good quality. Some fair carnations are on the market, but are not in strong demand. Marigolds and bachelor's buttons give a dash of color to the otherwise quiet tints of asters and peas. The demand for wedding bouquets continues good. Funeral work and flowers for sick rooms keep up the market and prevent any tendency toward deadness of business. Growers are all busy getting their houses in shape for winter and all are looking forward to a big holiday trade in the coming season.

Miss Marie Watson, of the Twin City Floral Co., of Centralia, was a visitor in Tacoma this week. Miss Watson motored in with friends. She reports business fair in Centralia.

William Crammatte, of the Home Florist Co., of Aberdeen, was in Tacoma on a business trip. He motored in from Aberdeen in his new roadster.

The Fife Floral Co. is shipping in some beautiful asters this season.

Edward Goldsack, formerly of the firm of Davis & Goldsack, of Tacoma, and now in business at Seattle, visited friends in Tacoma last week. Mr. Goldsack is just recovering from a severe illness. B. G.

sweet pea novelties. It lists a number of the early-flowering Spencer types, which are claimed to be an improvement over those offered last year, also many standard Spencers. The company's fall dahlia catalogue will be ready for distribution about September 1. It will contain nearly 1,000 varieties, including a number of new importations from Europe and several new seedlings. T. C. Holmes, manager of the company's retail store, is preparing for an extensive trade exhibit at the dahlia show in the Palace hotel early next month.

The California Seed Co., San Francisco, August 13 opened with a dahlia exhibit at its store on Market street. The display will be continued until the end of the blooming season. About 200 varieties were shown the first day. W. A. Reubold is back on duty after a short vacation at his place in Marin county. He reports business seasonably good. A. J. Nevraumont, manager of the California Seed Co., is visiting the seed farms in the Gilroy section, looking over the crop situation.

The West Coast Seed Growers, of San Francisco, have incorporated with a capital stock of $5,000. The officers are W. L. Hoyt, L. M. Spiegl and W. C. Canley.

Seedsmen from all sections of the country met in Stockton, Cal., last week for the purpose of discussing the seed situation. Among those present were Alexander Forbes, of Peter Henderson & Co., New York; H. M. Earl, of Burpee & Co., Philadelphia; M. Brotherton, of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Detroit, Mich., and L. Hunt, of the same company at Cambridge, N. Y. S. H. G.

LUPINES FOR WINTER BLOOMS.

Will you kindly have your specialist give some advice on growing lupines under glass for winter blooming?

H. G.—Mich.

The annual varieties of lupines can be successfully grown for winter flowering. By sowing seeds in benches now, flowers may be had for Christmas and the plants will continue to bloom for a considerable time. The earliest bloomer is a pink sort which goes by a variety of names, including roseus hybridus, Pink Beauty, Pink Perfection, etc. This is of a clear pink color, just what the market demands. Sow half a dozen seeds of this variety in small patches a foot apart each way, as you would sow mignonette. Thin out to three or four. Avoid overhead syringing, especially in dark weather. Keep the soil constantly stirred. Mildew and stem-rot trouble lupines in midwinter. For mildew, dust with sulphur. To avoid stem-rot, water carefully. Sowings made about Thanksgiving will give a good crop in March and April.

The varieties mutabilis and Hartwegii are good for greenhouse culture, but do not come into bloom as early as hybridus roseus. They must be planted farther apart, two feet each way not being too much. They produce splendid spikes and bloom for a long time if carefully watered and well fed. They are at their best from February onward. A night temperature of 45 to 48 degrees suits annual lupines and it must not exceed 50 degrees on any account. Give them a soil such as you would use for carnations or chrysanthemums. C. W.

Sioux City, Ia.—Newman & Lehman have purchased the flower store of J. R. Elder, one of the oldest establishments in Sioux City. The new firm is composed of William Newman, formerly head man for Rocklin & Lehman, and J. Lehman, former member of the firm of Rocklin & Lehman. The store will be remodeled and a new refrigerator will be added to the equipment.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-president, J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia..

H. G. MERKEL has been appointed receiver for the Watrous Nursery Co., of Des Moines, Ia., at the request of the Watrous estate.

IT looks as though the public will buy more and better peony plants than usual this autumn, but the trade will not make large plantings for cut flowers.

CONNECTICUT ASSOCIATION.

The annual outing of the Connecticut Nurserymen's Association was held at Lake Compounce August 15. About forty-five members were present and, as usual, everyone had an enjoyable time. Swimming, baseball, bowling and other amusements caused the day to pass quickly. The dinner consisted of barbecued lamb and other good things.

MINNESOTA PLANT IMPORTS.

The records of the nursery inspector in Minnesota show that the imports of nursery stock for the twelve months ended December 1, 1916, were:

Shipped from	Cases	Plants
Holland	372	128,758
Belgium	104	3,831
France	55	385,280
England	6	15,154
Bermuda	1	200
Japan	28	1,573
Scotland	3	16,000
Total	569	550,796

Commenting on this, F. L. Washburn, state entomologist, says: "This represents 108 shipments. While no stock has been received from Germany during the year, it is surprising to note that in this, the third year of the war, there were 32,466 more plants imported than in 1915, the second year of war."

BAD KEROSENE EMULSIONS.

The Insecticide and Fungicide Board of the U. S. Department of Agriculture among its service and regulatory announcements issued May 28, 1917, publishes the following with regard to kerosene emulsions:

"It has been noted by the department that kerosene emulsions made by certain manufacturers cause serious injury to the foliage of various plants when used as a summer spray at the dilutions recommended on the label by the manufacturer.

"These so-called kerosene emulsions on analysis often show a water, soap and oil content which indicates that they have been prepared in accordance with the commonly used formula of one gallon of water, one-half pound of soap and two gallons of oil, or in accordance with a formula which gives practically the same percentage of oil. However, when they are used on foliage at the dilutions recommended by the manufacturer they seriously burn the foliage of many varieties of plants, whereas a well-made kerosene emulsion prepared by the same formula does not burn the same varieties of plants to any extent when used as a summer spray at the same dilutions. For example, a well-made kerosene emulsion prepared by the department in accordance with the above formula did not show any serious injury to the foliage of a considerable number of plants when used at a dilution of one to fifteen or one to twenty, yet when so-called kerosene emulsions containing practically the same amounts of oil were used at these dilutions on the same plants the injury was serious.

"A study of this question has convinced the department that some manufacturers are not preparing their kerosene emulsions correctly, so that when they are mixed with water the oil separates out and the products therefore burn vegetation, which they would not burn if the emulsions were correctly prepared. There are also some indications that some manufacturers are using in their "kerosene emulsions" certain fractions of petroleum which are quite different from kerosene and are perhaps the cause of this excessive burning."

It is suggested that manufacturers who are preparing kerosene emulsions take careful note of the above-mentioned findings of the department and change their method of manufacture, if a change is needful, since kerosene emulsions subject to the provisions of the insecticide act of 1910, which cause injury to the vegetation on which they are recommended to be used when used at the dilutions recommended, are adulterated under the last paragraph of Section 7 of the Insecticide Act of 1910, which reads as follows:

"That for the purpose of this act an article shall be deemed to be adulterated * * * in the case of insecticides or fungicides other than Paris green and lead arsenate: * * * fourth, if it is intended for use on vegetation and shall contain any substance or mixture of substances which, although preventing, destroying, repelling or mitigating insects, shall be injurious to such vegetation when used."

Harrisburg, Pa., July 20 1915.
S. G. Harris, Tarrytown, N. Y.

Dear Sir.—Last October I received 75 to 100 Peonies from you. I won't sing "Tell Me the Old, Old Story" for you, but in the last ten years I have been Peony stung—harpooned and trimmed until I refuse to resent a raw deal on Peonies any more. I just quit. I now take that time to tell the man who has given me a square deal —"Shake; you are a gentleman and a scholar and sure earned your money."

Last year I bought from you and ——. His plants were good and worth the price. Yours were large, looked better and were much heavier. This season not more than one-third of his had flowers. All of yours, but a few, had blooms, from one to five, many of which were very large. The boys made more than the price paid for the plants from the blooms sold from them Decoration Day. You sell the best plants for the money I ever saw. If I can arrange, I want to put in more this Fall.

Some Son of Belial got him hence with the Peony catalogue you sent me. I will certainly thank you for a copy, as it was one of the few catalogues I wanted to keep.

Men like you deserve the good will and patronage of decent people and I am glad I had the good fortune to deal with you.

Wishing you continued merited success, I am,

Yours truly,

NOTE—The divisions listed are such as sold to this customer, who bought 200 plants the next year.

S. G. HARRIS, Tarrytown, N. Y.

true to color are cosmos, antirrhinums, China asters, balsams, Canterbury bells, cyclamens, primulas, gloxinias, dianthus, hollyhocks, petunias, Phlox Drummondii, poppies, salvias, stocks, sweet peas and many others.

Preventing Variations.

It is not expected, however, that forms or foliage variations can be fixed in seeds. They generally revert to the type, but there are cases where forms have become fixed from seed. For example, Tsuga macrophylla, a form of Tsuga canadensis, holds its form in seed. So do Wier's cut-leaved maple, purple beach, golden spiræa, the purple-leaved Japanese maple and the purple-leaved barberry. A fair percentage of all these come true. The probability is that all these were seed variations in the first place rather than sports.

Acclimatization of Seedlings.

The subject of the acclimatization of plants from seed is an interesting one. It is going on all the time by natural as well as artificial means. What nature has taken ages to do, man may do in a lifetime. The Japanese clematis was tender when first introduced, but after a generation of seedlings it proved perfectly hardy. The Irish yew, an imported plant, is not hardy here, but its seedlings are perfectly hardy. They have been left out without any protection since they were six inches high.

For seeds sown in spring under glass, having a short period of germination, it is customary to use seed boxes, 2x12x16 inches. They are easy to handle and to take care of in the matter of water and do not permit an overabundance of material. Good, light loam is best for most seeds. It should be made firm and should be marked out for seeds big enough to be seen easily. It is hardly necessary to cover the seeds; merely give the box a shake. Extremely fine seeds, such as begonia, gloxinia and streptocarpus, should be sown broadcast, first covering the soil with a sprinkling of sphagnum moss. This makes an excellent germinating medium and should be tried wherever there is difficulty in germination.

Indoor and Outdoor Sowing.

We divide our seeds into batches, one for indoors and one for outdoors. The indoor batch includes all greenhouse plants, such as grevilleas, dracænas, gloxinias, begonias and primulas. We also sow some tender annuals indoors, such as asters, salvias, pentstemons, ageratums, lobelias, zinnias and border antirrhinums, and such as we want early, and all fine seeds of hardy annuals that would be lost if sown in the open.

Hardy annuals and some perennials are sown outdoors in late April or May. Among these are agrostemmas, alyssum, candytuft, Gypsophila elegans, larkspurs, four o'clocks, calliopsis, Indian pinks, lupines, sweet sultans, mignonette, marigolds, Phlox Drummondii, poppies, sunflowers and sweet peas. Biennials and some plants wanted for spring bedding, such as pansies, violas, myosotis, foxgloves, Canterbury bells and sweet williams, are sown about midsummer; also autumn-blooming greenhouse plants, such as calceolarias, schizanthus and cinerarias.

Care of Indoor Seedlings

There is more trouble with seeds sown indoors than out. Abundance of light and air as the seedlings come up will do much to ward off the various fungoid diseases that attack young plants. The same soil and conditions with regard to ventilation and shade will not do for all. Generally as seeds germinate they are to be shifted to cooler quarters to harden them off. The seedlings must be pricked off as soon as large enough to handle. With outdoor seeds all that is necessary is to see that they have plenty of water.

We frequently find seedlings of berried and fruit-bearing plants growing where the seeds have been dropped by birds. If berried seeds are to be sown as soon as ripe, it will be better to wash them out in order to stimulate this natural process, though sometimes when seeds are stratified, a method described farther on, the natural process of decay does practically the same thing.

Adiantum Farleyense Gloriosum

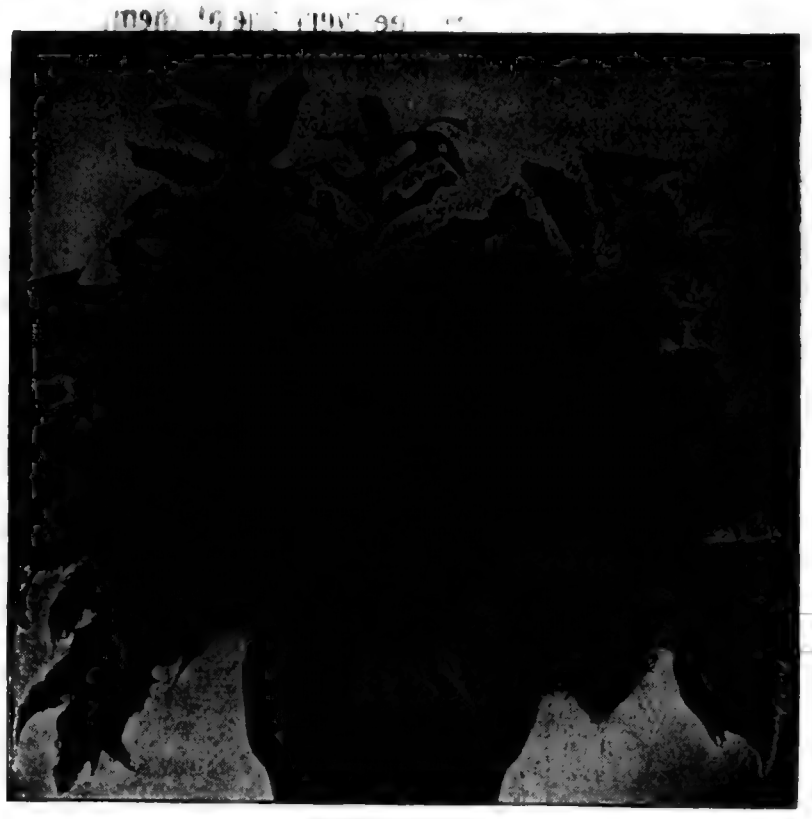
(Ruhm von Mordrecht)

This splendid Fern, which so closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense in appearance and which does not require the special skill and care in growing that is necessary to produce good plants of A. Farleyense, has quickly made a place for itself not only on account of the fact that it can be produced for little over half that of growing Farleyense, but also because either in a cut state or as plants used in decorative work, it will outlast the old variety ten to one, making it an available subject where Farleyense cannot be used at all. Since its introduction some five or six years ago there has never been a supply large enough to meet the demand.

We have this season prepared an extra large stock and we offer

2¼-inch pots	$1.50 per doz.;	$10.00 per 100
3-inch pots	2.00 per doz.;	15.00 per 100
4-inch pots	3.50 per doz.;	25.00 per 100
5-inch pots	9.00 per doz.;	75.00 per 100



Asplenium Nidus Avis

Bird's Nest Fern

A splendid healthy lot of 2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; fine 3-inch pots, $2.50 per doz; $20.00 per 100.

ASPLENIUM NIDUS AVIS (Bird's Nest Fern)

CYRTOMIUM ROCHFORDIANUM COMPACTUM

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum Compactum

Awarded a Silver Medal at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, April, 1916.

A splendid compact growing form of Cyrtomium Rochfordianum which originated with us. A variety which is meeting with universal favor. It is valuable either as a small plant or for growing on into specimens. We offer a fine stock.

2¼-inch pots	$6.00 per 100;	$50.00 per 1000
3-inch pots	1.25 per doz.;	10.00 per 100
4-inch pots	2.50 per doz.;	20.00 per 100

We also offer seedlings in flats, about 200 plants to a flat, at $3.00 per flat.

Pteris Rivertoniana

Awarded a Silver Medal at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, April, 1916.

This is one of the most distinct and desirable of the many crested forms of Pteris now grown.

2¼-inch pots, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Pteris Childsi

This beautiful variety is to Pteris what Farleyense is to Adiantums, and like that variety produces no spore, so that propagation is by the rather slow method of division, which will keep it a rare variety. The plant is of strong growth, attaining a height of about 20 inches; fronds large, pinnæ deeply dentated and undulated; tips crested. Makes a beautiful specimen for exhibition

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

There was plenty of vim to the wholesale market last week, particularly during the latter part of the week. Practically everything except asters of the common grades cleaned up. Easter and other lilies, so plentiful last month, were no exception and were unobtainable after early Saturday. The market is destitute of cattleyas and valley at present, and the limited offerings of sweet peas are of poor quality.

Retailers report a good week's business, several of the store forces being prevented from attending the florists' annual outing because of too much work.

The Annual Outing.

The annual outing and picnic of the Cleveland Florists' Club was held August 16 at Willough beach and proved to be one of the most enjoyable occasions of a like nature in the history of the club. Everybody, old or young, of either sex, forgot business cares and entered into the proper spirit of the event. The committee in charge is to be congratulated on the splendid program prepared and on the superb manner in which the entire list of sports was put through. The entries in all the contests were large and there was spirited rivalry for the liberal prizes. That the spirit of youth is perennial in the heart of the florist was attested to, not only by the sprightliness of mature men and women—both fat and lean—but also by the vivacity of elder members of the profession, who were present in goodly numbers.

Chief among the features of the program was the baseball game between the wholesalers and retailers. Strange that even in their play these two branches of the trade try to get the best of one another! As usual, the former were badly worsted, and such alibis as absence of best players and lack of practice are now much in circulation about the wholesale market. The truth of the matter was that the heavy bat work of the victors, the masterly pitching of Charles Graham and the poor support given Pitcher "Doc" Cook, were the main factors in the one-sidedness of the score, which was 17 to 3. (No, that is not a misprint.) The fine facilities at Willough beach helped much in the success of the occasion.

The awards of prizes in the many events were:

Fifty-yard dash, girls under 9 years—Mildred Chott, first; Marie Steir, second; Mildred Lederer, third.

Fifty-yard dash, boys under 9 years—Buddy Bastian, first; Carroll Schoen, second; Robert Priest, third.

Hundred-yard dash, girls 10 to 14 years—Ruth Ackerman, first; Dora Parker, second; Madeline Smith, third.

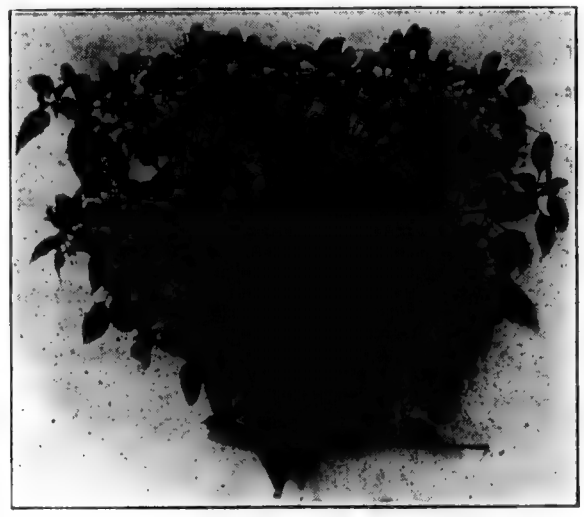
Fifty-yard dash, ladies of 160 pounds and over—Mrs. Hippler, first; Mrs. Koltaf, second; Mrs. Hahn, third.

Hundred-yard dash, fat men, 180 pounds and over—Koch, first; McLaughlin, second; Barber, third.

Fifty-yard shoe race, girls and ladies—Lucile Sieger, first; Dorothy Smith, second; Madeline Smith, third.

Hundred-yard shoe race, men and boys—Berger, first; Schumacher, second; Bate, third.



Fifty-yard sack race, men and boys—Charles Marchen, first; Lehman Schoen, second; Ted Rex, third.

Fifty-yard 3-legged race, men and boys—Wright and Williams, first; Berger and Marchen, second; H. Berger and Hughes, third.

F. C. W. Brown and H. P. Knoble left Sunday and Monday, respectively, for the New York convention, both combining the trip with their vacations. John Kirchner, who intended to go, reported that he was unable to get away at this time. Mrs. Kirchner and son Norman are going by auto, touring the state leisurely upon their return. Carl Hagenburger, the nominee for president of the Cleveland Florists' Club, has been spending several weeks among eastern florists and will be present at the convention.

George Brisben, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co. staff, and Messrs. Fowles and Rokusek, of the Florists' Exchange, have been drafted. All claim exemption.

Frank Ritzenthaler, of Knoble Bros., has successfully passed the physical examination and expects to be called by Uncle Sam at any moment.

J. R. Cowgill, of Canton, O., is getting things in shape for joining the second camp for officers at Fort Harrison. Mr. Cowgill, who spent several years in the national guard, is in the pink of condition and will be a credit to any military body to which he is attached.

W. A. Elder, of the Lord & Burnham Co. office, has a commission as second lieutenant and expects to go to Camp Sherman at Chillicothe within a week.

Miss Christine Cliff has returned from an extended vacation and is at her post conducting her three retail establishments.

Miss Elvira Schmidt, of the Gasser Co., is now on her vacation, part of which is being spent at Geneva-on-the-Lake.

A. C. Fox, who has been exceptionally busy removing the greenhouses purchased of S. N. Pentecost, reports that the work is progressing nicely. His newly erected range is being rapidly gotten into shape for the beginning of operations. J. McL.

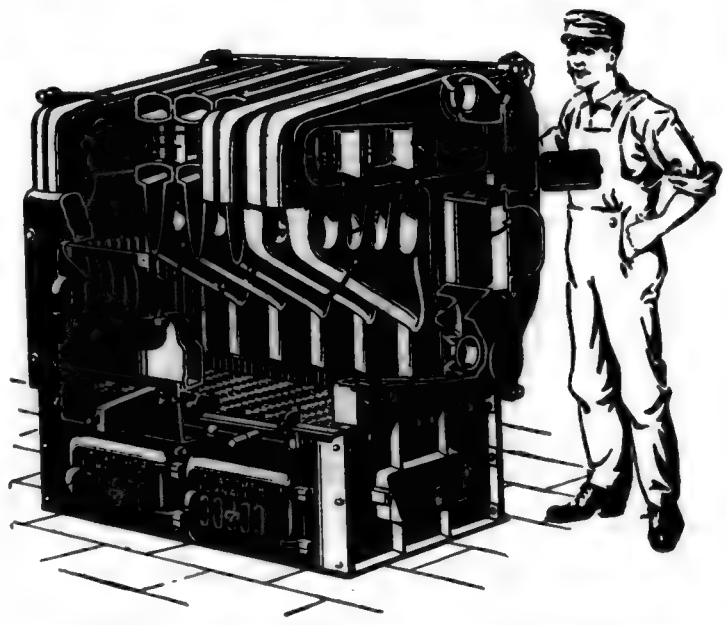
Greenhouse Heating.



NO AIR VALVES NEEDED.

I am planning to build an addition to my greenhouse, according to the enclosed plan. The houses will be even-span, eleven feet high to the ridge and seven feet high to the plate. The south wall will consist of two feet of concrete blocks and five feet of glass. The north side will be boarded, with tarred paper on the outside. The west end of the south house will have three feet of siding and the remainder will be glass. The west end of the north house will be protected by the workroom. The east end of both houses will contain about thirty-three square feet of glass; the rest will be sided up. I have a No. 4 Kroeschell boiler and shall use a hot water system. I wish to use 2-inch pipe for returns and I want a temperature of 65 to 70 degrees in zero weather. Where is the best place to connect the pipe for the expansion tank? Will it be necessary to put air valves in the returns? E. A. B.—Mich.

As nearly as we can make out from the sketch and description, the south house is 14x48, with five feet of glass in the south wall. The other house is 14x35, with the workroom and boiler cellar at the west end.

To keep up a temperature of 70 degrees in zero weather, we would run three 2½-inch flow pipes in each house. Place one upon each plate and the other two feet below the ridge. In the south house run twelve 2-inch returns, arranged in three coils. For the north house use ten returns, in three coils. If the main flow pipe to each house, which should be 3-inch, has a slight slope and if the expansion tank is connected with the

The Kroeschell has replaced hundreds of cast iron boilers. In every case higher temperatures are secured with the Kroeschell with the same piping and with less fuel.

Kroeschell Boilers, the best by test since 1879. Forty years' experience guarantee design, workmanship and working capacity.

The Kroeschell is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell the highest praise.

3,016,286 square feet of glass was equipped with Kroeschell Boilers during the year of 1916.

The Kroeschell at Washington, D. C.

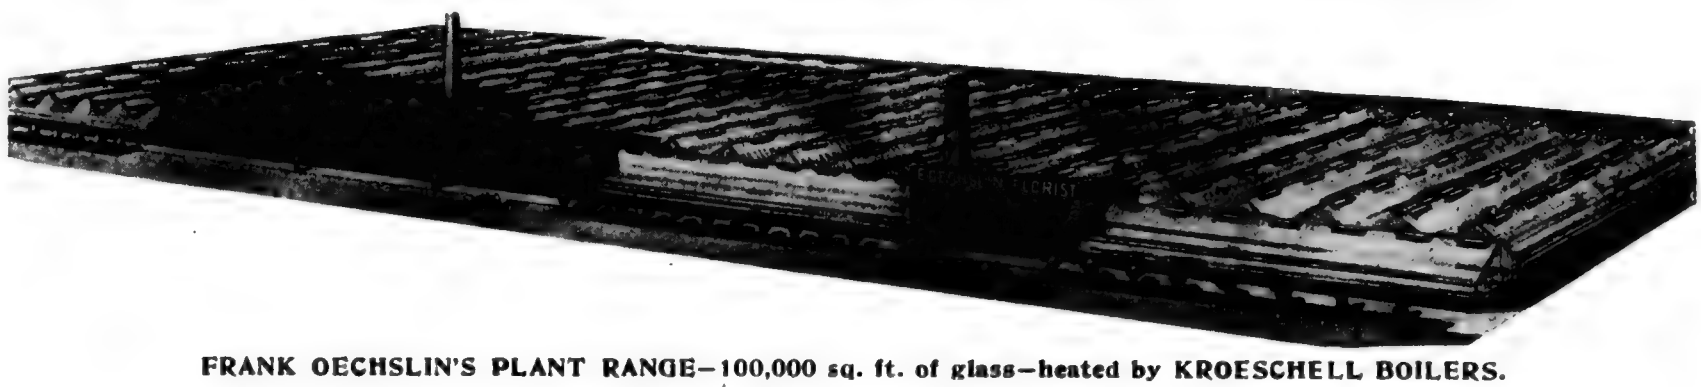
The conservatories of the President of the United States and the U. S. Propagating Gardens are located opposite the Washington monument at Washington, D. C. Over forty greenhouses are devoted to the growing of cut flowers, orchids, stove plants, tropical and decorative stock, and all bedding and ornamental plants for the U. S. Government buildings and grounds at Washington.

A No. 11 Kroeschell Boiler was installed in 1906 for the high temperature houses. This boiler replaced a number of other makes and made a remarkable record for fuel economy.

Uncle Sam's iron frame range erected in 1910 is heated by Kroeschell Boilers.

The Plant Introduction Garden of the United States Department of Agriculture, at Chico, California, is heated by No. 2 Kroeschell Boiler and Generator System.

In 1912 two No. 5 Kroeschell Boilers were installed for the new range of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, at Garrett Park, Md.



The U. S. Government's new establishment, the Northern Great Plains Field Station, at Mandan, N. Dakota, ordered a No. 7 Kroeschell Boiler for the new greenhouse range erected in 1913.

August [illegible] two more No. 11 Kroeschell Boilers were ordered for the White House Conservatories and U. S. Propagating Gardens, Washington, D. C.

FRANK OECHSLIN'S PLANT RANGE—100,000 sq. ft. of glass—heated by KROESCHELL BOILERS.

THE PLANT KING OF THE WEST

Ten years have been sufficient to make the history of the plant trade in Chicago, and Frank Oechslin is the man who has in a single decade established this business and built the only exclusive wholesale plant range in the big western city.

The first land (ten lots) was bought in 1902, and the first greenhouses (six small ones) were built the following year; there are now 31 large houses, 600 hotbed sash and ten acres of land in evidence of Mr. Oechslin's skill as a grower.

One of the principles upon which the Oechslin business has been built is to be satisfied with nothing short of the best a greenhouse can be made to produce. To produce the best, only the best in greenhouse material and construction has been employed.

Mr. Oechslin's greenhouses are now the show place of the city, and visitors there are always welcome. Go and see them, and when you admire the perfection of the plants and the cleanliness of the place, remember to visit the boiler rooms and note that the name KROESCHELL is found on every one of the boilers.

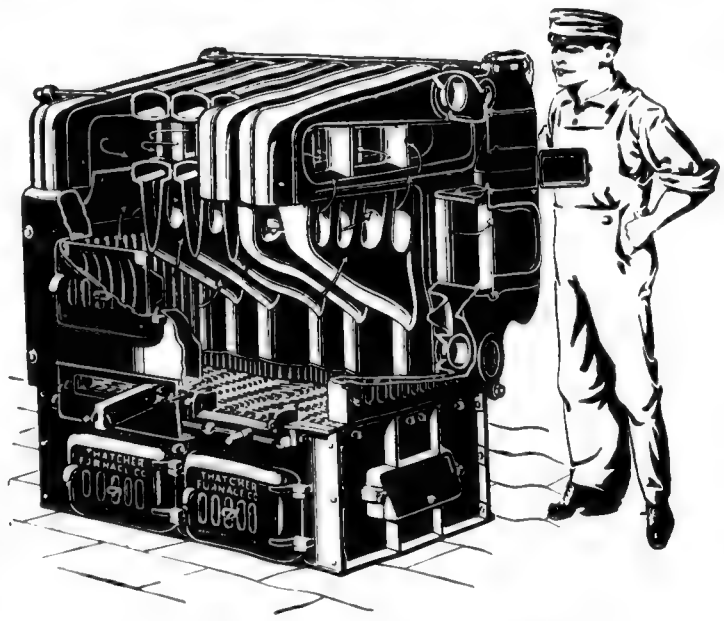
Greenhouse Heating.



NO AIR VALVES NEEDED.

I am planning to build an addition to my greenhouse, according to the enclosed plan. The houses will be even-span, eleven feet high to the ridge and seven feet high to the plate. The south wall will consist of two feet of concrete blocks and five feet of glass. The north side will be boarded, with tarred paper on the outside. The west end of the south house will have three feet of siding and the remainder will be glass. The west end of the north house will be protected by the workroom. The east end of both houses will contain about thirty-three square feet of glass; the rest will be sided up. I have a No. 4 Kroeschell boiler and shall use a hot water system. I wish to use 2-inch pipe for returns and I want a temperature of 65 to 70 degrees in zero weather. Where is the best place to connect the pipe for the expansion tank? Will it be necessary to put air valves in the returns? E. A. B.—Mich.

As nearly as we can make out from the sketch and description, the south house is 14x48, with five feet of glass in the south wall. The other house is 14x35, with the workroom and boiler cellar at the west end.

To keep up a temperature of 70 degrees in zero weather, we would run three $2\frac{1}{2}$ inch flow pipes in each house. Place one upon each plate and the other two feet below the ridge. In the south house run twelve 2-inch returns, arranged in three coils. For the north house use ten returns, in three coils. If the main flow pipe to each house, which should be 3-inch, has a slight slope and if the expansion tank is connected with the

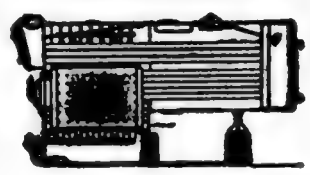
PIPING A TEXAS GREENHOUSE.

We are erecting a greenhouse 35x100 feet, with three feet of glass in each side wall and the front gable all glass, and we wish to know how to arrange the piping. We have a quantity of 2½-inch and 3½-inch pipe which we prefer to use. We have a Lord & Burnham sectional hot water boiler, rated at 4,500 square feet. The house runs north and south and is protected at the north end by the boiler room and potting shed. B. S.—Tex.



The letter does not state the temperature desired in the greenhouses and we do not know just what outside temperature must be provided for in eastern Texas, but for an inside temperature of 60 degrees, where the temperature seldom falls below 10 degrees above zero outside, we would suggest the use of three overhead flows and twelve 2½-inch returns. One flow may be placed on each plate and the other two or three feet under the ridge. Four returns may be connected with each of the wall flows and they may be located either on the side walls or under the side benches. The other returns should be

TRAVIS ROCKER GRATES

The interlocking finger rocker grates are unquestionably the most practical for economical firing.

We guarantee them to handle slack successfully, also the Pocahontas coal, and there will be no waste fuel in the ash pit. Cheap coal that makes bad cinders is handled in the most successful manner possible.

The only proper method to handle a coal fire is to properly admit the draft.

You will conquer the firing problem.

Let us explain to you the only method of handling a coal fire.

It is only what every fireman is trying to accomplish.

The Market.

Although favored by cooler weather, the lack of rainfall has caused a scarcity of some outdoor flowers. Asters can hardly be said to be in short supply, but they are of inferior quality, good asters being few. Gladioli are off crop, the hot, dry weather causing them to dry up. The new crop of short roses is making its appearance. The blooms are of fair quality, but limited in number. Lilies, which have been rather abundant all summer, are off crop.

Ferns have been receiving a fair call. Funeral work continues active, as does the call for flowers for the sick. Summer weddings are popular this season and constitute an important item in the business done.

Various Notes.

Janisch & Weiss, proprietors of the Broad Ripple Floral Co., have discontinued business.

Albert Stanley recently purchased a new pleasure car.

A. Young, of the Young Tool Co., Casey, Ill., visited the city last week.

The Hoosier Floral Co. has been cutting a fine late gladioli. This concern's dahlias are doing well, but are suffering from the drought. If rain comes soon enough, the plants will produce fine, large blooms; if not, they will be practically a failure.

The Circle Flower Store has added a bookkeeper to its staff.

Mrs. A. P. Reynolds is recovering slowly.

Mrs. William Roepke and son, Victor, have just returned from a trip to Canada and through the east.

While A. F. J. Baur is attending the S. A. F. convention in New York his family is visiting at Richmond, Ind.

Fred Hukriede's son and daughter have been visiting at Fort Wayne.

The September meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will be held Tuesday, September 11, at Columbus, Ind. Further particulars will be mailed to the members. The October meeting will be October 31, at Evansville. At the October meeting there will be a good showing of chrysanthemums.

At the place of Henry Rieman preparations are rapidly being made for winter. All is order and neatness.

Baur & Steinkamp have been busy with carnation and poinsettia orders.

DAYLITE GLASS CLEANER

QUICK

We are usually too busy to give testimonials but most of us like to receive commendation for our goods, and we thought you would not object to a line from us in that direction. We have in front of our store a large marquee with a wired glass top. The latter has been extremely dirty, and we have not been able to clean it with water. It occurred to the writer to have our porter make an application of Andersen Daylite Glass Cleaner, and it is almost unbelievable what a difference there is! The glass is now as if it were new, and we have fully 75 per cent more light.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

The weather was cloudy and cool last week, but rain is badly needed. Business has improved, decorations and funeral orders keeping the retailers busy. Gladioli rule the market and are unusually fine. Sweet peas are arriving in larger quantities, but the stems are short and the flowers are not so good as they have been. Snapdragons are plentiful and good. Asters are improving, but as yet have not reached their prime. Dahlias are of good quality, but scarce. Good adiantum is plentiful.

Denver is frequented by many tourists, but they have not proved to be flower buyers.

Various Notes.

Defective wiring caused a fire in an office above the store of the Park Floral Co. No damage was done to the store or conservatory.

Adolph F. Konecny, foreman at the Crown Hill cemetery greenhouses, has returned from a two weeks' vacation at Wichita, Kan., his former home.

W. Wilmore, Jr., is having some splendid window displays of outdoor flowers from his place at Wheatridge.

Otto Sandberg recently purchased a machine, and to give it a tryout he took Charles France, Robert Knoth and J. Erickson on a week-end trip to northern Colorado and southern Wyoming.

J. A. Valentine has gone to his cabin in the mountains, forty-five miles from Denver, for a rest. The Park Floral Co. is erecting a house 25x125 to take the place of a house recently torn down.

E. Johnson, of Colorado Springs, visited the trade here last week. He reports business good with the Pike's Peak Floral Co.

Misses Lena Webb and Leonora Williams are having their vacations. Miss Webb is at home and Miss Williams went to Eldorado Springs.

The wholesale plant houses report a fine shipping business, especially in 2-inch and 3-inch cyclamens, primulas and cinerarias. Ferns in 5-inch and 6-inch pots also are having a good sale.

The Market.

The condition of the market improved last week, there being a better supply of stock, although the demand was about stationary. Good roses are more plentiful and prices remain the same. Asters and gladioli have improved in both quantity and quality, more home-grown stock now being received. Reports from Kansas City, Kan., say business there is good, considering the time of year.

Various Notes.

Charles Thomas is busy remodeling his store, and is erecting a service building at the back of his establishment. His chrysanthemums and cyclamens look well.

Mr. Drummond, of the Kansas City Tobacco Products Co., says sales have been good recently.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. has some fine roses and lilies. Mr. Rock is in Minnesota and will be gone until September 1.

Samuel Murray had an elaborate wedding decoration last week. Funeral business has been good at this store.

T. J. Noll & Co. report that stock is more plentiful and of a better grade.

Arthur Newell had a big run on hospital bouquets last week.

Jacob Hepting has so far recovered from his illness that he is able to be about the greenhouses, but still is too weak to do much work. His carnations and chrysanthemums are doing well.

The George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. greenhouses are producing quantities of stock now. Mrs. Lamb is taking a vacation in Minnesota and will return about September 1.

W. J. Barnes reports that his establishment is in good shape for fall and winter business, and that the pot plants are the best he has ever grown.

The Market.

Business was exceptionally dull during the first part of last week, but August 18 and 19 the demand was excellent, as there was a large quantity of funeral work. Outside of this, however, the activity was limited.

The supply is excellent in summer flowers. Gladiolus receipts are increasing, especially of America, Chicago White, Perfection and Arizona. There are a fine lot of asters and a number of good summer roses. Some of the growers are sending field-grown carnations into the market that are of good quality. Lilies are more abundant, giganteums the most plentiful, then rubrums. Cattleyas are scarce, as also are dendrobiums. Some excellent hydrangeas are to be had, and Golden Glow, snapdragons and coreopsis make up the variety. Tuberoses in pots are to be seen in some of the windows.

Various Notes.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., left August 18 for eastern points, intending to spend several days in New York during the S. A. F. convention. Good lilies, orchids, roses and asters are being cut at the Vesey greenhouses.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Shive motored to Fostoria, O., last week, where they spent several days. They were accompanied by their four sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Lanternier have returned with their family from an outing of two weeks at Snow lake. Mr. and Mrs. Clem Lanternier motored to Snow lake last week for a visit. A. J. Lanternier & Co. are cutting blooms from their field carnation plants. They are showing good lilies, tuberoses, asters and outdoor flowers. Business was good with them last week.

The repairs at the store of the Flick Floral Co. have just been finished.

Weddings and funeral work have kept things on the move at the Doswell Floral Co. store. Some fine Easter lilies and Ophelia roses were noted.

The Wright gladiolus farm, west of the city, is a flourishing place these days. Mr. Wright has all of the best varieties, as well as a number of the newer ones.

Mrs. Selma Schilling, aged 41 years, wife of Adolph Schilling, the well-known gardener, died here August 6. She had been an invalid for one year. Surviving, besides the husband, are four children. R. F.

The Market.

An unusual number of funerals and weddings, among the latter several in which army uniforms were prominent, made business good last week. Several prenuptial affairs, too, helped the florists dispose of many flowers and greens. There are excellent roses on the market, consisting of Beauties, Kaiserins, Ophelias and Russells. Beauties are especially good and are selling well. A corsage rose, Florence Nesbitt, is also popular.

Outdoor stock is abundant and brings low prices. There are quantities of sweet peas, while asters, gladioli, bachelor's buttons and gaillardias are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The Farmer Seed & Nursery Co. is cutting some excellent George Elger roses, gladioli and sweet peas.

The Hiawatha Gardens Co. has filled its greenhouses with ferns and plants for late fall sale. The other greenhouses on Lyndale avenue have been producing some fine Ophelia, Kaiserin and Russell roses.

Swanson, Inc., has been showing begonia and cyclamen plants grown at the company's greenhouses. The retail store does a big business, and is noted for its fine showing of cut flowers and plants and for its window displays.

J. F. Johnson, of the Whitted Floral Co., has returned from a vacation spent at Lake Pelican, near Pequot, Minn.

William F. Holmes has caught the spirit of the times and last week featured a window of knitting bags, with a background of ferns and palms.

Miss Marie Haule has returned to her store on Fifth avenue after a vacation spent in Wisconsin.

The L. S. Donaldson Co. greenhouses all are in shape for the season. The retail store has been doing an excellent business. E. M. P.

A. J. STAHELIN'S
Foley Iron Frame House
And what he thinks about it

Redford, Mich., August 11th, 1917.

Gentlemen:

Of all the houses on my place, the 72 x 400 ft. house which you built for me last year has given me the greatest satisfaction. It is as well designed as any house I have ever seen, and was erected with the greatest care. I am especially pleased with the painting and glazing. (Signed)

A. J. Stahelin.

And we will further add that this "Foley House" was not his first Iron Framer, as many florists know. A short time before he placed the order with us for the above house, another builder had completed his first one. But Mr. Stahelin, like most up-to-date growers, wanted the best to be had, saw that we had the best house and had us build it for him.

WOOD LABELS.

LABELS FOR NURSERYMEN AND FLORISTS.
Benjamin Chase Co., Derry Village, N. H.

A CATERPILLAR EXTERMINATOR.

I am mailing a sample of the grubs which are devouring the leaves of my grape vine and which, I understand, are doing much damage to elm trees in different parts of the city. Can you tell me the name of this pest, and how to destroy it? Is there a likelihood of its attacking onions, cabbage or tomatoes after it has finished the grape vine? I immersed the specimen in alcohol and this changed its color a little.

J. T. H.—Wis.

The caterpillar was shriveled up when received and I could not identify it. For all pests of this description a poisonous spray is necessary. The most effective is one of arsenate of lead paste, four pounds to fifty gallons of water. It is adhesive and will not wash off like Paris green, hellebore or other poisons. It should not be used on cabbage, lettuce or other vegetables just heading up, however. The arsenate of lead can be safely applied to all trees and shrubs, also to quite a number of vegetable plants, including potatoes, tomatoes, egg-plants, beans, peas and any others which caterpillars may attack. Use a fine, misty spray nozzle when applying the poison. C. W.

GYPSOPHILA PANICULATA.

Please give me cultural directions for Gypsophila paniculata and a description of the plant. E. A. R.—Ill.

Gypsophila paniculata carries cloud-like heads of small, pure white flowers. It is fine for cutting. The spikes are wide and much branched. Seed sown in spring will flower the following year. A few, if sown early, will bloom the same year. It grows to a height of two to two and one-half feet. Allow fourteen inches of space between the plants in the rows. There is a double white form superior to the single for cutting, not procurable from seeds. C. W.

THREE ACRES OF PERENNIALS.

I want to devote about three acres to the growing of hardy perennials. One acre would be used as a show ground of well established stock; the other two acres would be used for the growing of the young stock for sale. I am summer-fallowing this ground at the present time, and wish to know whether I can grow from seed a good part of my stock. Shall I sow now, and would you recommend sowing in flats in the greenhouse or outside in frames? Shall I transplant into frames or into nursery rows? Will seeds sown now produce stock that will be ready to market this fall and what proportion shall I hold until spring? I would need such a list as has been advertised for several weeks on page 1 of The Review, supplemented with as many others as could be grown in this locality. J. O. S.—N. Y.

A good many varieties of biennials and perennials can be advantageously sown now. Frames which are convenient to water, and which can be kept shaded until the seedlings are germinated, are better than any outdoor beds. However, for forget-me-nots, daisies, violets, pansies, coreopsis and hollyhocks, outdoor beds a yard wide, which can be well pulverized and can be given water during dry weather and a little overhead shade from cheesecloth, answer well. Unless you are sure of moist, showery weather, it is safer to transplant into frames and later put outdoors in beds or nursery rows. Some plants will be large enough to sell this fall, but the majority will not be sufficiently robust until spring. Pansies, myosotis, violas, daisies, lupines, Chinese larkspurs, hollyhocks, coreopsis and rockets are a few which could be sold in the fall if required. Sow all these at once.

Some other good perennials to sow now are: Digitalis, or foxgloves; Gaillardia grandiflora; sweet williams; delphiniums, both hybrids and chinense; Lupinus polyphyllus, pink, white and blue; Papaver orientale and nudicaule; aquilegias, in which long-spurred hybrids are best; Iberis sempervirens and gibraltarica; Arabis albida; Pyrethrum roseum; Valeriana officinalis; Stokesia cyanea; Platycodon grandiflorum; Campanula carpatica; Hibiscus Moscheutos; Tritoma grandiflora; Hesperis matronalis; Dianthus plumarius; Alyssum saxatile compactum; Agrostemma coronaria; Anchusa italica, Dropmore and Opal, and Scabiosa caucasica. It is now too late to sow such campanulas as Medium, or Canterbury bells, persicifolia and pyramidalis for flowering next year. The smaller of your seedlings, which would include aquilegias, iberis, campanulas and pyrethrums, will be better if carried over the winter in coldframes. Those planted outdoors will need a mulch of hay, straw or leaves when the ground freezes.

C. W.

POA NEMORALIS, SHADE GRASS.

I am sending you a sample of grass and would like to know of what value it is as a lawn cover. C. E.—Ill.

Poa nemoralis, or wood meadow grass, succeeds specially well under trees and withstands drought better than almost any other grass. It is, however, hard to cut with a lawn mower or scythe, owing to its silky nature, and it is not suitable for lawn seeding. C. W.

Winter-Flowering Sweet Peas

GIANT SPENCER VARIETIES

The best that can be procured for winter flowering under glass.

Five Good California Varieties

Early Snowflake, large, pure white, ¼ oz., 75c; ½ oz., $1.25; oz., $2.00.

Early Spring Maid, beautiful cream-pink, ¼ oz., 40c; ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25; ¼ lb., $4.00; lb., $12.00.

Early Melody, soft rose-pink, ¼ oz., 40c; ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25; ¼ lb., $4.00; lb., $12.00.

Early Song Bird, pale pink, ¼ oz., 40c; ½ oz., 75c; oz., $1.25; ¼ lb., $4.00; lb., $12.00.

YARRAWA

The most popular winter-flowering Sweet Pea. Color is beautiful rose-pink with a slight salmon tint. We offer a selected strain of this variety. ½ oz., 40c; oz., 75c; ¼ lb., $2.25; lb., $8.00.

Six Splendid Australian Varieties

CONCORD Spencer types

The Concord Varieties of Winter-flowering Spencer Sweet Peas are perhaps the most advanced and finest of all. The colors are distinct, clear and true. They flower earlier than any other type, and the blossoms are of large Spencer form, with long stems. Unfortunately they are shy seeders and, therefore, the seed is scarce and expensive We are obliged to offer in packets only this year.

Prices, any of the following:

Pkt. (50 seeds), 40c; 5 pkts., $1.75.

Concord Pink, beautiful delicate pink.
Concord Crimson, fine ruby red.
Concord Lavender, light lavender blue.
Concord White, large, pure white.
Concord Salmon, soft salmon pink.
Concord Blue, dark purple blue.

We have on hand fresh seed of Giant Flowered Cyclamen in all popular colors, also Primula, Cineraria, Calceolaria; Perennial Flower Seeds for summer sowing and Annuals for winter flowering under glass.

LOOKING FORWARD TO 1918

The man who looks and plans ahead, clear-brained and confident, is the man who keeps in front of the procession and seldom talks about "Hard Times." The man who invests in the following New Roses will not have his market crowded for a year or two and will certainly make money.

COLUMBIA
THE IMPROVED SHAWYER
(Hill)

The splendid new pink Seedling that has already made its reputation with every grower who visited the Hill establishment this year.

OPHELIA SUPREME
(Dailledouze)

Many of us are nursing a sport or two of Ophelia, but "Supreme" is the fitting name for this one, as it covers every good point of the parent and is a wonderful shade of Rose, flushed yellow at the base of the petals.

Note these two sorts at the fall shows and get aboard!

ALL ABOUT THE S. A. F. CONVENTION

Supply Exhibits is summed up in this short conversation heard whenever or wherever florists greeted each other in the hall—

First Florist—Have you seen the Rice Exhibit of Supplies?

Second Florist—Not yet, I just got in.

First Florist—Come on with me. I've seen it several times, but each time I see something I didn't see before. I've attended conventions for many years, but I never saw anything to equal this display in size, artisticness and variety. Everybody's talking about it! It's astounding!

OUR DISPLAY WAS A TRIUMPH FOR "KEYSTONE QUALITY" SUPPLIES AND METHODS.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

S. A. F. TO GO INTO THE MAGAZINES

To drive home the slogan, "Send Flowers, Always a Good Idea," is the purpose of the publicity campaign decided on at the New York convention. A unanimous vote also authorized a committee to start a bureau of credits and collections, thus making last week epochal in the affairs of the society.

CHARLES H. TOTTY was elected president of the Society of American Florists as almost the last act of the thirty-third annual convention, held at New York last week, his majority being seventy-six votes over Abraham Lincoln Miller. The election was a friendly contest fought to a conclusion with such vigor that it was one of the most interesting features of an especially interesting meeting, but in far-reaching importance to the trade the success of either candidate was overshadowed by the decision to launch a campaign of national publicity for flowers and to establish a national credits and collections bureau for the trade.

Although the trades' display was not so large as expected and the attendance not up to anticipations, the convention goes into trade history as one of the best in the long and successful records of the S. A. F. Many a member said it was the best convention he ever has attended.

Excellent!

The business sessions were largely attended; there were more members in the chairs than at certain other conventions where the registration has been much greater. President Kerr demonstrated unusual ability as a presiding officer. At all times he was master of the parliamentary situation, and he made himself heard by all in spite of much outside noise.

The trade exhibitors did much better than the size of the attendance would indicate. The plantsmen did particularly well, but some of the exhibitors of ribbons and florists' supplies also report excellent business.

The really big feature of the convention, however, was the decision to launch a national campaign of publicity for flowers. It was one of those touch-and-go affairs which, like a fire barely escaping extinction, blaze up with intensity. The publicity committee had presented a complete outline for an up-to-date publicity campaign, it had been commended by various speakers as just the thing the trade should do, but the means of doing it was so far away that a motion to refer the matter again to a committee had been made when F. L. Atkins, of Bobbink & Atkins, took the floor. "That is just what the Ornamental Nurserymen have been doing," he said; "they always were going to do something, but never did. The motion before the house means that the S. A. F. won't do anything for at least another year. Let's do something now, or else let's forget the whole scheme."

"All right," said Joseph Heacock, "let's do something now. We have the plan; all we need is the money. I start the subscription list with $500." (Applause.)

The next half hour was devoted to recording the names of others who wanted to get on what President Kerr called the honor roll.

The Plan.

W. F. Therkildson, chairman of the publicity committee, presented a brief typewritten report which was in fact only an argument for advertising. "We can sell flowers by advertising," reported Mr. Therkildson, "as surely as Uneeda Biscuit, Cream of Wheat, Victrolas, Cornflakes, Shredded Wheat Biscuit, Dutch Cleanser, Wrigley's Gum and a thousand other things. All of you are familiar with these great successes, for which there was no natural demand, but which have made endless millions because people have been led to believe them a necessity because they are before them day and night.

"Are we going to make a real business of the florists' business? Are we going to enter the ranks of live mer-

The S. A. F. will raise $50,000 for advertising the uses of flowers.

At New York last week over $12,000 was raised. Individual subscriptions ranged from $5.00 to $500.00.

Everyone will wish to help—it's a work that has possibilities of wonderful benefits for the whole trade.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

S. A. F. TO GO INTO THE MAGAZINES

To drive home the slogan, "Send Flowers, Always a Good Idea," is the purpose of the publicity campaign decided on at the New York convention. A unanimous vote also authorized a committee to start a bureau of credits and collections, thus making last week epochal in the affairs of the society.

CHARLES H. chants, or are we going to be content with what comes to us without effort? If so, we shall have to be content with less than we have had in former years.

"You have advertising successes in your midst. I could name many of them, but I will use Penn for my illustration. I don't need to say much; the lesson is before you and plain as day. From 'Newsboy to Wealth.' No fairy story is better. All done by live advertising.

"So we offer this complete plan, diagram, schedule, sketches, and even slogan for a real live campaign to put flowers on the commercial map."

"Send Flowers," the Slogan.

The principal part of Mr. Therkildson's report was extemporaneous, a description of the plan the committee has outlined. It is shown in the line drawing reproduced on this page. The work is to be under the direction of the S. A. F. and the F. T. D. The sources of income are to be several. It is planned to have sticker stamps for sale to the trade, to supply mailing cards, folders, booklets, window cards, all of which will produce revenue now diverted to suppliers outside the trade; newspaper advertising plates are to be purchasable from the committee and many special services are to be sold at a price that will make them advantageous to the buyer and still return a profit to the publicity bureau. But the greater part of the funds, of course, must come from subscriptions by those in the trade and by the trade societies.

The committee is to have an office in charge of an experienced publicity man, whose entire time is to be devoted to exploiting flowers. He is to prepare the various advertising helps that are to enable the local florists to tie up their own stores with the national campaign. He will supply the material at moderate prices and give advice as to how to use it. The publicity campaign itself will consist of large pictorial advertisements in widely read general magazines. Large picture, little text, the committee says. How far it will be possible to go depends on the funds raised. A schedule was shown calling for a total expenditure of $50,000, another calling for fewer insertions costing $40,000, with a third totaling $30,000.

The Money in Sight.

Mr. Therkildson was accompanied by an advertising specialist who told what had been done by others, although he cited only successes in advertising trade-marked or branded goods, and said the same thing can be done for flowers. The confidence of these two was infectious. Ella G. Wilson, Max Schling, F. L. Atkins, W. R. Pierson and others told of local successes; then the money-raising began. When the enthusiasm began to subside James McHutchison moved that the S. A. F. itself appropriate $5,000 to the campaign.

The following subscriptions were announced:

It was specifically stated in most cases that these were annual subscriptions for not less than five years.

It was ordered that checks be made payable to J. J. Hess, treasurer, and that the money be accounted for as a special advertising fund.

On motion of A. Farenwald the publicity committee was authorized to go ahead with the publicity work as outlined.

On motion of W. F. Therkildson the president was instructed to appoint a special committee to complete the raising of the funds.

Credit and Collection Bureau.

Patrick Welch presented a lengthy review of the discussion which led up to the appointment of a committee on a bureau of credits and collections. The need for such an institution in the trade is well known and Mr. Welch's paper, prepared originally to be presented to a meeting of the committee August 20, set out, not only the need, but the methods by which the need can be met. The committee had held three meetings during the convention, but was unable to recommend a definite plan to the society. It recommended, however, that a committee of five be appointed by the president, with full power to obtain a charter in any state in the Union, if it is deemed advisable to organize a corporation to handle the work; or to deal with any established credits and collections agency if the committee so desires.

The recommendation was adopted and the members of the committee say that they do not propose to let the matter slumber for another year, but to provide the trade at once with a dependable source of credit information and collection assistance.

The War and the Trade.

Robert Craig was on the program to open a discussion on "The Florists' Business in Its Relation to War Times." He said the war brings many unusual conditions and addressed himself particularly to the possibilities of finding substitutes for the stock the importation of which is shut off. He said C. W. Ward has invested $350,000 on the Pacific coast in a nursery principally to produce azaleas and other plants heretofore imported. Mr. Craig passed around photographs of Mr. Ward's place, several of which have appeared in The Review in connection with articles on the subject. Mr. Craig said he considers the so-called French hydrangeas have wonderful possibilities and predicted that in them we shall find an excellent substitute for azaleas. He also recommended the trial of antirrhinums and campanulas as pot plants. As a substitute for boxwood he suggested small native evergreens.

Max Schling spoke of numerous plants with bright variegated foliage, saying that an azalea never was otherwise than a risky thing to sell to a customer ignorant of its care. He said that psychology is a wonderful factor in salesmanship, and that we can make customers take any view we wish by merely making the suggestion that a flower is suited to a certain purpose.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., spoke of the patriotic and sentimental side of the war, urging that no sacrifice we as business men can make is equal to the sacrifice made by the men who go to France.

E. G. Hill told of correspondence with business associates in England, who report that demand is good, that prices are good and that the principal trouble is in the supply of labor and material. He predicted that our own experience will be no less endurable than that of the trade in England, who are of good cheer.

F. C. W. Brown, of Cleveland, spoke of satisfactory business conditions in Canada and asserted his confidence of continued active demand here.

Mothers' Day.

O. J. Olson, chairman of the Mothers' day committee, was not present, but he sent a report, read by E. J. Fancourt, showing the collection of $571 at a cost to the committee of $516.50, leaving a balance of $54.50. The report expressed the belief of the committee that Mothers' day offers the greatest opportunity now available to the trade, and that its value came with the general acceptance of the couplet (it was coined in The Review office) that makes for the use of all flowers:

> In Mother's memory, flowers white;
> For Mother at home, flowers bright.

The committee expressed its regret at the small success which had attended its efforts to raise money to be turned over to Miss Jarvis, the originator of Mothers' day.

The report was followed by a sharp discussion, a number of those present being unable to harmonize the repeated requests, amounting almost to demands, that the trade raise money for Miss Jarvis, apparently for her personal use, while at the same time that lady and her Mothers' Day Association decry and forbid the commercialization of the day. Among those who spoke on the subject were S. S. Skidelsky, George Asmus, Robert Kift, A. Farenwald, P. Welch, Frank Gorly, F. L. Atkins and David

Geddis. E. G. Hill finally afforded the idea that disposed of the matter by moving that Miss Jarvis be referred to the publicity committee, who can employ her if her services appear to have value.

Committee on President's Address.

The committee, consisting of H. P. Knoble, Patrick Welch, George Asmus, C. E. Critchell and Joseph Heacock, to whom the president's address was referred, recommended concurrence in his recommendations. The committee also recommended that the secretary prepare instructions for the state vice-presidents, with a view to increasing their usefulness; that the society give serious consideration to the matter of holding the national flower show annually, in connection with the convention, in the spring; that the tariff and legislation committee maintain increasing vigilance to defend the trade from injury; that the members of the society send the publicity committee all articles in local papers discouraging the use of flowers, to the end that publication of counter articles be secured; that every firm and individual in the trade be urged to contribute something to the funds for publicity; that a committee of three be appointed to raise a fund for patriotic duty.

Judges on Trades' Display.

The judges of the trades' display were A. Gude, John Canning, W. H. Siebrecht, A. Kottmiller, H. P. Knoble, W. C. Gloeckner, E. A. Peirce, Henry Weston and W. G. Badgley. Secretary Young read their report. Honorable mention was recommended for the exhibits of Schloss Bros., M. Rice Co., Hitchings & Co., Mead-Suydam Co., C. J. Kraus, Wertheimer Bros., H. Bayersdorfer & Co., F. R. Pierson Co., John Scheepers & Co., Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Fred Dressel, General Rubber Co., Lager & Hurrell, Robert Craig Co., C. E. Falls, the Expanded Wood Co., Vaughan's Seed Store, S. S. Pennock Co., H. F. Michell Co., Basket Novelty Co., and the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. High commendation was recommended for the exhibits of the A. L. Randall Co., Reed & Keller, Bobbink & Atkins, Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co., John Lewis Childs, J. H. Fiesser, Joseph Heacock Co., Heatherhome Co., Mirror Mfg. Co., J. G. Neidinger Co., Nitrate Agencies Co., J. A. Peterson & Sons, A. N. Pierson, Inc., Julius Roehrs Co., B. Rosens, Russin & Hanfling and others. The report was adopted.

Judges on the Garden.

The judges of the Convention Garden were Arthur Herrington, R. A. Vincent and J. H. Pepper. For them the latter recommended certificates of merit be awarded to Isaac Hicks & Son, for collection of evergreens; to B. Hammond Tracy, for gladioli; to Conard & Jones Co., for Cannas Snow Queen and New York; to Henry A. Dreer, Inc., for Canna Orange Bedder, and to Wm. Tricker, for pool of aquatics. Honorable mention was recommended for Vaughan's Seed Store, for Gladiolus Frank Pendleton and Canna Yellow King Humbert; to John Lewis Childs, for collection of gladioli; to Henry A. Dreer, Inc., for Canna Scharfenstein; to Thomas Meehan & Sons, for hibiscus; to A. L. Miller, for flower beds.

The Election.

The new method of conducting the election, with four sets of judges working at once, each set handling a fourth of the letters of the alphabet, was used for the first time and proved a splendid feature. It obviated the necessity of standing in line to vote, made it possible to poll the entire vote in a short time, in comfort, and to announce the result promptly.

The only contest was for the presidency. The count showed: C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., 198; A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., 122.

The other officers were elected unanimously, as follows:

Vice-president, Jules Bourdet, of St. Louis.

Secretary, John Young, of New York.

Treasurer, J. J. Hess, of Omaha.

Directors for three years, Joseph Manda, South Orange, N. J.; C. E. Critchell, Cincinnati, O.

After President Kerr had made the announcement the defeated candidate made a neat speech of congratulation and moved that the election be made unanimous, to which Mr. Totty replied with a few words of thanks and appreciation.

Miscellaneous Matters.

A motion to express approval of the action of President Wilson in ordering the reduction of coal to certain fixed prices provoked a lively debate, which resulted in the decision that it is inadvisable to call attention at this time to the fuel needs of the trade.

On motion of W. F. Therkildson telegrams were ordered sent to the managers of the war revenue bill now under consideration at Washington, objecting to the proposed mailing tax of 1 cent each on catalogues weighing over four ounces.

Chairman Theodore Wirth, of the committee on convention garden, sent a report regretting that this year's garden is a disappointment in spite of much hard work by all concerned, but predicting better results at the next one, in 1919, urging earnest endeavor to that end.

J. F. Ammann, A. F. Poehlmann and A. A. Niessen drafted suitable final resolutions, expressing the usual appreciation of courtesies.

CONFERENCE ON EXCLUSION.

During the S. A. F. convention at New York the long-before-agreed-to conference was held to discuss the proposal to prohibit all plant imports as a means of protecting American plant life from foreign insects and diseases. The interests represented were the Economic Entomologists, headed by Prof. Saunders, whose pet measure this is; the American Association of Nurserymen and the Society of American Florists. James McHutchison protested that although the conference had been agreed to months ago, the date was set at such short notice that it was impossible to get a representative number of men together and the meeting resolved itself into an informal discussion.

It appears that a number of the entomologists are beginning to appreciate the needlessness of a complete prohibition of all plant imports and the great disturbance of business which would result, with the possibility that the agitation for such a law will subside. Also there is the probability that so many larger matters now demand attention at Washington that such legislation will not be considered for some time to come.

North Tonawanda, N. Y.—A gasoline shed at the rear of the William Papke greenhouses at Beach Ridge was destroyed by fire last week.

Two Rivers, Wis.—Yes, the troubles of Harry C. Bartz now begin, according to an old saying. The young lady was Miss Elsie Redeker, of Manitowoc, where the wedding was held.

Geddis. E. G. Hill finally afforded the idea that disposed of the matter by moving that Miss Jarvis be referred to the publicity committee, who can employ her if her services appear to have value.

Committee on President's Address.

The committee, consisting of H. P. Knoble, Patrick Welch, George Asmus, C. E. Critchell and Joseph Heacock, to whom the president's address was referred, recommended concurrence in his recommendations. The committee also recommended that the secretary prepare instructions for the state vice-presidents, with a view to increasing their usefulness; that the society give serious consideration to the matter of holding the national flower show annually, in connection with the convention, in the spring; that the tariff and legislation committee maintain increasing vigilance to defend the trade from injury; that the members of the society send the publicity committee all articles in local papers discouraging the use of flowers, to the end that publication of counter articles be secured; that every firm and individual in the trade be urged to contribute something to the funds for publicity; that a committee of three be appointed to raise a fund for patriotic duty.

Judges on Trades' Display.

The judges of the trades' display were A. Gude, John Canning, W. H. Siebrecht, A. Kottmiller, H. P. Knoble, W. C. Gloeckner, E. A. Peirce, Henry Weston and W. G. Badgley. Secretary Young read their report. Honorable mention was recommended for the exhibits of Schloss Bros., M. Rice Co., Hitchings & Co., Mead-Suydam Co., C. J. Kraus, Wertheimer Bros., H. Bayersdorfer & Co., F. R. Pierson Co., John Scheepers & Co., Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Fred Dressel, General Rubber Co., Lager & Hurrell, Robert Craig Co., C. E. Falls, the Expanded Wood Co., Vaughan's Seed Store, S. S. Pennock Co., H. F. Michell Co., Basket Novelty Co., and the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. High commendation was recommended for the exhibits of the A. L. Randall Co., Reed & Keller, Bobbink & Atkins, Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co., John Lewis Childs, J. H. Fiesser, Joseph Heacock Co., Heatherhome Co., Mirror Mfg. Co., J. G. Neidinger Co., Nitrate Agencies Co., J. A. Peterson & Sons, A. N. Pierson, Inc., Julius Roehrs Co., B. Rosens, Russin & Hanfling and others. The report was adopted.

Judges on the Garden.

The judges of the Convention Garden were Arthur Herrington, R. A. Vincent and J. H. Pepper. For them the latter recommended certificates of merit be awarded to Isaac Hicks & Son, for collection of evergreens; to B. Hammond Tracy, for gladioli; to Conard & Jones Co., for Cannas Snow Queen and New York; to Henry A. Dreer, Inc., for Canna Orange Bedder, and to Wm. Tricker, for pool of aquatics. Honorable mention was recommended for Vaughan's Seed Store, for Gladiolus Frank Pendleton and Canna Yellow King Humbert; to John Lewis Childs, for collection of gladioli; to Henry A. Dreer, Inc., for Canna Scharfenstein; to Thomas Meehan & Sons, for hibiscus; to A. L. Miller, for flower beds.

The Election.

The new method of conducting the election, with four sets of judges working at once, each set handling a fourth of the letters of the alphabet, was used for the first time and proved a splendid feature. It obviated the necessity of standing in line to vote, made it possible to poll the entire vote in a short time, in comfort, and to announce the result promptly.

The only contest was for the presidency. The count showed: C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., 198; A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., 122.

The other officers were elected unanimously, as follows:

Vice-president, Jules Bourdet, of St. Louis.

Secretary, John Young, of New York.

Treasurer, J. J. Hess, of Omaha.

Directors for three years, Joseph Manda, South Orange, N. J.; C. E. Critchell, Cincinnati, O.

After President Kerr had made the announcement the defeated candidate made a neat speech of congratulation and moved that the election be made unanimous, to which Mr. Totty replied with a few words of thanks and appreciation.

Miscellaneous Matters.

A motion to express approval of the action of President Wilson in ordering the reduction of coal to certain fixed prices provoked a lively debate, which resulted in the decision that it is inadvisable to call attention at this time to the fuel needs of the trade.

On motion of W. F. Therkildson telegrams were ordered sent to the managers of the war revenue bill now under consideration at Washington, objecting to the proposed mailing tax of 1 cent each on catalogues weighing over four ounces.

Chairman Theodore Wirth, of the committee on convention garden, sent a report regretting that this year's garden is a disappointment in spite of much hard work by all concerned, but predicting better results at the next one, in 1919, urging earnest endeavor to that end.

J. F. Ammann, A. F. Poehlmann and A. A. Niessen drafted suitable final resolutions, expressing the usual appreciation of courtesies.

John Westcott, of Philadelphia, who speaks in a most happy vein, presented to President and Mrs. Kerr a handsome chest of silver as a memento of the occasion. It was the last act of the convention.

THE ALLIED SOCIETIES

LADIES' S. A. F.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' S. A. F. was held at Hotel McAlpin, New York, August 22, President Miss Perle Fulmer, of Des Moines, Ia., in the chair.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Julius Roehrs, Rutherford, N. J.; first vice-president, Miss Bertha Meinhardt, St. Louis; second vice-president, Mrs. Joseph Manda, South Orange, N. J.; treasurer, Mrs. A. M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa.; secretary, Mrs. George W. Smith, Cleveland.

A revision of the by-laws was adopted.

The New York Florists' Club gave a reception for the ladies at the Hotel McAlpin on the evening of August 23. A theater party was given for the ladies August 22.

President Miss Fulmer entertained the officers and directors at luncheon August 22, which was the birthday anniversary of Mrs. C. H. Maynard, the retiring secretary, who was the recipient of several gifts.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

President W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort Wayne, Ind., occupied the chair at a well-attended meeting of the American Carnation Society at Grand Central Palace, New York, August 22.

Plans were made for the annual convention and exhibition of the society at Boston, January 30 and 31, 1918. Vice-president C. S. Strout outlined the arrangements, which were approved. The show will be staged in Horticultural hall and the banquet also will be served there, although the Copley-Plaza hotel will be headquarters.

It was decided to take charge of the carnation section of the National Flower Show at St. Louis, April 6 to 15, 1918, and to assume responsibility for the premiums of $1,500.

Secretary Baur spoke with every confidence of large exhibitions at both places.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

At a meeting of the American Rose Society held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, August 23, plans were discussed for participation in the Cleveland flower show, November 10 to 12, It was felt that the schedule for roses demanded amplification if the display is to be one such as will do credit to the society. The next meeting of the society will be held at that time.

Rules for the guidance of the nomenclature committee in the registering of new roses, drawn by a committee headed by Prof. Mulford, were adopted with some amendments to meet the views of the introducers of new varieties. The committee sought to simplify varietal nomenclature by laying down the rule that a name should consist of not more than two words, but the novelty dealers insisted that room must be left for the full names of persons and for the use of names of possession like Manda's Triumph, although both are frowned upon by the purists.

A report was made of the finances of the Philadelphia spring show. At the call of President Hammond, Treasurer May reported a working balance of $1,047.28.

Robert Pyle spoke in behalf of the great rose garden Prof. C. S. Sargent purposes to establish at Arnold Arboretum, Boston.

W. R. Pierson again called attention to the project to enlarge the rose garden at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., next spring. He wants stock for sixty beds.

At a subsequent directors' meeting Dailledouze Bros., Flatbush, N. Y., filed application for the registry of Rose Ophelia Supreme, sport of Ophelia, identical in habit but of deep and distinct pink.

The Rose Society already has planned to participate in the National Flower Show at St. Louis and Harry O. May, Robert Simpson and W. J. Keimel were appointed to prepare the premium list for the rose section. The following subscriptions were made toward the guarantee fund for the National Flower Show: Benjamin Hammond, $250; H. O. May, $100; E. Allan Peirce, $100; S. S. Pennock, $100; Wendland & Keimel Co., $100; Robert Simpson, $100; Conard & Jones Co., $100. It was voted that the following canvass given sections for further subscriptions: W. J. Keimel, the middle and far west; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia; H. O. May, New York; W. R. Pierson, New England.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

Officers Elected.

At the annual meeting of the American Gladiolus Society, held in the private office of Dr. Britton at the Museum building in Bronx park, New York, August 24, the organization was handed back to the management of the professional growers, commercial men being elected to the offices recently held by millionaire gladiolus fanciers. The new officers are:

President—E. A. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.

Vice-president—E. H. Meader, Dover, N. H.

Treasurer—Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y.

Secretary—Henry Youell, Syracuse, N. Y.

The Business Meeting.

In the absence of President Fairbanks, Vice-president T. A. Havemeyer, of sugar fame, occupied the chair. E. H. Meader acted as secretary in place of Mr. Youell, who is ill. Mr. Youell sent a pessimistic report of the progress of the society, which has been crab-fashion in the last year, eight new members having joined and eighteen having been lost. Treasurer Kunderd reported $742.05 in the bank, with only a few small current bills outstanding.

The new president was empowered to appoint the executive and exhibition committees with a view to holding the annual show in the west next year, preferably at Chicago.

There was the annual discussion as to a definition of what constitutes amateur and professional standing and how to secure the participation of the former class of exhibitors. It was as fruitless as heretofore.

It was agreed that the executive committee be recommended to engage the services of a promoter to work up interest in the 1918 exhibition.

The Exhibition.

The eighth annual exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society was held in the Museum building at Bronx park August 23 to 26, in coöperation with the Horticultural Society of New York, which supplied the premiums. It proved to be the largest display of cut gladiolus flowers ever staged in America. Two floors of the big building were occupied. A conservative estimate of the number of spikes staged would be 9,000 to 10,000. Using an average of eight flowers per spike, and some spikes carried fourteen, it would give 70,000 to 80,000 open flowers in the show.

Large as the show was, it would have been much larger except for misfortunes that befell some of the would-be exhibitors. Arthur Cowee, of Berlin, N. Y., always has been one of the chief factors in these shows, but this year he did not participate, weather conditions having been too unfavorable. The president, C. F. Fairbanks, Boston amateur, had planned a large showing, but August 21, on the eve of cutting the spikes, a hail storm destroyed his flowers; he had nothing to show.

Bronx park is about as undesirable a place for a flower show as one could imagine. It is not only far from the center of the city, but it is not easy of access, so that the attendance of the trade was limited to those having a special interest in the gladiolus. To these, naturally, the new varieties were the most important feature. There were many seedlings, most notable of which was the collection of some twenty from T. A. Havemeyer's Cedar Hill Nursery, Glen Head, N. Y. The prize for the best novelty, however, was awarded to a primulinus hybrid of distinct coloring, reddish pink with cream throat, exhibited by John Scheepers, Inc., a most artistic flower. Mr. Scheepers also staged a fine lot of white seedlings and another lot in which purple or lavender was predominant, said to be the work of the originator of G. princeps. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., also sent a large collection of seedlings. Herman H. Baer, New Hyde Park, N. Y., staged a group of Crystal White, which has so large a blotch of purple in the throat as almost to make the appellation a misnomer.

Good as are some of these novelties, to the average grower it will appear that Europa, as shown in the class for whites, will be difficult to displace; that Panama, as a pink, towers above any other gladiolus in the show; that Golden Measure, yellow, will sell in spite of all competition, and that Evelyn Kirkland, as staged by Madison Cooper, will hold its place for years.

The Craig and Pennock Exhibits in the Foreground, with Rice Under the Balcony.

The eastern growers are strong on primulinus. These hybrids afford new colors, which are particularly effective under artificial light, with a grace not possible with the rigid spikes of the older types, with which amenability to forcing is said to be combined. Nearly all the eastern exhibitors showed many pure primulinus hybrids and the influence of the blood was seen in many of the crosses with the gandavensis and Childsii types. The great group of B. Hammond Tracy, Cedar Acres, Wenham, Mass., which occupied the rotunda, was particularly strong in its primulinus varieties.

In the large collections, John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y., staged 125 varieties; Vaughan's Seed Store staged forty-five varieties and Thomas Cogger, Melrose, Mass., and E. H. Meader, Dover, N. H., had good displays. The principal groups by non-commercial growers were from P. W. Popp and Madison Cooper.

The Awards.

The awards in the classes open to all were as follows:

Most artistic display—B. Hammond Tracy, Cedar Acres, Wenham, Mass., first.

Best and largest collection, six spikes of each variety—John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., first.

Fifteen vases, fifteen varieties, twelve spikes each—John Lewis Childs, first.

Twenty-five vases, twenty-five varieties, three spikes each—C. Zeestreten, Bemus Point, N. Y., first; Thomas Cogger, Melrose, Mass., second.

Twenty-five spikes, artistically arranged—Thomas Cogger, first.

Twenty-five spikes white, one variety—Cedar Hill Nursery, Glen Head, N. Y., first; C. Zeestreten, second.

Twenty-five spikes red, one variety—C. Zeestreten, first; Thomas Cogger, second.

Twenty-five spikes crimson, one variety—John Lewis Childs, first.

Twenty-five spikes pink, one variety—Cedar Hill Nursery, first; H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H., second.

Twenty-five spikes yellow, one variety—Cedar Hill Nursery, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Twenty-five spikes blue or lavender, one variety—John Lewis Childs, first; C. Zeestreten, second.

Twenty-five spikes purple, one variety—H. E. Meader, first; B. H. Tracy, second.

Twenty-five spikes any other color—Cedar Hill Nursery, first; C. Zeestreten, second.

Twenty-five spikes, Lemoinei type, one variety—John Lewis Childs, first; Cedar Hill Nursery, second.

Twenty-five spikes primulinus hybrids, yellow—John Lewis Childs, first; Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y., second.

Twenty-five spikes, primulinus hybrids, orange—B. H. Tracy, first; Madison Cooper, second.

Twenty-five spikes, primulinus hybrids, any other color—Madison Cooper, first; B. H. Tracy, second.

Twenty-five spikes, ruffled, one variety—Thomas Cogger, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Twenty-five spikes, variety not in commerce previous to 1917—B. H. Tracy, first; Riverbank Gardens, Saxonville, Mass., second.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each—Thomas Cogger, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each, white predominating—John Lewis Childs, first.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each, pink predominating—Cedar Hill Nursery, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each, red or crimson predominating—John Lewis Childs, first.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each, purple, blue, lavender or mauve predominating—John Lewis Childs, first.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each, yellow predominating—John Lewis Childs, first; Cedar Hill Nursery, second.

New seedling, one spike—John Scheepers & Co., New York, first; Cedar Hill Nursery, second.

Twelve spikes, any one variety, not in commerce—B. H. Tracy, first; Riverbank Gardens, second.

Six spikes, any one variety, not in commerce—John Scheepers & Co., first; B. H. Tracy, second.

Ten varieties, six spikes each—Thomas Cogger, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Yellow primulinus hybrid seedling, purity of color and size to count, not less than five spikes—John Scheepers & Co., first.

Most artistically arranged basket or hamper, not more than twenty-five spikes—P. W. Popp, gardener to Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., first.

Yellow seedling never before exhibited, one or more spikes—Cedar Hill Nursery, first.

Vase any red variety, not less than ten spikes—E. M. Smith, East Hartford, Conn., first.

Twenty-five spikes primulinus hybrids, not less than 4-inch blooms—B. H. Tracy, first.

Twenty-five spikes Crimson Glow—B. H. Tracy, first.

Ten spikes Europa—John Lewis Childs, first.

Ten spikes Negerfuerst—John Lewis Childs, first.

Twelve spikes Golden King—John Lewis Childs, first.

Vase of mauve, lilac or violet seedling never before shown—B. H. Tracy, first.

Three spikes Lily White—H. E. Meader, first.

There were forty-five classes open only to non-commercial growers, but they brought out only three exhibitors, P. W. Popp, gardener to Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., who won fifteen first prizes and the achievement medal; Madison Cooper, of Calcium, N. Y., refrigeration manufacturer, publisher and gladiolus enthusiast, who won twelve first prizes and seven seconds, and J. P. Sorenson, gardener for Wm. Shillaber, Essex Falls, N. Y., who made only a few entries.

In the matter of amateur participation the show fell far short of the hopes of the promoters, as the wish has been to secure the active interest of the people who plant gladiolus bulbs for pure pleasure.

The following special prizes were awarded by the Horticultural Society of New York:

William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., for a display of seedling gladioli, silver medal.

Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., P. W. Popp, gardener, for a collection of dahlias, special prize.

Vaughan's Seed Store, New York, for a display of gladioli, silver medal.

H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H., for a vase of Gladiolus Myrtle, certificate of merit.

Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y., James Stuart, gardener, for a vase of Buddleia magnifica and Artemisia lactiflora, special prize.

John Scheepers & Co., New York city, for a collection of white seedlings, certificate of merit; for a display of seedlings, certificate of merit.

Bobbink & Atkins staged a table of their Mallow Marvels hibiscus.

There were several excellent exhibits of cactus and peony-flowered dahlias.

Secretary Baur spoke with every confidence of large exhibitions at both places.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

At a meeting of the American Rose Society held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, August 23, plans were discussed for participation in the Cleveland flower show, November 10 to 12, It was felt that the schedule for roses demanded amplification if the display is to be one such as will do credit to the society. The next meeting of the society will be held at that time.

Rules for the guidance of the nomenclature committee in the registering of new roses, drawn by a committee headed by Prof. Mulford, were adopted with some amendments to meet the views of the introducers of new varieties. The committee sought to simplify varietal nomenclature by laying down the rule that a name should consist of not more than two words, but the novelty dealers insisted that room must be left for the full names of persons and for the use of names of possession like Manda's Triumph, although both are frowned upon by the purists.

A report was made of the finances of the Philadelphia spring show. At the call of President Hammond, Treasurer May reported a working balance of $1,047.28.

Robert Pyle spoke in behalf of the great rose garden Prof. C. S. Sargent purposes to establish at Arnold Arboretum, Boston.

W. R. Pierson again called attention to the project to enlarge the rose garden at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., next spring. He wants stock for sixty beds.

At a subsequent directors' meeting Dailledouze Bros., Flatbush, N. Y., filed application for the registry of Rose Ophelia Supreme, sport of Ophelia, identical in habit but of deep and distinct pink.

The Rose Society already has planned to participate in the National Flower Show at St. Louis and Harry O. May, Robert Simpson and W. J. Keimel were appointed to prepare the premium list for the rose section. The following subscriptions were made toward the guarantee fund for the National Flower Show: Benjamin Hammond, $250; H. O. May, $100; E. Allan Peirce, $100; S. S. Pennock, $100; Wendland & Keimel Co., $100; Robert Simpson, $100; Conard & Jones Co., $100. It was voted that the following canvass given sections for further subscriptions: W. J. Keimel, the middle and far west; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia; H. O. May, New York; W. R. Pierson, New England.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

Officers Elected.

At the annual meeting of the American Gladiolus Society, held in the private office of Dr. Britton at the Museum building in Bronx park, New York, August 24, the organization was handed back to the management of the professional growers, commercial men being elected to the offices recently held by millionaire gladiolus fanciers. The new officers are:

President—E. A. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.

Vice-president—E. H. Meader, Dover, N. H.

Treasurer—Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y.

Secretary—Henry Youell, Syracuse, N. Y.

The Business Meeting.

In the absence of President Fairbanks, Vice-president T. A. Havemeyer, of sugar fame, occupied the chair. E. H. Meader acted as secretary in place of Mr. Youell, who is ill. Mr. Youell sent a pessimistic report of the progress of the society, which has been crab-fashion in the last year, eight new members having joined and eighteen having been lost. Treasurer Kunderd reported $742.05 in the bank, with only a few small current bills outstanding.

The new president was empowered to appoint the executive and exhibition committees with a view to holding the annual show in the west next year, preferably at Chicago.

There was the annual discussion as to a definition of what constitutes amateur and professional standing and how to secure the participation of the former class of exhibitors. It was as fruitless as heretofore.

It was agreed that the executive committee be recommended to engage the services of a promoter to work up interest in the 1918 exhibition.

The Exhibition.

The eighth annual exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society was held in the Museum building at Bronx park August 23 to 26, in coöperation with the Horticultural Society of New York, which supplied the premiums. It proved to be the largest display of cut gladiolus flowers ever staged in America. Two floors of the big building were occupied. A conservative estimate of the number of spikes staged would be 9,000 to 10,000. Using an average of eight flowers per spike, and some spikes carried fourteen, it would give 70,000 to 80,000 open flowers in the show.

Large as the show was, it would have been much larger except for misfortunes that befell some of the would-be exhibitors. Arthur Cowee, of Berlin, N. Y., always has been one of the chief factors in these shows, but this year he did not participate, weather conditions having been too unfavorable. The president, C. F. Fairbanks, Boston amateur, had planned a large showing, but August 21, on the eve of cutting the spikes, a hail storm destroyed his flowers; he had nothing to show.

Bronx park is about as undesirable a place for a flower show as one could imagine. It is not only far from the center of the city, but it is not easy of access, so that the attendance of the trade was limited to those having a special interest in the gladiolus. To these, naturally, the new varieties were the most important feature. There were many seedlings, most notable of which was the collection of some twenty from T. A. Havemeyer's Cedar Hill Nursery, Glen Head, N. Y. The prize for the best novelty, however, was awarded to a primulinus hybrid of distinct coloring, reddish pink with cream throat, exhibited by John Scheepers, Inc., a most artistic flower. Mr. Scheepers also staged a fine lot of white seedlings and another lot in which purple or lavender was predominant, said to be the work of the originator of G. princeps. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., also sent a large collection of seedlings. Herman H. Baer, New Hyde Park, N. Y., staged a group of Crystal White, which has so large a blotch of purple in the throat as almost to make the appellation a misnomer.

Good as are some of these novelties, to the average grower it will appear that Europa, as shown in the class for whites, will be difficult to displace; that Panama, as a pink, towers above any other gladiolus in the show; that Golden Measure, yellow, will sell in spite of all competition, and that Evelyn Kirkland, as staged by Madison Cooper, will hold its place for years.

The Craig and Pennock Exhibits in the Foreground, with Rice Under the Balcony.

The eastern growers are strong on primulinus. These hybrids afford new colors, which are particularly effective under artificial light, with a grace not possible with the rigid spikes of the older types, with which amenability to forcing is said to be combined. Nearly all the eastern exhibitors showed many pure primulinus hybrids and the influence of the blood was seen in many of the crosses with the gandavensis and Childsii types. The great group of B. Hammond Tracy, Cedar Acres, Wenham, Mass., which occupied the rotunda, was particularly strong in its primulinus varieties.

In the large collections, John Lewis Childs, Floral Park, N. Y., staged 125 varieties; Vaughan's Seed Store staged forty-five varieties and Thomas Cogger, Melrose, Mass., and E. H. Meader, Dover, N. H., had good displays. The principal groups by non-commercial growers were from P. W. Popp and Madison Cooper.

The Awards.

The awards in the classes open to all were as follows:

Most artistic display—B. Hammond Tracy Cedar Acres, Wenham, Mass., first.

Best and largest collection, six spikes of each variety—John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., first.

Fifteen vases, fifteen varieties, twelve spikes each—John Lewis Childs, first.

Twenty-five vases, twenty-five varieties, three spikes each—C. Zeestreten, Bemus Point, N. Y., first; Thomas Cogger, Melrose, Mass., second.

Twenty-five spikes, artistically arranged Thomas Cogger, first.

Twenty-five spikes white, one variety—Cedar Hill Nursery, Glen Head, N. Y., first; C. Zeestreten, second.

Twenty-five spikes red, one variety—C. Zeestreten, first; Thomas Cogger, second.

Twenty-five spikes crimson, one variety—John Lewis Childs, first.

Twenty-five spikes pink, one variety—Cedar Hill Nursery, first; H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H., second.

Twenty-five spikes yellow, one variety—Cedar Hill Nursery, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Twenty-five spikes blue or lavender, one variety—John Lewis Childs, first; C. Zeestreten second.

Twenty-five spikes purple, one variety—H. E. Meader, first; B. H. Tracy, second.

Twenty-five spikes any other color—Cedar Hill Nursery, first; C. Zeestreten, second.

Twenty-five spikes, Lemoinei type, one variety—John Lewis Childs, first; Cedar Hill Nursery, second.

Twenty-five spikes primulinus hybrids, yellow—John Lewis Childs, first; Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y., second.

Twenty-five spikes, primulinus hybrids, orange B. H. Tracy, first; Madison Cooper, second.

Twenty-five spikes, primulinus hybrids, any other color—Madison Cooper, first; B. H. Tracy second.

Twenty-five spikes, ruffled, one variety Thomas Cogger, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Twenty-five spikes, variety not in commerce previous to 1917—B. H. Tracy, first; Riverbank Gardens, Saxonville, Mass., second.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each Thomas Cogger, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each, white predominating—John Lewis Childs, first.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each, pink predominating—Cedar Hill Nursery, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each red or crimson predominating John Lewis Childs, first.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each, purple, blue, lavender or mauve predominating John Lewis Childs, first.

Five vases, five varieties, twelve spikes each, yellow predominating—John Lewis Childs, first; Cedar Hill Nursery, second.

New seedling, one spike—John Scheepers & Co., New York, first; Cedar Hill Nursery, second.

Twelve spikes, any one variety, not in commerce—B. H. Tracy, first; Riverbank Gardens, second.

Six spikes, any one variety, not in commerce John Scheepers & Co., first; B. H. Tracy, second.

Ten varieties, six spikes each—Thomas Cogger, first; John Lewis Childs, second.

Yellow primulinus hybrid seedling, purity of color and size to count, not less than five spikes—John Scheepers & Co., first.

Most artistically arranged basket or hamper, not more than twenty-five spikes—P. W. Popp, gardener to Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., first.

Yellow seedling never before exhibited, one or more spikes—Cedar Hill Nursery, first.

Vase any red variety, not less than ten spikes E. M. Smith, East Hartford, Conn., first.

Twenty-five spikes primulinus hybrids, not less than 4-inch blooms—B. H. Tracy, first.

Twenty-five spikes Crimson Glow B. H. Tracy, first.

Ten spikes Europa—John Lewis Childs, first.

Ten spikes Negerfuerst—John Lewis Childs, first.

Twelve spikes Golden King John Lewis Childs, first.

Vase of mauve, lilac or violet seedling never before shown—B. H. Tracy, first.

Three spikes Lily White H. E. Meader, first.

There were forty-five classes open only to non-commercial growers, but they brought out only three exhibitors, P. W. Popp, gardener to Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., who won fifteen first prizes and the achievement medal; Madison Cooper, of Calcium, N. Y., refrigeration manufacturer, publisher and gladiolus enthusiast, who won twelve first prizes and seven seconds, and J. P. Sorenson, gardener for Wm. Shillaber, Essex Falls, N. Y., who made only a few entries.

In the matter of amateur participation the show fell far short of the hopes of the promoters, as the wish has been to secure the active interest of the people who plant gladiolus bulbs for pure pleasure.

The following special prizes were awarded by the Horticultural Society of New York:

William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., for a display of seedling gladioli, silver medal.

Mrs. H. Darlington, Mamaroneck, N. Y., P. W. Popp, gardener, for a collection of dahlias, special prize.

Vaughan's Seed Store, New York, for a display of gladioli, silver medal.

H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H., for a vase of Gladiolus Myrtle, certificate of merit.

Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y., James Stuart, gardener, for a vase of Buddleia magnifica and Artemisia lactiflora, special prize.

John Scheepers & Co., New York city, for a collection of white seedlings, certificate of merit; for a display of seedlings, certificate of merit.

Bobbink & Atkins staged a table of their Mallow Marvels hibiscus.

There were several excellent exhibits of cactus and peony flowered dahlias.

CREDITS AND COLLECTIONS

FOR twenty years the question of credits has been exceedingly important and of great interest to the commercial growers of horticultural products in this country. It is now not considered a reflection on a merchant's honesty or business ability if he is asked for a statement of his finances; he realizes such information enables business men to conduct their affairs intelligently.

Attempts have been made to establish local agencies where a limited number of houses doing business in a restricted way have agreed among themselves to list those with whom they do business, and in some cities this method has proved successful, as shown by the experience of the New York Wholesale Protective Association, the American Association of Nurserymen and the American Seed Trade Association, all of which have in successful operation credit and collection bureaus under their own auspices.

The statisticians claim that ninety per cent of the business concerns of the country fail or are liquidated at some period of their existence. It is sometimes hard to anticipate these losses, but it seems reasonable to suppose that many losses experienced by our people might be avoided if only the proper precautions were taken.

I believe that three per cent of the total sales within the last ten years have been lost to the horticultural interests by bad debts. No more important question can come before us at this time than that of evolving ways and means by which this drain on our resources may be reduced to a minimum.

To Strive for the Ideal.

It may be assumed that men in business will pay their debts if they can, with no reference to honesty. Every man must make a living and most men are ambitious to make more than a mere living. Every man has chosen a particular line of business in which he can make profit with the least effort. He simply cannot afford to fail. And he knows that he can continue in business only on condition that he pays his creditors, and that he must do this with a reasonable degree of promptness.

It is rarely that a man enters business with the intention of being dishonest. We have had few of them, I am pleased to say, in our business. The few that there have been, however, have brought about in the past, and others may bring about in the future, most disastrous results to those engaged in floriculture in this country.

The time has come when we are obliged to promote such business principles that our trade may be conducted on honorable and equitable lines. To accomplish this we must place more stress on the dispensation of credit. The idea that credit is cheap has taken a firm root among the business men of our country.

If we expect to change the credit conditions practiced at present in our work, we can do it only by united action and by intelligent, organized efforts on the part of those engaged in horticulture in this country. We can preserve our own business and can compete fairly, honestly and honorably with others in the same profession without keeping to ourselves as a trade secret all that we know, for our personal advantage. We should unite for commercial purposes to eliminate all trade abuses, cancellations, excessive and uncalled-for discounts and all other unbusiness-like practices on the part of customers and ourselves.

Form of Organization.

Let us try to bring about a better understanding among the men engaged in our business, strengthen confidence in the spoken and written word and make men realize the absolute necessity of fidelity to their promises. We must organize for the purpose of simplifying safe credit and to rid the country of everything that acts as an obstacle to the exchange of our products. Let us establish the principles once and for all developed in the individual whose word is as good as his bond. No higher trait than this can be sought.

The sentiment in favor of adopting ways and means by which this movement can be made a national affair, is markedly strong at present, as has been proven by statements made by men having large interests involved.

The committee has taken up the question of ways and means and found it necessary to consider which of two plans is more advisable: Whether three or more members of the society may incorporate under the laws of any of the states for the express purpose of creating a national bureau of credits and collections, or whether it would be more practical and fully as useful to our members for the work to be done by a commercial agency already operating in Chicago, New York and Boston and providing its members with such information as might be sought relative to the financial standing of any business concern on its list.

If an Organization of Florists.

If we should organize a corporation, as stated above, it should be capitalized for at least $50,000, in 1,000 shares of $50 each. The officers should consist of a president, secretary, treasurer and board of directors, having an office in any of the cities, and sufficient office force, all subject to the jurisdiction of the board of directors.

The duties of the officers and their compensation can be defined more in detail at a future meeting.

The annual dues to be paid by subscribers should be at least $25.

It would be necessary to dispose of at least 500 shares to insure sufficient capital before the work could proceed.

The by-laws should provide that no person can purchase more than one share of stock.

Each subscriber would be entitled to a certain number of reports, to be agreed upon later.

Such an organization, while serving a useful purpose, would necessarily have to acquire its credit information slowly; its growth would be a healthy one and eventually we would have a credit organization of our own which would be practical and, in time, self-supporting.

If we adopt the second method, of indorsing any of the established associations to conduct this branch of our business, it is quite probable that the information furnished by them would be more or less limited, due to their territorial, rather than national, scope.

Having embodied as thoroughly as possible in this short report the necessity of instituting such a bureau and the courses which can be pursued to the desired end, it is now incumbent upon the members of the society to determine which method they consider best adapted to meet the situation, as presented here.

Extracts from the statement of Patrick Welch, chairman, at a meeting of the S. A. F. committee on credits and collections bureau, at New York, August 20.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Another convention of the S. A. F. has passed into history. In quality of attendance and exhibits, it left nothing to be desired. It carried one back to the time when, at the suggestion of the late William Scott, the first trade exhibit, consisting of ferns, was set up at the Buffalo convention by Henry A. Dreer, Inc. The varieties grown at that time were well done, but vastly superior ones are now seen, although many of the older and popular kinds are yet in commerce.

The exhibits of decorative plants proved the assertion that home-grown stock is preferable, and the exigencies of the situation have brought out the best efforts of the grower, with the result that possibly finer stock was seldom, if ever, seen at any trade, or even flower, show. That there were not more buyers or visitors to show appreciation is to be deplored, but the fact seemingly remains that to reach the purchaser today it is necessary to do so by means of a pen picture via the route of the trade press. The display of florists' supplies was the acme of perfection, absolutely nothing lacking that is demanded by the floral artist in these modern times.

The absence of Dutch bulbs was noticed, and the reason for this is well understood. It was announced, however, that a shipment had left a Holland port, so that there may be enough for the seedsmen to supply their retail trade. Otherwise this loss alone will be far more serious than that of the grower.

As the social features in the main were eliminated, there was afforded many of the old guard an opportunity for reminiscences, and one ran across many groups indulging in recalling familiar scenes, past but never forgotten. But, in the language of Robert Karlstrom, landscape architect of A. N. Pierson, Inc., "We take a vastly broader view of things, and looking into the grand perspective of the future we see tremendous possibilities for our business." This seemed to be the sentiment of all, and when the veterans, Robert Craig and E. G. Hill, spoke, their fire enthused the younger element, who eagerly listened to and absorbed the words of wisdom so freely imparted.

When Commodore Westcott presented the beautiful chest of silver to President Kerr, with a speech full of punch, Fred Lautenschlager remarked that the outburst of enthusiasm exceeded the noise made by the exhaust on their most powerful boiler, and, as he is an expert on such matters, one can imagine how popular our president has made himself.

No untoward incident happened to mar the occasion, unless what might have been a serious accident could be called such. Julius Ludwig, of Pittsburgh, and C. Ford, of Philadelphia, were in the act of boarding a car. The car gave a lurch and threw both men headlong, temporarily laming Mr. Ludwig and bruising Mr. Ford, also scattering his books and papers. Gathering them together, he commented that the "bruising came easier than the orders."

The meetings were most harmonious, in direct contrast to the noise without, where the rappings of a pneumatic hammer on an immense hotel in course of erection threatened to drown all other sound, and even at the meeting of the American Rose Society, when President Benjamin Hammond invited all "to the front as at a love feast," one had difficulty in hearing the good things being told about. W. M.

WIND STORM INSURANCE

AT the time President Kerr appointed your committee on wind storm insurance the State Florists' Association of Indiana was working to organize a company among the florists of the United States for mutual protection against damage from hail, wind and snow. I will briefly review the work that has been done and what led up to it.

March 23, as you all know, a cyclone passed over New Albany, Ind., taking a toll of fifty-one lives and approximately $1,000,000 worth of property. Our place of about 250,000 square feet, while not directly in the path of the storm, was badly wrecked and, as near as we can figure at this time, the loss to our buildings amounts to about $35,000, besides the loss in stock and trade. Mr. Swift's place of about 7,000 square feet was totally destroyed and the greenhouses of Gueltig, Pontrich, Laden and Aebersold, all small places, were badly damaged. About the same time tornadoes visited other places, notably Newcastle, Ind., and Mattoon, Ill.

The Search for Data.

I had tried on several occasions to get wind storm insurance, but the rates up to about a year ago were so high (about $30 per $1,000) that it was out of the question to carry this kind of insurance. Too late I have learned that for the last year it has been possible to get insurance for about $11 per $1,000. But the protection is not satisfactory. You have to carry a full insurance to get this rate; if only partial insurance is carried the rate is double. The company will not pay for broken glass unless twenty per cent of the framework is destroyed. The insurance only covers the superstructure. Benches, steam pipes, etc., are not included. After what happened, which we had always dreaded but hoped would not happpen, I felt I had to have protection at any cost.

While I still have courage to rebuild and have faith in the future, I question, if a similar calamity were to overtake me ten years from now, whether I would have the courage to go ahead. I might face want in my old age; so I took out $50,000 worth of insurance, for which I paid $550 for one year, although I felt this rate was exorbitant and altogether out of proportion to the losses from wind storms to greenhouses. In the past I have often thought of the possibility of forming a mutual company among greenhousemen for protection against damage from wind storms; in fact, I had proposed to the Hail Association that it widen its scope and include wind. The directors of this association, however, were never in favor of this, claiming that there were obstacles in the way that seemed insurmountable. Time may prove that they were right, but I had enough faith in it to at least give it a trial. To get information on which to base rates and get the sentiment in regard to such an association, I sent postcards, with reply cards attached, to 500 of the largest growers in all sections of the country, asking the following questions:

How much have you lost by wind storm in the last ten years?
In what year did loss occur?
What is the size of your range?
What construction? All steel, or pipe or wood-frame?
Would you join a mutual company for insuring against wind and hail if rates could be made reasonable?

About 150 replies were received, with more than two-thirds in favor of a mutual company. The replies represented about 16,500,000 square feet of glass, with a total loss of about $165,000 in ten years. Figuring the average value of greenhouses at $500 per 1,000 square feet, this would make the losses one-fifth of one per cent per year. However, it is reasonable to suppose that the 150 who replied averaged more losses than the 350 who took no interest, and from this standpoint the losses would average much less than one-fifth of one per cent. After getting this information for a working basis and receiving many letters indorsing the movement, I brought the matter before the State Florists' Association of Indiana. I realized that this was not a one man's job and that I, being practically unknown to the trade at large, could not inspire the confidence that the Indiana society could. Furthermore, as the state of Indiana has been the worst sufferer from storms this year, many of her florists sustaining heavy losses, it seemed to me that more interest would be taken there than any other place.

Covers Hail, Snow and Wind Damages.

I was not disappointed. Money was voted to carry on the preliminary work, and a committee of five, Herman Junge, A. F. J. Baur, Charles Pahud, Lennes Elder and myself, was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws and to formulate a working plan.

The first question that presented itself to this committee was the scope of the association. Should it be confined to wind storm insurance, or should hail and snow be included. After careful consideration it was unanimously agreed that all three should be included, for the reason that in many cases it would be hard to determine what damage was done by hail, wind or snow.

We realized that, by including hail, in some measure we would interfere with the Florists' Hail Association, which has been such a benefit to the trade at large, so we decided to go no farther before proposing to them that they include wind storm insurance. The matter was presented at the board of directors' meeting at Trenton, N. J., June 8, but it was found that the association's charter did not give it the privilege to insure against any kind of damage except from hail. We then proceeded to draft a constitution and by-laws. In this work we were greatly assisted by having a copy of the new constitution and by-laws of the Hail Association, prepared by J. A. Valentine, of Denver, Colo. He kindly consented to let us copy as much of it as we could use, we making such changes as we found necessary for our purpose, and to comply with the insurance laws of Indiana.

The Grading of Risks.

We gave much thought to the grading of the risk, but as there are hardly two greenhouses built alike we divided them into four classes. All steel or iron-frame houses, with double strength glass; all steel or iron-frame houses, with single glass; pipe or wood-frame, with double strength glass; pipe or wood-frame, with single glass. As age enters into wind resistance of greenhouses, any applicant will have to state the year in which each house was built, and the by-laws provide for inspection in doubtful cases and the termination of risks that have become unsafe.

Mutual insurance, well managed, means insurance at actual cost. Stock companies are in the business to make money. That means insurance at cost, plus a profit for the stockholders.

From the records we deemed it fair and just to rate the whole country alike, as far as wind storms are concerned. We, of course, provided a lower rate for steel-frame houses, as there is no question that they will withstand more wind than pipe-frame houses. On account of the greater frequency of hail in the west, we divided the country into two districts, one east of the Mississippi, including Minnesota, and the other west of the Mississippi. The reports of the Florists' Hail Association, for the years ending 1914-1915, and 1916, show that the risk is several times greater in the west than in the east, and our first assessments are based on these reports. These reports also show that single strength glass is more than twice as risky as double; hence the higher rates.

The by-laws provide that if conditions should change, and the risk become less in the west and greater in the east, the rates will be adjusted. The object will be, as far as possible, to do justice to florists in all parts of the country. The proposed by-laws provide that no loss less than one-half of one per cent shall be paid. This is to eliminate the adjustment of small, petty losses, as the object of the association should be to protect against losses that will materially affect the insured.

Hills Not a Protection?

The protection against snow we had to eliminate, as the insurance laws of Indiana do not provide for this; but when the legislature meets, we have no doubt we can have a law passed that will permit us to include insurance of that kind. It may interest you to know that a great many of those to whom our postcards were sent and who replied that they were not interested in wind storm insurance, gave as a reason that they never had wind storms severe enough to damage. Others said they were protected by hills. New Albany is protected by hills on the southwest, west and northwest. The cyclone that struck us came right down the side of the highest hill, cutting down trees and everything else in its path. We had a pet theory that the hills would protect us, but we have had to change our minds.

The state board of Indiana will act as trustee until a sufficient number have joined to incorporate; at such time a membership meeting will be held and twelve trustees elected, the trustees to be selected from all over the country. The business will then be turned over to them and the Indiana florists' society reimbursed only for money actually paid out. The work of the committee is done absolutely free of charge and we shall feel well repaid if we are instrumental in helping to start a movement that should prove a protection to the florists and greenhousemen of the United States; that will make it possible, by a reasonable outlay of money, to secure a man from losing, in a few seconds, what it often has taken a lifetime to accumulate.

[The convention authorized the appointment of a special and independent committee to investigate the Indiana plans and give the official indorsement of the S. A. F. if found worthy.—Ed.]

AMERICA VS. EUROPE

THE question of importation of plants from foreign countries to supply the florists' trade of America has become of paramount importance, and the nursery and florists' interests must consider whether they will continue to import such foreign material, which may be considered necessary to the carrying out of the business, or cooperate in growing their own supply at home.

In many cases the best that can be said of a large percentage of the imported material is that the American florist gets plants in an inferior condition somewhat cheaper than a better class of the same stock could be produced at home, but, having become accustomed to purchasing this foreign stock, he has fallen into the erroneous belief that stock of this character cannot be produced in this country and there is nothing else for him to do.

The reasons why the American florists' and nursery trades should grow the greatest bulk of the material which they now import are many. The sooner the nurserymen and plant growers of America awaken to the possibilities of their own country for producing the needed stock, the better. The rose growers of California have long produced their own stocks for budding, and certain California nurseries have long grown their own Mariana and Mazzard stocks. No nurseryman would think of importing peach stocks for budding, instead of planting Carolina pits and growing them himself. Carnations originally came from Europe, but who would look to Europe today for a stock of carnation plants to be grown in America? The grapes now grown in California originally came from France or Spain, but what California vineyardist would go to France or Spain to stock his vineyards now? As it is with these things today, so may it be with many things in the near future, or whenever American energy and capital, coupled with cultural skill, set out to produce them.

U. S. Can Supply Own Needs.

Someone has said the old argument is always advanced that in this land of ours anything can be produced that is produced elsewhere, and while admitting the saying is applicable to manufactured articles, it has been denied that it is applicable to the products of nature; that nature drops her favors in widely scattered localities, not always within the borders of our own countries. In reply to such statements the assertion may well be risked that there are not a dozen articles necessary to the florists' or nursery trade of the United States imported today that cannot be produced somewhere in this country under climatic and soil conditions which are more favorable than the conditions often existing in most of the localities where the imported stock is produced.

As an example, Belgian azaleas used for forcing are now being grown by hundreds of thousands at Eureka, Cal. The plants not only make better and stronger growth, and larger plants can be produced in a shorter growing period than in Belgium, but the plants finish their budding a month earlier, are more uniformly budded and the buds are thoroughly ripe before the shipping season commences, so that when the stock is delivered to the American forcer it will be of better quality than Belgian-grown stock, and in the process of delivery will not be exposed to the damage in transit which frequently occurs with Belgian azaleas shipped across the ocean.

Again, taking all of the nursery stock that is imported from Holland and France, there are not many items produced by the Holland growers, or by the French nurserymen, which cannot be produced of superior quality in a large area of country, comprising the bulk of the Humboldt county, Cal., coast line and continuing northward to the British Columbia line. Hundreds of thousands of boxwoods, heretofore exclusively Holland products, can be seen in all stages of growth in northern California, and the same is true of hollies, broad-leaved evergreens, rhododendrons and all of the coniferous evergreens. The hardy azaleas, which have been heretofore almost exclusively imported from Holland and Japan, are now being grown in the same lavish quantities in northern California.

Bulb Production.

Take the question of hyacinth, tulip, narcissus and other bulbs, commonly known as Dutch bulbs. There are millions of these bulbs now growing along the Pacific coast at various points from Santa Cruz northward to Vancouver, B. C., and in the vicinity of Norfolk, Va. Here, again, may be found localities where the climatic and soil conditions are far superior to the conditions in which these bulbs are grown in any part of Europe. In Holland, in spite of the conditions that are decidedly unfavorable for the culture of these bulbs when compared with the conditions in the Pacific coast bulb district, the Hollanders have, through sheer devotion to their business, and stubbornly and laboriously giving the culture of these bulbs their undivided attention, and also through shrewd ability to advertise and sell their goods, enjoyed a practical monopoly of what is known as Dutch bulb growing, simply because no one else in any other part of the world has thought it worth while to delve deeply into commercial bulb culture, and give it the necessary attention to make a success of it.

In the Eureka bulb district lilies grow luxuriantly and, when left alone, increase from year to year until enormous clumps that bloom annually are the result. Gladiolus bulbs which were planted three years ago turned out clumps of from ninety to 110 salable bulbs to the clump. These bulbs had not been cultivated and were surrounded by a thick growth of grass. The same was found to be true of all varieties of narcissi, and in some instances clumps of hyacinths were discovered which had been blooming in the same position for several years. Examination of these clumps showed large, vigorous, solid bulbs in perfect health, with not a sign of disease of any kind.

Now, it seems that this will ultimately prove to be the true solution of the question of providing the necessary stock to carry on the florists' and nurs-

The report of Charles Willis Ward, chairman of the S. A. F. committee on development of American products, prepared for the New York convention.

The ex-presidents of the New York Florists' Club gave a luncheon on the evening of August 21 to some of the prominent members of the S. A. F. from out of town. Those in attendance were F. R. Pierson, W. F. Gude, John Westcott, Robert Craig, E. G. Hill, Frank Traendly, George Asmus, Charles Critchell, Charles H. Totty, A. L. Miller, John Canning, Henry Weston, Joseph A. Manda, W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., Philip F. Kessler, W. A. Manda and A. Herrington. There were much jollity and felicitation. The principal speakers were Robert Craig, John Westcott, E. G. Hill, W. F. Gude and George Asmus.

Mrs. A. L. Miller entertained a party of sixteen ladies with an automobile ride August 22, with tea at Hotel Shelbourne, Coney Island.

Mrs. F. H. Traendly entertained a party of ladies August 22 on a trip to Long Beach, L. I., with tea at the Hotel Nassau.

A large party visited Cromwell, Conn., August 24 as guests of A. N. Pierson, Inc.

C. L. Baum, of Knoxville, Tenn., drove to the convention in his car, being accompanied by his two youngest sons, a friend and the driver of his store truck. The distance one way is nearly 900 miles. They got through with no more trouble than one slow leak in a tube.

Five half-barrel tubs of hydrangeas in splendid flower, supplied by F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, graced the entrance to the trades' display and added greatly to the first impression of the show as the visitors mounted the grand staircase.

Although there was no general entertainment program, there were many hospitalities carried out by individuals and business houses. The most elaborate of these was the excursion party conducted by Hitchings & Co. More than 100 of the visitors met at the Pennsylvania terminal the morning after the convention closed and were escorted to Elizabeth, N. J., where they were met by automobiles and taken to the Hitchings factory. After seeing how greenhouse materials are turned out on seven acres of floor space, luncheon was served at the splendid new club of the Elks. Thence the autos made the trip through the delightful hills and dales known as the Jersey Berkshires to Madison, where the Hitchings people are just finishing a splendid range of five steel-frame houses for the Duckham-Pierson Co. The houses are 61x500, each house containing 30,000 rose plants. For these houses 4,800 boxes of glass were used. There are fifteen miles of pipe in the heating system, although most of it is out of sight in a tunnel. Three 200-horsepower boilers are connected to a stack 140 feet high. Erection was started May 15 and the range practically completed and planted in three months. Short stops also were made at the establishment of L. B. Coddington, at Murray Hill, where there are 140,000 feet of glass in roses, and at President-elect C. H. Totty's, where the mums are a sight worth any grower's envy. The return to Elizabeth and New York was made in the evening at the end of a day of delight.

There was general satisfaction with the elimination of all general entertainment. The New York precedent will be followed at St. Louis for the combined flower show and convention, because the time will be fully occupied, and at Detroit, because that city was selected without invitation, so it is probable the frolic features have been cut out for good.

The feature of the trades' display was the showing of florists' supplies, the feature of the florists' supplies was the high quality of the merchandise and the feature of the quality was the fact that the stock all was made in America. One of the slight compensations for the war is the fact that America has become independent of Europe on this class of merchandise.

When the middle-western visitors went over to the wholesale cut flower section and found $2 apiece was being asked for cattleyas it created even more talk than did the humidity in the atmosphere.

ANOTHER SOCIETY PLANNED.

A letter has been mailed to all florists in northern Iowa and southern Minnesota, which is self-explanatory. It is hoped that a meeting can be held in Mason City, on account of its central location, early in September. The letter follows:

On account of the general increase in the cost of labor and all materials used in the florists' business it has occurred to the A. N. Kinsman Co., of Austin, Minn., the Lake Shore Greenhouse Co., of Albert Lea, Minn., and the Kemble & Goodman Co., of Mason City, Iowa, that an association of the florists of northern Iowa and southern Minnesota could only result in mutual benefit at this strenuous time. The Iowa and Minnesota druggists, coal dealers, clothiers, etc., are all members of their organizations, working together for the common good, and there is certainly no good reason why the florists should be the last to join the ranks.

The florists of Nebraska and central Iowa organized about the first of the year and have already secured wonderful results in adopting uniform agents' commissions, prompter payment of accounts, discontinuing the payment of telephone charges and the prepayment of express charges on flowers consigned to agents. These are only a few of the things we have in mind and on which uniform action will increase your profits.

If you were a member of such an association you would at all times be in touch with other members and could dispose of your surplus stock to better advantage and buy closer to home.

This communication is being mailed to all florists in our territory and we will be glad to have you join us. Will you do so and will you attend the first meeting? A meeting will be called early in September and it is our earnest hope that the benefits to all will be far-reaching.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Portland, Ore.—The business conducted under the name of Floral Studio, at 346 Alder street, has been ordered discontinued by the courts. The liabilities are placed at $2,000, with assets aggregating about one-fourth that amount. R. L. Sabin has been appointed receiver.

FLORISTS FOLLOW FLAG

THE TRADE IN TRAINING.

Florists Prepare for War.

Each week sees more members of the trade in the various training camps where the soldiers of Uncle Sam are learning the rules that govern modern warfare, preparatory to going to the battle-fronts in Europe. While many names have been enrolled on The Review's roster of those in the trade who have volunteered, or have been drafted, there are undoubtedly others who have gone. Of these The Review would like to hear.

Back from War Zone.

George W. Crawbuck, Jr., son of the New York wholesaler, returned last week from Europe aboard one of Uncle Sam's sea fighters, and was home for a few days before resuming his duties as a member of the navy.

Two Go from Denver.

Eugene Ardeldt and Zeal Neff, members of the staff of the Broadway store of the Park Floral Co., Denver, Colo., have joined the army and are now in Colorado training camps. Mr. Ardeldt is a member of the engineers' corps at the rifle range near Golden, Colo., and Mr. Neff is with the cavalry at Camp Baldwin.

Goes to Fight For France.

Andre Bourdet, of St. Louis, Mo., son of Jules Bourdet, vice-president-elect of the S. A. F., has departed on the first lap of his journey to the trenches in France, the country in which he was born. He left St. Louis August 23 with the Fifth Missouri regiment for the training camp at Nevada, Mo. With him went Ray Young, also the son of a St. Louis florist. Both of the young men are members of a machine gun company.

Brock Is Busy.

The race war at Houston, Tex., has brought national prominence of a not altogether desirable kind for the man who had charge of the S. A. F. convention garden of 1916. Clarence L. Brock, at that time head of the park system, and Vice-president Kerr's right-hand man in the convention preparations, has since become Chief of Police and is in charge of the officers whose treatment of colored troops provoked the uprising. Chief Brock is a member of the S. A. F. and a member of the convention garden committee until December 31, 1918.

CODE OF ROSE NOMENCLATURE.

Adopted by the Rose Society.

At its meeting in New York August 23 the American Rose Society adopted the following:

PREAMBLE.

Realizing the great confusion and inconvenience that arise from a duplication of names and recognizing the great convenience and satisfaction to the rosarian, and especially to the cottage gardener, of simple, usable names, the American Rose Society adopts the following rules of nomenclature, to apply to the names used in all the publications of this society and at its exhibitions, and at exhibitions to which it contributes medals:

PRIORITY.

Rule 1. No two varieties of roses shall bear the same name. The name first published shall be the accepted and recognized one, except in cases where the name has been applied in violation of this code.

NAME.

Rule 2. In selecting names for varieties the following points should be emphasized: Distinctiveness, simplicity, ease of pronunciation and spelling, indication of origin or parentage.

PUBLICATION

Rule 3. Publication consists (1) in registration with the American Rose Society; or (2) in the distribution of a printed description of the variety named, giving the distinguishing characters of flower, foliage, plant, etc.; or (3) in the publication of a new name for a variety that is properly described elsewhere, such publication to be made in any book, bulletin, report, trade catalogue or periodical, provided the issue bears the date of its publication and is generally distributed among rose growers, florists, nurserymen and horticulturists; or (4) in certain cases the general recognition of a name for a propagated variety in a community for a number of years shall constitute publication of that name.

CITATION.

Rule 4. In the full and formal citation of a variety name, the name of the originator or introducer who first published or exhibited it, shall also be given.

REVISION.

Rule 5. No properly published variety name shall be changed for any reason except conflict with this code, nor shall another variety be substituted for that originally described thereunder. Necessary changes to conform to the provisions of this code shall be recommended by the committee on nomenclature and adopted by vote of the society before being officially recognized.

ENFORCEMENT.

Rule 6. A. The secretary shall withhold registration of any name not conforming to these rules, or, if in doubt, shall refer the application to the nomenclature committee for recommendation.

B. The society will withhold its medals and money prizes from American roses whose names do not conform to these rules, or foreign roses not exhibited under the names as modified by the society.

C. The secretary and editor of the publications of the American Rose Society are empowered and directed to carry out these rules in all literature issued by the society.

In applying the foregoing rules the following principles shall be recognized:

RULE 1—PRIORITY.

A. The paramount right of the originator, discoverer or introducer of a new variety to name it, within the limitations of this code, is recognized and emphasized.

B. Where a variety name through long usage has become thoroughly established in American floricultural literature for two or more varieties, it should not be displaced or radically modified for either variety, except in cases where a well known synonym can be advanced to the position of leading name. The several varieties bearing identical names should be distinguished by adding the name of the originator or introducer of each sort, or by adding some other suitable distinguishing term that will insure their identity in catalogues or discussions.

C. Existing American names of varieties which conflict with earlier published foreign names of the same or other varieties, but which have become thoroughly established through long usage, shall not be displaced.

RULE 2.—NAMING.

A. No variety shall be named unless distinctly superior to existing varieties in some important characteristic, nor until it has been determined to disseminate it.

B. When the exigencies of a case make it appear expedient, such words as white, red, double, and similar ones, may be used as part of a name, but not such names as seedling, hybrid or sport.

C. The spelling and pronunciation of a varietal name derived from a personal or geographical name shall be governed by the rules that control the spelling and pronunciation of the name from which it is derived.

D. A variety imported from a foreign country shall retain its foreign name, subject only to such modification as is necessary to conform it to this code.

E. The name of a person should not be applied to a variety during his life without his expressed consent. The name of a deceased horticulturist should not be so applied except with the consent of his or her heirs.

F. The use of a latinized name for a variety, or a cross, or hybrid, is not admissible.

G. The use of a number, either singly or attached to a word, should be considered only as a temporary expedient while the variety is undergoing preliminary test.

H. In applying the various provisions of this rule to an existing varietal name that has through long usage become firmly imbedded in American floricultural literature, no change shall be made which will involve loss of identity.

RULE 3—CITATION.

A. In determining the name of a variety to which two or more names have been given, that which was published first, in conformity to the rules of this code, shall be recognized.

On motion of Robert Pyle it was voted that it shall be allowable to use a name for a variety which has been in previous existence, provided the name has not been in use for at least twenty years.

OBITUARY.

Miss Adelaide Kresken.

Miss Adelaide Kresken, for many years a florist at Cincinnati, O., died August 25 at her home in Clifton, near that city. Miss Kresken was taken sick shortly after her return from the S. A. F. convention at San Francisco two years ago, and since that time had not been in good health.

Miss Kresken was born in Krefeld, Germany, fifty-two years ago. When she was 4 years old her parents came to this country and opened a flower store at Cincinnati. Miss Kresken was about the place from childhood, and ultimately became its owner.

She is survived by her father, A. H. Kresken, and one brother, Lawrence Kresken. C. H. H.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The rain and cooler weather of last week benefited stock, which has been coming in better quality. Asters are in good demand, especially the lighter shades, which are taking the place of carnations, the latter being of poor quality and short supply. Gladioli are flooding the market and are cheap. Special colors demand somewhat better prices, while mixed colors sell for as low as $1 per hundred.

Tuberoses are coming daily by the thousands and sell at $1 per hundred. There are many roses coming, most of them being of poor quality. The best flowers all are ordered in advance of their arrival. Hydrangeas are in demand for funeral work. Orchids and good valley continue scarce. Lilies, both Easter and auratum, are in fair supply and bring good prices. There is a good supply of green. Boston ferns are in big demand.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Retail Florists' Association held its regular meeting at the Mission Inn Garden August 20, the attendance being small, with the result that there was little business transacted. President Fred H. Weber says that those who attended the S. A. F. convention at New York will be asked to report at the next meeting. Among them was Richard Tubesing, secretary of the club.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold its next regular meeting September 5 at the Eleven Mile House. President Rowe says the meeting will be interesting, as the hail and coal committees will make their final reports, which are important to the members.

George H. Angermueller, who had been ill for a week, has recovered and is back at his store.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Weber, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Weber, Jr., returned August 23 from Williams Bay, Wis., where they had been spending their vacations.

Zorn & Gaertner, of Saginaw, Mich., are shipping quantities of asters to the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

The show house of Bergstermann, 3117 South Grand avenue, is being stocked with decorative plants. The place has been remodeled and treated to a coat of white paint. Oscar Ruff and Edward Nibling say business has been good during August.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Windler, of Windler's Flowers, have returned from two weeks' vacation spent at the Hillcrest Club, near Crescent, Mo. Edward Guntly, the other member of the firm, will now take a vacation.

Edward Griffen, superintendent of parks at East St. Louis, will entertain the park superintendents who attend on the first day of the convention here September 11 to 13.

A baby girl arrived at the home of Fred Strohmeyer, head designer for the Ayres Floral Co., August 17. Both Mrs. Strohmeyer and the baby are doing well.

Visitors last week were James A. Biggam, of the Alpha Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo., and Julius Dilloff, representing Schloss Bros., New York city. Both called on the trade.

Alfred Gumz, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., took the physical examination for the army August 25. His number was among the first drawn.

Members of the trade have returned from the S. A. F. convention in New York city last week, and report a great convention. The local trade is proud of the selection of Jules Bourdet as vice-president of the society and are with him to a man to make the National Flower Show and the convention here next April successes.

The H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co. reports that the outlook for a big fall season is good, many orders already having been booked.

The A. Brix Floral Co.'s bowling team was organized last week by Frank Plots, one of the stars at the game last season. The team will bowl at the North End alleys.

The Young Bros. Floral Co. says business has been good at the new store recently opened at Berlin and De Giverville avenues.

Andre Bourdet and Ray Young left August 23 with the Fifth regiment for Nevada, Mo., where the regiment will train. They are members of a machine gun company.

P. Schneider has completed the alterations to his place at Webster Groves, Mo. The houses all have been planted and the young stock is looking fine.

A. S. Cerny's establishment at Kirkwood, Mo., is in splendid shape for a big crop of roses and carnations this season.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Business was quiet among the wholesale houses last week, and at the clean-up August 25 buyers could procure stock at their own price. Asters and gladioli were so abundant that much of the poorer stock could not be moved. Roses are improving and some good flowers now are arriving, among them being Hadley and Russell. American Beauties are firm at $25 per hundred, a few of the selected flowers being as high as $30. Anything perfect in hybrid teas was quickly absorbed. Most of the rose shipments, however, are low-grade stock, which sells at from 25 cents to $2 per hundred.

There were few orchids of any variety in the market. Perfect gigas were so scarce that from $1.50 to $2 each was offered for them. A few gardenias came from Newport, R. I. There are practically no carnations coming at present. Lilies are abundant; consequently the prices did not go over $3 per hundred, with the majority selling at $2. Rubrums sold as low as $1 per hundred.

The market was flooded with gladioli and only perfect flowers of the new varieties could be moved. The waste was enormous. The same is true of asters. A few select flowers of both varieties sold as high as $2 per hundred. Valley continues scarce, perfect flowers bringing $6 and $8 per hundred. The supply of hydrangeas is increasing. Tritomas and tuberoses are abundant. There were also large shipments of outside stock.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held September 10 at the club's rooms in the Grand Opera House building. It will be dahlia night. Exhibits of both dahlias and gladioli may be sent to H. C. Riedel, 49 West Twenty-eighth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mott and daughter, of Schenectady, N. Y., are spending a few days in New York city.

Walter Berry, who now has charge of a private estate at Petersburg, Va., was in New York for the S. A. F. convention and visited among his old friends here.

W. Earle Riedel, only son of H. C. Riedel, who recently celebrated his eighteenth birthday, has applied for admission to the navy.

George W. Crawbuck, Jr., who is a member of the United States navy, was home for a few days last week after a trip to European waters.

W. P. Ford is in St. Vincent's hospital, recovering from an operation on one of his knees. He expects to be able to return to his store next week.

The A. L. Young Co. expects to have the alterations to its store completed by September 1. The show window has been enlarged.

Bassi Bros., of New Rochelle, N. Y., both were seriously injured August 19 when the automobile in which they were riding was wrecked. Both are in a hospital.

J. K. Allen has returned from the mountains of New Jersey, where he spent a two weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Riedel were born on the same day of the year, August 23, and celebrated the dual anniversary last week.

Edward Ancker, head salesman for Traendly & Schenck, and his family have returned from the Catskill mountains, where they spent a two weeks' vacation.

Convention visitors were greatly interested in the collection of pictures at the Traendly & Schenck store, 436 Sixth avenue, which have been accumulated during the last twenty-five years.

The exhibits of Bobbink & Atkins, H. A. Dreer, Inc., and A. N. Pierson, Inc., were bought by M. Gottlieb, 611 Madison avenue.

Albert Schmutz, a son of Louis Schmutz, of Flatbush, is now a member of the force of the MacNiff Horticultural Co., and will have charge of the auction department.

C. R. Gloeckner, of the H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, is managing the shipping department of the company's New York store.

Peter Gerlaird's daughter was married August 18. Mr. Gerlaird's nephew was drowned at Coney Island August 20.

William Polykranas, son of George J. Polykranas, has been promoted to first gunner of Battery B, of the Twenty-first field artillery. This was his fourth promotion since enlisting.

J. Austin Shaw.

Mrs. Jasper R. Lewis, who was operated on August 20, is convalescing and her complete and speedy recovery is expected, although the operation was a serious one.

When Charles Meehan recently severed his connection with what then was the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., of Philadelphia, his friends predicted that he would not be long out of the trade. They were correct. Now it is announced that Mr. Meehan will open a wholesale place at 14 South Mole street, Philadelphia, early in September.

Alexander Montgomery, whose thirty-seven years of rose growing in the interests of the Waban Rose Conservatories, at Natick, Mass., has made that establishment the Mecca of rose growers, has resigned his position as superintendent of the conservatories in order to retire to Hadley, Mass., where his sons operate a large rose range under the name of Montgomery Rose Co. Russell and Hadley were originated by the Hadley company.

The prick of a rose thorn or a piece of wire in the second finger of his right hand developed into blood poisoning and Thomas Reynolds, 757 Manhattan avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., was forced to go to a hospital and have the finger amputated, together with several bones and tendons in the back of the hand. The injury was so slight when sustained that Mr. Reynolds paid no attention to it. It will be some time before he is able to return to the active management of his store.

At least three florists are going to be prepared for the influx of cash scheduled to come with the opening of the fall season, for the June sales report of the National Cash Register Co. shows that in that month registers were sold to G. E. Valker, of Minot, N. D.; Walter C. Champreux, of Stockton, Cal., and E. A. Fetters, of Detroit. The lowest selling price was $475 and the highest $785. There must be money in the business.

Autoists in the trade, especially those who delight in putting their foot on the accelerator, should tender a vote of confidence to Charles E. Greening, president of the Greening Nursery Co., Monroe, Mich. Mr. Greening is the leading spirit in a movement to establish a road between Monroe and Toledo, O., parallel with the present road and separated from it by a narrow parking. The speed limit on the new road is to be forty miles per hour.

Florists in all parts of the country have been liberal in their cash and stock contributions to aid A. D. King, of Mattoon, Ill., to reëstablish himself in business. The King greenhouse range and home were completely destroyed by the tornado of May 26, and through the efforts of J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, the cash receipts to date have mounted to $259, in addition to quantities of stock.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1917: President, Robert C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

Officers for 1918: President, Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; vice-president, Jules Bourdet, St. Louis; secretary and treasurer as before.

Thirty-fourth annual convention and Fifth National Flower Show, St. Louis, Mo., April 6 to 15, 1918.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THERE is every indication of a scarcity of pot plants during the approaching season.

THE coal men are beginning to choke on the smoke from the fire of public indignation their price-raising aroused.

DON'T talk about raising prices; wake up to the fact that the public is paying more for flowers than heretofore and get your share.

Two bulb-laden steamers of the Holland-America line are on the way across the Atlantic. They carry nearly three-fourths of a normal year's imports of bulbs.

THE trade has acquired confidence that business will be good during the autumn and winter; indeed, the New York convention did much to produce a belief that the flower business this season will be better than ever before.

THE primulinus hybrid gladioli occupy the center of the stage in the east. They have made a hit with the retailers, who find them an improvement for their purposes because of their grace and colors, and the growers recommend them unqualifiedly for forcing.

THE growers of palms have needed no other encouragement to raise prices than that afforded by supply and demand. There are few palms of other than the smaller sizes, a shortage is imminent and prices are on a level that will compare with those of food and other merchandise.

IF you have the idea that it is not feasible for florists individually to raise retail prices, travel a week in the east and note what some of the members of the trade have done.

THERE has been an excellent demand for field-grown carnation plants so far this season, although many report that the call did not start until somewhat later than usual.

THE influence of the late spring still is to be seen in many branches of the trade, particularly in the supply of cut flowers and in the condition of the crops that follow the bedding plants.

IT is pleasant to hear a cut flower grower like Joseph Heacock say that the season of 1916-17 was the largest in money returns and cash profit of any since he went into rose growing. Evidently in these times it pays better than ever to grow good stock.

DISTINCTIVENESS is one of the prime requisites of a new variety of almost any of our popular flowers. There has been much improvement, but many novelties among carnations, sweet peas, gladioli, peonies and other flowers are too much like other sorts to be worth another name.

NO AZALEAS THIS YEAR.

The principal importers of azaleas have abandoned all efforts to procure azaleas from Belgium this year. It is impossible to communicate with the exporters and all the difficulties experienced last season still exist, in addition to which is the fact that the United States now has a stringent law on the subject of trading with the enemy which is held to apply to that part of Belgium occupied by the Germans. Conditions change almost daily, but there seems to be little reason to hope to obtain azaleas for next spring's sales.

FOOTBALL AND MUMS.

A bit of news of cheering character that filtered in last week was the announcement that football was not to be struck off the sports calendar of the country's colleges, as announced in the spring shortly after the declaration of war, but that at the behest of President Wilson it had been decided to have a full schedule of intercollegiate games, both east and west. As every florist knows, or at least as every college town florist knows, football games represent no mean outlet for chrysanthemums. Mums, football and snappy weather are first cousins, and richer is the retailer who realizes their relationship and strives to strike hard while the iron is hot.

The case is recalled of how an Illinois florist last year made a study of the sales possibilities of football games in his town. Whenever there was a game he would make a special window display, featuring in mums, if possible, the colors of the two contesting schools. The idea was not only to catch the eye of home fans, but also to attract the attention of the visiting rooters. Sometimes a special stand was set up at the football field, and when the home team left for an out-of-town game there would be a representative at the depot to coax the departing fans into wearing the "colors," as represented by his mums.

Penn's, of Boston, have found the football window a great sales-maker, and anyone who has ever attended the Harvard-Yale or army-navy matches is struck by the fact that mums are to football what lilies are to Easter.

LINE OF LEAST RESISTANCE.

Your product is mighty interesting to you, but other florists do not seem to enthuse about it. To get them to give up real money for it is not so easy as it looks.

Providing a simple, easy, natural point of contact—the line of least resistance between your product and the buyer—is the function of The Review. How well The Review serves its advertisers at a low cost is told by the advertisers themselves:

Cancel my classified advertisement. The entire 7,000 carnation plants were sold—some results for one insertion! Thanks.—James B. Keller, Lexington, Ky., August 23, 1917.

Please discontinue my ad for carnation plants. The Review sure is a business getter.—A. D. Ruble, West Indianapolis, Ind., August 20, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

FLORISTS.

When a plumber makes a mistake he charges time for it.

When a lawyer makes a mistake, it's just what he wanted, because he has a chance to try the case all over again.

When a carpenter makes a mistake, it's just what he expected, because the chances are ten to one he never learned his business.

When an electrician makes a mistake, he blames it on "induction," because nobody knows what that is.

When a doctor makes a mistake, he buries it.

When a judge makes a mistake, it becomes the law of the land.

When a preacher makes a mistake, nobody knows the difference.

But a florist, he is different. He cannot turn his mistake into profit, as other people do. He must use good judgment; much labor; feed his crops as well as his furnace; supplicate Providence for sun and hustle all the time. In fact, my boy, you've got to "go some" to be a successful florist.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The recent cool weather has brought about a markedly improved tone in the wholesale cut flower market. August 25 a shortening of stock of all kinds took place, which, continuing over August 26, found the market in a tight condition with the first day of this week. The cool weather has not only caused a decided shortening of stock, but has also made for greatly improved quality. Roses show better color and more of the longer grades are arriving.

Although American Beauties are being cut in slightly larger quantities, they are still a scarce item and what stock arrives sells quickly at satisfactory summer prices. Russells, best in demand as ever, were also decidedly scarce last week and it was at times difficult to procure the stock needed. Ophelia and Milady are the other two favorites. The former shows greatly improved color. Although most of the stock coming in is of the shorter grades,

EASTER LILIES

You will find our Easter Lilies about the most useful stock you can carry. Cut tight, they are good shippers and keepers—you can carry them several days and you will have the means of making a spray or wreath on short notice. Fine stock, home-grown. We can fill any order by wire, but why not arrange for two shipments a week?

GLADIOLI

We have every day in quantity many of the newest varieties, including Primulinus Hybrids and many of Kunderd's unnamed waved seedlings—also King, America and other old favorites. It is our belief that nowhere in America is there so fine a lot of cut Gladiolus flowers.

SUMMER ROSES

a good increase in the longer stems was noted last week.

A few field carnations arrive each day, but the quality is not good. Asters, though shorter, continue to arrive in large quantities. The late varieties, which show greatly improved quality, are now, however, replacing the earlier, cheaper stock. Good grades find a fair sale, while even the poor quality flowers move more readily.

There are plenty of gladioli and the quality here, as in other stock, shows improvement. America and Mrs. King still are favorites, but there are many novelty varieties, arriving only in limited quantities, which find ready buyers. Orchids continue scarce, as does valley. Easter lilies arrive in quantities amply sufficient to meet the requirements of an active, but not eager, demand. There are plenty of rubrum lilies, which sell fairly well in limited quantities.

Various Notes.

The Hoskins Floral Co., which has 30,000 feet of glass at Elmhurst, has been reorganized. David J. Hoskins has retired and H. W. Grover, a job printer at 3227 Armitage avenue, Chicago, has been elected president. Mr. Grover is not a florist and seeks a working manager. The company was incorporated in 1913, with $25,000 capital stock. It purchased the old Reid & Chambers range at Elmhurst and added considerably to it. The houses are planted principally to carnations, mums and sweet peas.

The Lombard Floral Co., of which J. G. Schuman is manager, cut its first flowers August 27 and Mr. Schuman personally brought them to the E. C. Amling Co., with which he has arranged for the sale of the output. The range consists of two Moninger houses, each 36x450, planted with Killarney Brilliant, Milady and Ophelia, principally the latter. Mrs. Schuman is in the West Suburban hospital again. She spent seven weeks there, then went home for three weeks, but was compelled to return to the hospital a fortnight ago.

G. M. Reburn says he already has sold 100,000 field-grown carnation plants this season, principally on mail orders obtained through his classified ad in The Review.

Peter Reinberg has just received a new 1½-ton Mack truck.

John P. Degnan, of Winterson's Seed Store, has returned from a vacation spent in Michigan and Wisconsin.

August 26 was A. T. Pyfer's thirty-ninth birthday anniversary.

Allie Zech is a strong believer in the future of Evelyn Nesbit as a corsage rose. He says that in his opinion this rose is superior to Baby Doll.

The apple of Andrew Benson's eye at present is a white sport of Sunburst which appeared last season in the greenhouses of Bassett & Washburn. He has worked up as much stock as he could and plans to have a nice batch of it next year.

Fred Longren, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., has returned from a four weeks' vacation trip among the Michigan lakes.

William Gray now is a member of the staff of Poehlmann Bros. Co.

A. Henderson and family motored to The Dells over the week end.

Charles Hewitt, well known as a prosperous young florist at Monmouth, Ill., was here last week on his wedding trip. His bride was his next-door neighbor from childhood, but they chose to be married away from home. The ceremony was performed at Galesburg August 20.

President R. C. Kerr, of the S. A. F., and Mrs. Kerr have been here for a few days on their way home from New York to Houston, Tex.

Frank Daut, of Daut Bros., Decatur, Ill., was a visitor last week, but was recalled by phone August 24, because of sudden serious illness in the family at home.

William Roepke, of the Roepke Floral Co., Indianapolis, was here last week, combining business and pleasure.

Fred Haupt, of Louisville, Ky., and Charles Siebrecht, of Winona, Minn., were visitors last week.

H. E. Philpott, who has been in Chicago for the last two weeks, left for Minneapolis August 30, accompanied by Arthur Rice, of that city, who is returning from a short Chicago visit.

Joseph H. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was a visitor last week, exhibiting his new rose, Columbia.

The Market.

The market was fairly well supplied with stock last week, but flowers of good quality were lacking, asters, particularly, being poor. However, a few good ones arrived. much demand for them. Large quantities of gladioli are arriving. The best flowers sell for prices ranging from $1 to $3 per hundred.

The supply of roses was adequate and included some good varieties, which brought fair prices. Field carnations continued to arrive. Sweet peas were unusually scarce. Harrisii lilies were plentiful and brought higher prices. Snapdragons were good and sold well. There was little demand for gardenias and orchids. Pompon chrysanthemums are coming in good condition and are in demand. The supply of greens has increased and moves well. Galax is in good supply and demand.

Business among the retailers was good last week, there being a quantity of funeral and wedding work. Counter trade was exceptionally heavy August 24 and 25.

Various Notes.

Many of the employees of retail stores are on vacations. Miss Margaret Howe is in the Adirondacks; Miss Hattie Conway is away for two weeks; Cecil Lester is at Lake Ontario; George Havill is at Sea Breeze, N. Y., and Arthur J. Beyers is visiting at his former home, Erie, Pa.

A brown window stand, filled with gladioli and sunflowers, and draped with plush harmonizing in color with the flowers, was the center of a window display at the store of Edwin C. Kaelber, Inc., last week. Business here has been keeping up remarkably well.

Visitors during the last week were Charles Beck, of Sandlake, N. Y.; R. E. Blackshaw, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Wayne Little, florist at Canastota, N. Y., and S. F. Pletcher, of the Peters & Reed Pottery Co., Zanesville, O.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

There has been no change in the cut flower market during the last few weeks, although the supply is smaller. Good gladioli and asters are moving, but the poorer stock is not in demand in a dull market. Roses are in fair demand, at fair prices for the better grades. Russell, Beauties, Sunburst and Ophelia are the most used now. Valley is still in short supply, but can be had on timely notice. Easter lilies are holding their own. White cattleyas are high and scarce. Hydrangeas are falling in the rear. There is no excessive supply of greens.

Various Notes.

Frank R. Hastings reports that business at his store during the last week was the best this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil H. Gerschick visited the New York convention last week.

Charles Henry Fox is taking advantage of the dull period by touching up his store.

Robert Shoch was seen in Atlantic City enjoying himself after his hard work. He did not show much wear and tear.

Robert Craig was pleased with his firm's sales made at the S. A. F. convention in New York last week.

News and Trade Gossip.

John L. Wagner & Sons, on the Joppa road, intend to add ornamental nursery stock to their rapidly growing plant and cut flower trade. This is a wise move on the part of this firm, for they are on the edge of Green Spring valley, near the summer homes of the wealthy of Baltimore, and there is no section of the state where more good ornamental nursery stock is used. Mr. Wagner, being a pupil of W. D. Brackenbridge, the father of the nursery business in Maryland, understands this branch of the business thoroughly. On the day I was talking with him, his son Ben was leaving for Anniston, Ala., with the Fifth regiment on the first lap of the journey to France. He was the first local florist I had heard of who had been called to the colors, but on the same day J. J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co., told me that his son, Ward, had enlisted in the fifth field artillery, now in camp at Pikesville, and expected to be ordered to the same training camp any day.

THE FLORISTS' SUPPLY HOUSE OF AMERICA

An American Victory

Was the judges' verdict when they carefully examined our exhibit in New York at the Grand Central Palace last week. With Europe largely cut off and Asia too far away, we showed the S. A. F. and O. H.

Philip Welsh was having his car repaired the other day. After it was finished, the repair man told him to get in and he would give it a tryout on a steep hill adjacent to the shop. Now, anyone would think that a man whose business is repairing autos would be familiar with speed laws, but it appears this particular man was not, for they both had to go to the Northwestern police station and explain to the magistrate. There it was found the repair man did not even have his operator's card with him.

A Lucky Florist.

At the last club meeting half a dozen of the boys were conversing in a group about the coal outlook for next winter. One of them told a story of a man in West Virginia, who while digging his boiler pit found fuel for use the next winter. Peter C. Erdman was one of the group. He said that at his new range on Taylor avenue, while he had not struck coal, he had found the next best thing, for while excavating for his boiler pit he dug into a bed of as fine sand as was ever seen. Good sand is a scarce article in this locality, but then, Pete always was lucky.

Speaking of coal, on a recent trip to the R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. range, at White Marsh, Md., it seemed there was coal everywhere one looked. Every bin on the place was full, besides several carloads that were piled in the field. I remarked to Mr. Vincent that I had heard a great deal about the coal question lately, but that he did not seem to be short of coal. He said he could not tell whether they had been wise in laying in their stock, but it was a satisfaction to know that no matter what the outcome might be, when the time came to start the fires they were ready. I asked how many tons there were in this great mass of coal. He said he could not just tell me in tons, but the books showed there was $6,000 worth of coal to begin the season on. When we remember there is no forcing done on this place, this is "some" coal.

At the Leo Niessen Store.

I called at the Leo Niessen Co. store and found the manager, William McKissick, on the sick list. Nothing serious, however, as they expected him to be off only for the day. William Ekas is away on his belated vacation. At the store it was reported that last week was the first really dull week of the summer. Stock is abundant, with plenty of good short-stemmed roses. There has been considerable trouble in getting valley for the war weddings, but as the store has had a fine lot of orchids, in many cases these were used instead.

When this letter reaches its readers, vacation time will be about over and florists will be thinking of getting down to work for another season. I have been around among many of the growers, also the retail stores, and while, at the beginning of the summer season, some of the boys looked upon the future of the business with doubt, still there has been an unprecedented season, and the growers will be on hand when the bell rings with a finer line of stock than ever. To start with, there will be fall flowers of every kind, plentiful and good. Chrysanthemums, especially, are was a slight improvement in the quality of stock arriving. Asters and gladioli are the main standbys, while better roses have been in the market. The supply is equal to the demand, which has been fair.

Various Notes.

R. S. Brown & Son have dismantled their old greenhouses on Prospect avenue, and will not rebuild, there being too much shade there. They report that business has been good during the summer.

Arthur Newell is having a conservatory built at his home on Morningside drive. It will have a large fountain in it.

Adolph Mohr's greenhouses at Seventy-sixth street and Broadway are in shape for the season, his begonias and cyclamens being especially good.

E. J. Barnes left last week for a visit in Chicago. He will return about September 1.

Visitors last week were G. P. Kaupp, of Nevada, Mo., and George Stiles, of Oklahoma City, Okla.

ery business in this country. We have the climatic conditions and soil conditions necessary to grow practically everything belong to the temperate zone, and many of the products of the sub-tropics. We have the capital, energy and ability, and there is no reason why this capital, energy and ability should not be employed as much in the production and manufacture of florists' plants and nursery stock as in the development of any other important industry. If other industries are deserving of encouragement in the way of protection, is there any reason why the plant growing industry does not deserve like treatment?

On account of my being located so far away from the other members of the committee, and owing to the great press of business during the last year, I have been unable to communicate with them, or to pay great attention to accumulating the necessary knowledge to enable me to make a full report.

So far as I have been able to learn, there have been some substantial efforts begun to grow Dutch bulbs in various parts of the country. It is said that some extensive plantings have been made in the state of Missouri. Hollanders have come to this country and purchased large stocks of gladioli, notably in Michigan and Ohio. The cultivation of Dutch bulbs, especially the narcissus, seems to be considerably on the increase in the Roanoke region of Virginia, in the vicinity of the Dismal Swamp.

Progress in California.

On the Pacific coast there does not seem to have been any great effort put forth to cultivate nursery and florists' stocks, except those of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries at Eureka, Cal. The development by this company has continued apparently with restless energy. At the present time there is under construction at the Eden nursery in Eureka, a 2-acre block of iron-frame houses, built on what might be termed the Belgian plan. These houses will be finished by October, and will be immediately filled with such stock as araucarias, gloxinias, tuberous begonias, ericas and others used in the florists' trade. Photographs of the new improvements under construction are attached to this report.

Another improvement of importance is the fitting of the entire nursery of sixty-six acres with the overhead Skinner irrigation system. At present there are about ten acres fitted with the Skinner system, the ground under the system being occupied by azaleas, rhododendrons, ericas and other like florists' stock.

Photographs of the fields of azaleas and rhododendrons are submitted with this report. The culture of Azalea Indica is proceeding rapidly and successfully; at the present time there are about 250,000 young plants in stock. A photograph of one of the houses filled with young plants of Azalea coccinea, which have been grown from cuttings and are about ready for grafting, is submitted with the report.

The grafting of Azalea Indica is continued without interruption and grafts have been set upon a large quantity of plants. Grafting under the conditions existing at Eureka is preëminently successful and only a small percentage of the grafts fail to set. This is true of grafting azaleas, rhododendrons, or any of the coniferous plants.

The budding of rhododendrons and azaleas has been demonstrated by the present season's treatment to be easily accomplished. There is an abundant set of buds of great size and vigor. The growth of the rhododendrons and azaleas during the present season has been all that could be desired. The same is true of everything else that has been grown in the nursery. The holly berries up wonderfully well, and all kinds of berried plants set enormous crops. This is particularly noticeable in the cotoneaster family.

In order to provide for a permanent increase in the production of azaleas and rhododendrons, there will be built another range of approximately three acres of glass during the season of 1918.

The production of ericas, boxwood, hollies and coniferous plants is being pushed steadily, and a number of new plants are being grown which have been derived from Australia, New Zealand and the western coast of South America, and in all probability this company will send out some substantial additions to the trade's supply of plants.

In the bulb district substantial experiments in testing the commercial growing of Lilium longiflorum are being carried out. A photograph enclosed herewith shows one of the experimental blocks of the Harrisii variety, which is being tested under my personal supervision at the Cottage Gardens proving grounds at Eureka. Other tests are being made of other varieties of lilies at the New Haarlem Bulb Farm.

10,000,000 Bulbs Growing.

At the New Haarlem Bulb Farm the work of establishing the commercial production of Dutch bulbs is progressing rapidly. An extensive bulb house, 50x260 feet, is under construction and will be finished this month. About 100 acres of additional land are being prepared for bulb culture; this will be followed by the preparation of 100 acres more the following year. At present there are about eighty acres of land in condition for planting bulbs this fall. The entire crop of bulbs for this season has been harvested, and while the season has not been favorable and in some instances the bulbs are not of normal size, the crop on the whole has proven entirely satisfactory, and in the majority of cases the bulbs are of exceptionally fine quality. This is particularly true of the hyacinths, which turned out of much better quality than was hoped for. The narcissi, crocuses and gladioli are all of exceptionally good size and splendid quality. Large quantities of bulbs have been contracted for delivery from Holland. These contracts cover approximately 5,000,000 bulbs, and the quantity harvested at the New Haarlem Bulb Farm will be approximately 4,000,000 to 4,500,000; the plantings for the coming fall will run somewhere between 9,000,000 and 10,000,000 bulbs.

In order to make sure of a full supply of cow manure, which is necessary for the growth of the hyacinths and other bulbs, the management has established what is known as the Cottage Gardens

Jersey Farm at Carlotta, Cal., where there is maintained a herd of 150 pure-bred Jerseys, for the purpose, primarily, of supplying manure, but as dairying in Humboldt county is highly profitable, the manure from this Jersey farm will be considered practically a by-product. Additional dairies will be established in the vicinity of the New Haarlem Bulb Farms.

Thus far all of the plants which the management has determined to grow in large quantities commercially have been grown a sufficient length of time to amply demonstrate the fact that the plants can be produced of superior quality, and where buds, flowers or berries are necessary they will be produced in abundance.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business continues quiet and there is considerable difficulty experienced in disposing of what flowers arrive. Gladioli are in the worst position and sell at low prices. If growers would cut stock with not more than one or two flowers open, the blooms would sell much better, but a large proportion of those arriving have six to eight flowers open, and many are faded flowers. Such stock as this is hardly worth sending to market.

Asters are realizing fair prices. The best make $2 to $2.50 per hundred and the poorer grades 50 cents to $1 per hundred. The midseason sorts are now arriving. Lilies have been enjoying a mild boom and have been cleaning up decidedly better. White roses sell remarkably well, and for other colors the demand is fairly good. Ophelia, Double White Killarney, Stanley, Mrs. Hearst, Kaiserin and Miller are good.

A few of the new-crop carnations are straggling in. They are small and short-stemmed, and no one wants them. White asters are abundant and good. Valley is scarce. Cattleyas are hardly purchasable at all. Bouvardia in several colors is obtainable, and B. Humboldtii is realizing fair prices. Salpiglossis and cosmos are each fairly abundant, but the call for them is spasmodic. Asparagus sells only moderately well.

Various Notes.

W. E. Woodward & Son, of Saxonville, are sending more than twenty-five named varieties of gladioli to the wholesale market at present. Some of their best varieties are La Prophetesse, Glory, Spring Song, Pasha, Jessie, Glory of Holland, Mrs. F. Pendleton, Pride of Goshen, George Paul and Panama. All are handled by M. Aronson.

Hail storms have been more frequent and destructive in Massachusetts this summer than usual. August 21 a severe storm broke considerable glass and damaged outdoor stock badly. Lively & Bond, of Holbrook, lost a good deal of glass. Peter Pederzini, who started in business this spring at Medford, had many breakages in his new house. At Faulkner Farm, Brookline, the orchid and stove houses were badly broken. Glass was also broken at the R. & J. Farquhar & Co. houses at Dedham. These are only some of the sufferers.

The Budlong Rose Co. reports a strong call for white roses. It sells an average of 1,800 Double White Killarneys daily. Mrs. W. R. Hearst, Prima Donna, Ophelia and the company's Sunburst sport are all specially fine.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, left this week for a vacation to be spent principally in Maine. They will visit Bangor and Bar Harbor, among other places. Mr. Christensen has all his carnations housed, some 40,000 in number.

The show of children's gardens' exhibits at Horticultural hall September 1 and 2 will easily break all records. New England shows an increase of more than 275 per cent in gardens over 1916, and the children have aided materially in this increase. The annual dahlia and fruit exhibition will be held September 8 and 9.

George Shields, formerly with A. Leuthy & Co., is now greenhouse foreman for R. & J. Farquhar & Co., at Dedham. E. J. Schriver, lately with Farquhar's, now is with the Arnold & Fisher Co., Woburn.

John W. Foote, of Reading, is already sending in some of the new-crop carnations, such as Matchless and Enchantress Supreme. He is cutting a fine lot of bouvardia in three colors. The white Humboldtii is in strong demand for wedding bouquets.

John Nelson & Son, of Framingham, have had all their carnations, 40,000 of them, bedded for some time, and a fine looking lot they are. It would be difficult to find a duplicate for the Matchless seen there. Some wonderful plants of this variety were noted in the field.

Since August 9 we have recorded nearly eight inches of rain, which establishes almost a record for this month. As a consequence vegetables have made a most luxuriant growth, and crops which seemed a few weeks ago almost hopeless are now well up to the average.

In one of the windows of the Houghton-Gorney Co., on Tremont street, I noted a pretty arrangement of Chrysanthemum Golden Glow and Liatris pycnostachya. Nymphæas, salpiglossis and lilies were other flowers used in the same window.

Those who attended the New York convention from here appear to have enjoyed themselves in spite of the hot and highly humid atmospheric conditions existing.

M. Rosenthal, of the Boston Cut Flower Co., says that while business during the present summer has not been brisk, something has been doing all the time, and in volume it has been fully equal to that of a year ago.

Among the callers last week were T. E. Waters, at one time with Sutherland, of Boston, and now with the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, and C. S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me. Mr. Strout says he would have enjoyed the convention at New York more if the weather had not been so hot.

The meetings of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be resumed September 18, when William H. Elliott will speak on a recent trip to California.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

Another dull week has passed, although the cooler weather August 24 and 25 seemed to better business and improve market conditions.

American Beauties are plentiful and in good demand. Russell roses are to be had, but continue small and poor in quality. Others on the list are choice short and medium Sunburst, Shawyer, Killarney and whites. Red roses are poor, arriving full-blown.

The sale of valley and orchids is steady, thanks to the continuous run of wedding work. Asters and gladioli are in excessive supply, and there is not much funeral work to relieve the situation. Yellow mums have made their appearance, and together with tritoma, or red-hot poker, make attractive window displays.

Various Notes.

Charles Graham, of Cleveland, and Henry Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, as guests of P. Foley, of Chicago, spent an enjoyable day fishing at Apple Grove, Mich.

Adam Bezemer, of E. A. Fetters' Woodward avenue store, is spending his vacation at Kalamazoo, his home.

J. F. Sullivan is sending in many America gladioli from his greenhouses. They make a gorgeous display at his Woodward avenue store.

John Moore, of the John Breitmeyer's Sons force, has returned from his vacation at Grand Rapids.

The news that the 1919 convention of the S. A. F. will be held in Detroit caused surprise and delight. It is hoped that S. A. F. members will not regret their choice.

The Market.

There is a marked scarcity of roses in this market, particularly the white varieties, with no immediate relief in sight. What with the shortage of white roses and valley, it is extremely difficult to take proper care of wedding orders. Asters are in good supply, likewise gladioli, the better grades of which find a ready market. Flowers in the blue shades are much sought and are not easily obtained. Orchids and gardenias arrive in limited quantities, the former selling at from 75 cents to $1 each.

In the retail way the last week has been an uneventful one. With few exceptions purchases have been light and mostly confined to staple flowers. Gladioli, Jap lilies and ferns are playing a large part in the window displays.

John "Motor" Kirchner.

"One of the chief factors in the success of my business," says John Kirchner, "has been the early and continued use of auto delivery trucks." And as proof of his emphatic belief in this statement, it might be remarked that Mr. Kirchner has the sum of $20,000 invested in them. While the majority of florists have auto trucks for rapid and efficient delivery and transportation of stock, many still cling to obsolete methods of conducting this important part of the business, denoting that they have not awakened to the great advantages of the modern method of performing this work.

Various Notes.

Miss Elvira Schmidt has returned, after a pleasant two weeks' vacation, to her duties at the Gasser wholesale store.

Charles Russell, of the Jones-Russell Co., made a trip to Henderson, Ky., August 26, for the purpose of supervising the execution of some large funeral orders, for which a large quantity of stock was forwarded from the wholesale market.

Sam Seligman, fresh from the New York convention, is calling upon his firm's patrons here this week. Paul Berkowitz, of Bayersdorfer's, is also numbered among the visitors.

The F. T. D. window at the Gasser retail store is attracting much attention from the public. A novel feature is an electric aeroplane which makes its flights over a finely turned expanse of mountainous country. A certain ribbon salesman, who has done much of late in stimulating the attention of Detroit florists to the potentialities of this type of advertising, expressed himself as delighted with this masterly display.

Wm. F. Metzmaier, of Columbus, O., made a pleasant call upon friends in the trade, while returning from a vacation spent, in company with Mrs. Metzmaier, in Detroit and Toledo.

The monthly meeting of the Florists' Club falling upon Labor day, the same has been postponed to the following Monday night, September 10.

The Friedley Co. has an exceptionally large and finely assorted display of ferns, well worth a trip of inspection to the greenhouses. J. McL.

IT IS FALSE DRAGONHEAD.

Will you kindly tell me what the enclosed plant is? It was purchased from a reliable grower last spring as Shasta daisy Alaska. Is it hardy?

W. A. G.—Neb.

It is Physostegia virginiana, commonly called false dragonhead; a good hardy herbaceous perennial, of easy culture and well adapted for cutting.

C. W.

Bellefontaine, O.—Stelzig's Flower Store had a novel window decoration in honor of the school teachers attending a teacher's institute recently. It showed a school room, flowers, of course, being prominent.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C.; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

A. H. Smith, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, is on a brief trip to California.

The onion set crop in the Chicago district has been harvested in good condition.

Ralph M. Ward is in Japan, having recently returned there after a trip to China.

Peas will undoubtedly be short this year. Present estimates are placed at about fifty per cent of a crop. Hot winds are said to have done considerable damage.

The proceedings of the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association at Detroit, Mich., June 19 to 21, have been published in book form.

Reports from Michigan indicate that the crop of garden beans will not be large this year. Although the crop is good in some districts, in others cutworms and dry weather have brought about much destruction.

The E. G. Lewis Seed Co., of Media, Ill., recently was incorporated with a capital stock of $30,000. The incorporators were Edgar C. Lewis, Samuel N. Mathers, James J. Mathers and R. Pendarvis.

The officers of the Rudy-Patrick Seed Co., Kansas City, since the death of Frank Rudy, are as follows: President, Howard S. Patrick; vice-presidents, Roy A. Edwards and Ross M. Eldridge; secretary, John W. Miller; assistant secretary, Fred A. Starry; treasurer, Wilbur E. Hoover.

Charles J. Bolgiano, of J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md., has returned from a short stay at his summer home in the Allegheny mountains. Morris B. Robinson, manager of the firm's retail store, is at Mr. Bolgiano's mountain home recovering his strength after a serious illness with typhoid fever. Rozell Bowen, western representative of the firm, was in Chicago for two weeks the first part of August.

The meeting of seedsmen at the Hotel Gordon, Washington, D. C., August 21, which was called by Food Administrator Hoover, proved to be mainly for the purpose of helping the government secure information as to the supply of seed which would be available for the next year. The situation, as pertaining to the canning industry, was discussed and plans were laid to endeavor to get a proper distribution of stock so that all the canning factories will be supplied.

"The notes that have appeared in print in regard to the prospects of the seed harvest in America, and also in France, would seem to indicate that early activity is advisable in order to make sure of adequate stock for next season," says a writer in an English trade paper. "I have not come across any printed statement in regard to British seed crops, but so far as my travels enable me to judge I am inclined to think we shall produce more seed than usual and a good many subjects that we have hitherto been content to leave to other countries are being grown in fairly good quantities."

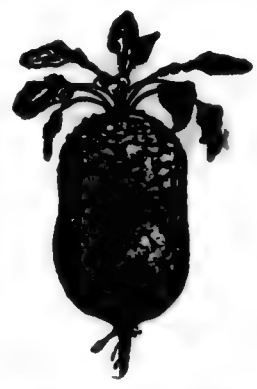
DUTCH BULB INSURANCE.



The continental insurance companies have notified Holland exporters of bulbs and plants that they have canceled the so-called "all risk" clause in their policies. This clause protected shipments of bulbs and plants against damage from heating, etc., when in transit.

The Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association, however, has made arrangements with the steamship companies with regard to proper ventilation in the holds of the steamships, and it is now almost impossible for the bulbs, even if the cargo consists entirely of bulbs, to heat in transportation so as to make them worthless for forcing or planting.

DUTCH BULBS ON THE WAY.

August 27 the Holland-America line advised certain large importers that one of its steamers sailed from Rotterdam August 25, with about 12,000 cases of bulbs in its cargo.

Winterson's Seed Store

166 No. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO

August 20 the same source of information gave news of the sailing of a boat August 18, with a cargo almost exclusively of bulbs.

Consequently, it may be taken as fairly well assured that the trade will receive more than half the quantity that came in last year and about three-fourths any previous season's imports. There are reports that these two boats are the only ones that will bring bulbs this season, but there seems reason to doubt if there is any foundation for such a story.

FREIGHT SITUATION ALARMING.

Those who have large interests in Japanese lily bulbs are on the anxious seat because of the freight situation. It has been known for months that there was likely to be a shortage of space in the boats from Japan, but nothing like the present situation had been anticipated. Rates have gone up from $25 to $75 per ton. There is so much demand for space that the boats cannot accommodate everyone and the lily importers are alarmed. It is expected that at least a portion of the quantities engaged will get across, but that arrival will be much later than usual. Formosa lilies are afloat, but are considerably overdue. If giganteums arrive in good condition they will be all right for Easter if they can be planted during the Christmas holidays.

SEED SURPLUS AND SHORTAGE.

The committee on seed stocks of the Department of Agriculture is endeavoring to assist in supplying information as to where seeds may be obtained. To this end it is announced that the committee will appreciate information from anyone who has seed to offer. The information should contain the name, kind and variety, and approximately the quantity of seed offered, as well as the price asked. The committee purposes to file all such information and to use it in answering inquiries that may be received from various parts of the country. All such communications should be addressed to R. A. Oakley, chairman, committe on seed stocks, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Red Orchid.	.75	2.50	8 50

EARLY MORNING STAR. Deep orange scarlet or flame color in standard, with rich orange pink wings. Under glass it is magnificent. The flowers are large and of best Spencer form and borne in threes and fours in wonderful profusion. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY SONG BIRD. The flower is the same color as "Florence Morse Spencer." The placement of the flowers is splendid for packing and the flowers are borne on long stems in threes and fours. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY MELODY. This is a deeper shade of pink than "Early Song Bird" on white ground, closely resembling "Countess Spencer." The effect is very floriferous. The flowers are borne on long stems and mostly four large well-waved blossoms to each stem. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

Mrs. Wm. Sim Orchid. Salmon-pink	$0.75	$2 50	$8.50

White Orchid. Pure white	.65	2.25	8.00
Yarrawa. Bright rose-pink	.65	2.25	8.00

EARLY SNOWFLAKE. This is the best Early Flowering White Seeded Spencer. The blossoms are very large and of the best waved Spencer form. The flowers are borne in wonderful profusion on long stems. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY HEATHER BELL. The flowers are very large, borne in fours and threes on long stout stems and are of beautiful bold Spencer form. The color is a rich but pleasing mauve, but after standing in water the color becomes a beautiful mauve lavender. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

EARLY SPRING MAID. Light pink on a cream ground. It is a most effective flower and carries a great wealth of blossoms borne in fours on long stems. 1/4 oz., 50c; oz., $1.75.

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

Seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

All sorts and mixtures except where noted are: $5.00 per oz., $1.25 per ¼ oz., 5000 seeds. $1.00; trade packet of 1000 seeds, 25c; any 5 packets, $1.00. Please order by number.

22. GIANT KENILWORTH STRAIN. The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½- to 4-in. It is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention. Light, Medium or Dark Mixtures.

24. GIANT KENILWORTH SHOW. An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance. A beautiful collection of colors and markings.

26. GIANT KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE. Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 in. long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

28. GIANT MASTERPIECE. A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance; large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stem.

30. GIANT THREE AND FIVE BLOTCHED PANSIES. A superb mixture. Flowers large and of circular form and of great substance. The display of coloring is unsurpassed. A combination of almost every shade of rich, velvety colors; reds are particularly conspicuous; the petals being distinctly marked with three or five large, dark blotches.

32. GIANT PARISIAN. The flowers are of enormous size and beautifully marked, mostly five dark blotches on white and yellow ground; an unusually showy mixture.

34. GIANT BRONZE. A fine mixture of all shades of velvety brown, bronze, Havana brown, mahogany and copper shades.

36. TRIUMPH OF GIANT. Remarkably beautiful. The imposing five-spotted flowers on long, vigorous stalks surmount the foliage in the most graceful manner, are of enormous size, perfectly round and of unusual substance. The individual petals are very broad and cover each other in such a manner as to make the flowers appear almost double, the border of every petal being conspicuously curled. The plants are of a robust growth and form compact bushes of a round shape.

10. KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seed carefully saved only from marked plants of the best varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. 500 seeds 30c, 1000 seeds 50c, ⅛ oz. $1.35, ¼ oz. $2.50, oz. $10.00.

New Early-flowering, or Winter Blooming

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden yellow with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations.

500 seeds 25c, 1000 seeds 40c, ⅛ oz. $1.10, ¼ oz. $2.00, oz. $7.50.

20. PRINCESS. (The New Upright Pansy.) This strain is entirely distinct from all others. It is absolutely compact, upright growing. The flowers are mostly blotched and frilled like the Masterpiece, of good form and heavy velvety texture on heavy stem carried well above the foliage. Attractive by brilliancy of its colors.

40. GIANT BATH'S EMPRESS. The finest of fancy English Pansies. Flowers are very large, mostly frilled and blotched and of great substance and the colors are brilliant and varied.

70. ORCHID-FLOWERED, Mixed. A dwarf, free bloomer, with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other Pansies; a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois.

GIANT PANSY SEED

In Separate Colors

38. Mme. Perret. Red and wine shades.
42. Adonis. Light blue, white center.
44. Black. Almost coal black.
46. Giant Apollo (Masterpiece type). New bronze, veined and blotched.
48. Lord Beaconsfield. Purple, shaded white.
50. Goliath. Large, curled yellow, blotched.
56. Light Blue Shades.
58. Indigo Blue. Deep, velvety blue.
80. Purple. Large, rich deep color.
84. Mercury. New. A deep blackish purple, really self-colored.
86. Pres. McKinley. Yellow, dark blotched.
90. Vulcan. Dark red, with five blotches.
92. Victoria. Blood red, violet blotches.
94. Red. A collection of rich, red shades.
98. Psyche. Curled white, with five blotches.
100. Yellow. With dark blotch.
102. Yellow. Large golden yellow.
104. White. With violet blotch.
106. White. Large satiny white.
110. The preceding 19 colors mixed in equal proportions.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The growers have completed the housing of their carnations, and in most cases the plants are the best ever. Mums are coming along finely and in some instances the buds are showing color. The dry spell from which Bridgeport has been suffering fortunately has been broken; good showers saved what outdoor stock was left. Were it not for funeral work, business in general would be rather dull, there being little demand for cut flowers.

Recently the Florists' Club enjoyed its first outing in the form of a sheep roast on the grounds of Fred Kolb. Mr. Kolb had charge of the roasting, and everyone present voted the lamb cooked to the king's taste. Games and races were indulged in and, the day being an ideal one, they were enjoyed by all.

James Horan & Son have their carnations housed, and the men expect to cut mums soon.

The Park Gardens are offering fine asters. Trade in general is good for this time of year.

Robert Hawkins recently designed a broken column five feet in height that was made of White Killarney and Killarney roses. He is installing a new icebox in his Main street store.

Fred Kolb is housing some fine carnations.

John Reck & Son report an abundance of funeral work. They are planting their first shipment of French bulbs.

James Beach has a fine lot of Boston and Whitmanii ferns coming on for the fall trade. He is cutting splendid asters and snapdragons. The range was closed at noon on one of the hot days recently and all workers were invited for the remainder of the day to Mr. Beach's home in Milford. Miss Sarah Beach returned recently from abroad, where she has been since last September.

Frederick E. Bouton, the junior member of G. C. Bouton & Son, is convalescing at his home, after undergoing an operation at the Bridgeport hospital.

PLUMOSUS GOOD FOR YEARS.

Is it better to use the old plumosus roots than to bench young plants each year? K. G.—Kan.

Plants of Asparagus plumosus, provided they have a good depth of soil and are well fed, will last for a number of years and give better service than young plants each season. C. W.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Stock of the second-rate grade continues to pile up and be sent to the dump, but retailers say they could use more first-rate flowers. There have been quite a number of good wedding decorations, and these would have used far more good roses, orchids and such stock. Some excellent rubrum lilies, asters and Golden Glow have been drawn on for the larger work, while table decoration and bouquets have suffered. Belladonna lilies are plentiful and their fragrance helps to sell them. Asters are keeping up well, the best coming from the foothill and beach growers.

Indoor carnations of good quality are scarce, and so are roses. Orchids come in irregularly, and there are never enough for the demand. Valley is also scarce. Centaureas are good for funeral work; gladioli are scarce. Dahlias are plentiful, but there are too few of the clear, decided tints and too many mixed colors. On account of the lack of shipping business, greens are excessively plentiful.

Various Notes.

John Gordon has returned to his place at Frank Lichtenberg's looking well and sunburned, and one can well believe him when he says he has enjoyed his two weeks' vacation. Business has kept up fairly well at the store.

Fred Sperry is around again, quite recovered from the effects of his operation, and says that it has been a great relief to him.

The Star Nursery, at Montebello, has erected more glass and made several changes and improvements. Some fine Cocos plumosa, planted four or five years ago, are now being lifted. They meet with a ready sale.

H. A. Marks, of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., has returned from his eastern trip.

Stanley Purdy says he is well satisfied with his start in business at the Freeman store.

Among the shipments from the S. Murata & Co. store last week was a large horseshoe for a store opening "somewhere" in Arizona.

F. R. Hills has another large greenhouse under way, the demand for his ferns having again exceeded the supply. Mr. and Mrs. Hills celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their wedding August 19, in their usual way, too, of giving other people pleasure, taking friends out in one of their machines and putting the other at the service of the men in the nursery.

Walter Armacost & Co., in addition to their rose shipments, are supplying a good deal of the valley and orchids sold locally, and the stock is fine in every way. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

There is little change in the market situation since the last report either with regard to stock or condition of business. The demand leaves no ground for complaint and there are plenty of flowers, with the exception of orchids and first-class roses. Orchids continue in unusually light supply, the retailers having great difficulty in obtaining blooms to fill the orders. Valley also is on the short side of the market, but the shortage is not so acute as in the case of orchids. Gardenias clean up closely from day to day.

Asters are about at their height now and easily dominate the local market. There are indications that the supply might become a trifle burdensome, but so far the steadily increasing offerings have managed to find an outlet without any of the stock being sacrificed. The heavy shipping demand helps materially in taking care of the enormous supplies. Chrysanthemums are more in evidence, but the blooms are still too soft to justify a heavy shipping movement. Monrovia and October Frost will be added to the earlier varieties in another week. A few violets find their way to market, but they are far from plentiful and clean up readily at comparatively high prices.

New-crop carnations are more plentiful. With the arrival of good stock, the demand is better. The carnations have been so poor for several weeks that little attention was accorded them. Gladioli are going off crop rapidly.

Amaryllis Belladonna shows splendid quality and meets with a good demand. Rubrum lilies leave nothing to be desired in quantity, quality or demand. The cut flowers sell well, also the potted plants. Dahlias are offered in a wide assortment of colors, sizes and types. Not much can be said of roses. The offerings are not especially fine, neither are they especially poor. The same average maintains for nearly all varieties. Beauties are still negligible.

Various Notes.

Luther Burbank was elected an active member of the Dahlia Society of California at the monthly meeting at the Palace hotel August 18. Mr. Burbank is interested in the development of the dahlia and appreciates the work being done by the society. He is interested in several new varieties and will have an educational exhibit at the annual show, which will be held at the hotel September 3 to 5. Entries for the display are coming in so rapidly that the management fears late applicants will not be able to secure space, notwithstanding the fact that double the space used last year has been engaged.

Daniel MacRorie and Donald McLaren, of MacRorie & McLaren, have returned from a visit to the Cottage Gardens Nurseries at Eureka, Cal. R. Bernadeau, manager of the company's retail store, and Fred Hammarstron, work. This firm had several good-sized landscape engineer, are away on vacations.

The appearance of the Art Floral Co. store has been freshened up by a thorough renovation. New baskets have been provided for window display decorations last week that kept the force busy.

P. L. Rosaia has accepted a position with the Art Floral Co. and will have charge of the designing department. He has had several years' experience in the florists' business, having been associated with his brothers under the name of Rosaia Bros., at Seattle, Wash.

B. W. Alberts, with J. B. Alberts, orchid collector of Louisville, Ky., has been visiting in this city.

Louis Picetti, manager of the plant and seed department at the Emporium, which is operated by Navlet & Co., of San Jose, was drawn in the first draft, as well as his two brothers, and he is anxiously waiting to see if all three will be called for service. He is receiving large shipments of bulbs and reports a strong demand.

Frank Pelicano has about 200 plants of his Dr. Tevis dahlia this year and is bringing in many fine blooms.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have received a large shipment of baskets from the Raedlein Basket Co., of Chicago. There has been a rush of funeral work at this store for nearly two weeks. Mr. Canavaro is spending his vacation in Calaveras county. Peter Griffo has enlisted in the army.

Julius Eppstein, proprietor of the flower stand in the St. Francis hotel, still has his foot in a cast, and is confined to his room most of the time. He is anxious to be up and doing again.

Joseph's had two weddings the same day last week, but there was some difficulty in getting enough orchids.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Business as a whole has shown an improvement during the last week. Funeral work has been a large item, with prices above the average being obtained for much of the work done. Wedding work, which slumped a little during the extremely hot weather of July and early August, is again becoming an important feature of each day's total.

Stock is plentiful and improvement in quality is noticeable in most flowers. Roses, both the home-grown and those coming in from the coast, are good as to flower, though not long of stem. As the call during the summer, however, is not usually for the highest-priced stock, the absence of a few inches on the one end of the stem does not make much difference. There will be many carnations cut during the early winter, judging by the condition of the young stock.

Various Notes.

Bernson & Halle are cutting new carnations of good quality and are more enthusiastic than ever over the showing Aviator is making.

The Hoyt Bros. Co. is taking pride in its new delivery car, which is about the most handsome thing devised in the way of delivery service.

The Spokane Florist Co. has been exceptionally fortunate in landing several large decorative orders. Business has been good with the company through the summer months.

A. J. Burt announced his intention of opening a store in the Clemmer theater building about September 1. He was formerly in business at 829 Riverside, but retired from the retail field when he sold out to Adolph Donart last spring.

L. B. H.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The supply has exceeded the demand during the last week, there being a large supply of gladioli and asters, with but little call for them. Golden Glow chrysanthemums have reached the market, and there are enough carnations and roses to supply the small demand. Zinnias are plentiful. Business was exceptionally quiet at the retail stores last week.

Society Meeting.

The Portland Floral Society held its regular meeting at the Masonic Temple August 21, with about forty members present. J. H. Wood was elected a member and M. H. Gorman, curator of the Forestry building, an honorary member.

The next twelve meetings will be in the hands of an entertainment committee of twelve members, each member to provide the entertainment for one meeting. The members of the committee are Messrs. Scott, Birchler, Zitzewitz, Pilkington, Steele, Niklas, Gehr, Forbes, Clarke, Bacher, Dossche and Van Kirk. On the program committee are Messrs. Gill, Weed, Mische, Bodley, Tonseth, Smith, Feser, Routledge, White, Kahn, Bacher and Lewis. The other committees appointed were: Exhibits, Messrs. Forbes, Clarke, Pilkington, Wood, Smith, Tonseth, Dossche, Scott, White and Feser; retailers, Messrs. Clarke, Forbes, Lubliner, Smith, Routledge and Welty; growers, Messrs. Borsch, Holden, Panzer, Zimmerman, Zitzewitz and White.

The members were requested to bring to the next meeting lists of stock they have for sale and of stock they want to buy. It is contemplated that by submitting the one to the retailers and the other to the growers much stock will be moved that otherwise would be lost. A plan was also announced to establish the credit ratings of florists in the northwest. Members were asked to submit lists of florists with whom they do business and their ratings to Secretary F. A. Van Kirk.

There was a spirited discussion of the labor situation and it was agreed that in view of the shortage of men it will be necessary to pay $3 or $3.50 per day for greenhouse help, the increased cost of production to be secured by raising prices. Mr. Zimmerman reported that the beds at the Gresham fair are in fine condition, there being about 2,000 square feet planted to perennials, bedding stock and annuals.

Messrs. Pilkington and Niklas urged all members to push the society's campaign for membership. All florists, seedsmen, nurserymen and gardeners are eligible to membership, and it was pointed out that the membership fee of $2 should not stop anyone.

Various Notes.

J. H. Wood, of the Portland Seed Co., who fell at the store about a month ago and injured his spine, is at Long Beach, slowly recovering from his injury.

J. N. Hooker, of Pendleton, Ore., reports that he intends to build a small greenhouse this fall.

Thompson's Horticultural Works have completed an iron-frame house, 35x125 feet, for Scott Bros., at Moscow, Idaho. At present the company is erecting a curved-eave conservatory for T. B. Wilcox.

The city greenhouses at Columbia park have been torn down and are being erected at Mount Tabor park. These houses are used for propagating young plants and for storage of palms in the winter.

Julius Dossche's fertilizer business is now being done under the name of Pacific Coast Products Co.

TACOMA, WASH.

Showers the early part of last week helped to freshen up things a little. It blighted the peas and asters for a few days, but it probably was a benefit in the long run. Growers are looking for a heavy demand and there probably would be a number of new houses put up were it not for the tremendous advance in the price of all greenhouse material and the scarcity of fuel. Owing to the trouble in the lumber industry, the supply of "slabs," or lumber culls, from the mill yards is limited. They have been popular fuel for greenhouse boilers until recently. Coal is exorbitant in price, so the heating problem is an unsolved one.

A. G. Seamons, of Van Slyke & Seamons, will leave the early part of the week with his son Joseph for a motoring trip east of the mountains. He expects to be away for a couple of weeks.

There is nothing new in cut flowers, good gladioli, asters and peas being the main feature. Good marigolds and improved carnations also are plentiful. Business is holding up well for the summer months, and as it usually picks up nicely during the latter part of September or the first of October, the trade feels as though it has weathered the dull season well, indeed. NURSERYMEN, as a class, are recovering from the panic into which many of them were thrown by the slump in business last spring and alarm is giving place to confidence that the autumn season will be more nearly normal.

JOHN L. WAGNER & SONS, of Baltimore, Md., expect to add nursery stock to their plant and cut flower growing business. The Wagner establishment is near Green Spring valley, the region of the summer homes of the wealthy people of Baltimore.

(Ruhm von Mordrecht)

This splendid Fern, which so closely resembles Adiantum Farleyense in appearance and which does not require the special skill and care in growing that is necessary to produce good plants of A. Farleyense, has quickly made a place for itself not only on account of the fact that it can be produced for little over half that of growing Farleyense, but also because either in a cut state or as plants used in decorative work, it will outlast the old variety ten to one, making it an available subject where Farleyense cannot be used at all. Since its introduction some five or six years ago there has never been a supply large enough to meet the demand.

We have this season prepared an extra large stock and we offer

2¼-inch pots	$1.50 per doz.;	$10.00 per 100
3-inch pots	2.00 per doz.;	15.00 per 100
4-inch pots	3.50 per doz.;	25.00 per 100
5-inch pots	9.00 per doz.;	75.00 per 100

Asplenium Nidus Avis

Bird's Nest Fern

A splendid healthy lot of 2¼-inch pots, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; fine 3-inch pots, $2.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100.

ASPLENIUM NIDUS AVIS (Bird's Nest Fern)

CYRTOMIUM ROCHFORDIANUM COMPACTUM

Cyrtomium Rochfordianum Compactum

Awarded a Silver Medal at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, April, 1916.

A splendid compact growing form of Cyrtomium Rochfordianum which originated with us. A variety which is meeting with universal favor. It is valuable either as a small plant or for growing on into specimens. We offer a fine stock.

2¼-inch pots	$6.00 per 100;	$50.00 per 1000
3-inch pots	1.25 per doz.:	10.00 per 100
4-inch pots	2.50 per doz.:	20.00 per 100

We also offer seedlings in flats, about 200 plants to a flat, at $3.00 per flat.

Pteris Rivertoniana

Awarded a Silver Medal at the National Flower Show, Philadelphia, April, 1916.

This is one of the most distinct and desirable of the many crested forms of Pteris now grown.

2¼-inch pots, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Pteris Childsi

This beautiful variety is to Pteris what Farleyense is to Adiantums, and like that variety produces no spore, so that propagation is by the rather slow method of division, which will keep it a rare variety. The plant is of strong growth, attaining a height of about 20 inches; fronds large, pinnæ deeply dentated and undulated; tips crested. Makes a beautiful specimen for exhibition.

Fine plants, 5-inch pots, 75c each.

Pappio river, to Richard Caplis, a Detroit realty man, for about $40,000. Mr. Caplis, who saw the farm on his last visit to Omaha, bought it as an investment, the sale being closed through L. D. Spalding.

Buying the bulk of the farm in 1909 of Claus Sievers, Mr. Rosenfield added to it until it now contains about twenty-four and a half acres. He has erected several buildings and is to construct another for the new owner, who will manage it next season. Mr. Rosenfield reserves 15,000 plants to remove this fall, selling some of them and keeping others "for my own amusement," he says.

He plans to remain in Omaha at least a year or two.

The peony farm with its rich soil and many exclusive varieties of flowers is one of the show places of Omaha.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Babcock Peony Gardens, R. F. D. 79, Jamestown, N. Y.—Illustrated catalogue of peonies and other stock, such as gladioli, irises, phloxes, narcissi, Darwin tulips and hardy lilies; sixteen good-sized, well-printed pages, in a tasteful cover. The Brand seedlings have a conspicuous place among the peonies. Enclosed with the general catalogue are two condensed peony lists, wholesale and retail.

Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn.—Special offer of general nursery stock for fall planting. This 8-page folder announces the proposed removal of the nursery to new grounds, and states that it is the company's intention to dispose of as much of the present stock as possible by "clearance sale."

J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md.—An illustrated seed catalogue, containing twenty unusually large pages and quoting "wholesale summer and fall prices, for market gardeners, truckers and farmers." Poultry and pigeon supplies also are listed.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, Ill.—An artistic 24-page catalogue, with the title "The Kroeschell Fire and Water Tube Boiler." The book is handsomely printed in black and red on a good quality of enameled paper, is finely illustrated and is bound in a brown cover that is notable for both tastefulness and durability. The special purpose of the book is "to describe the high-pressure Kroeschell steam boiler, which is manufactured in units ranging from 100 to 350 horsepower."

No use to continue the ad; we were all sold out on one insertion.—Casa de Flores Greenhouses, Corpus Christi, Tex.

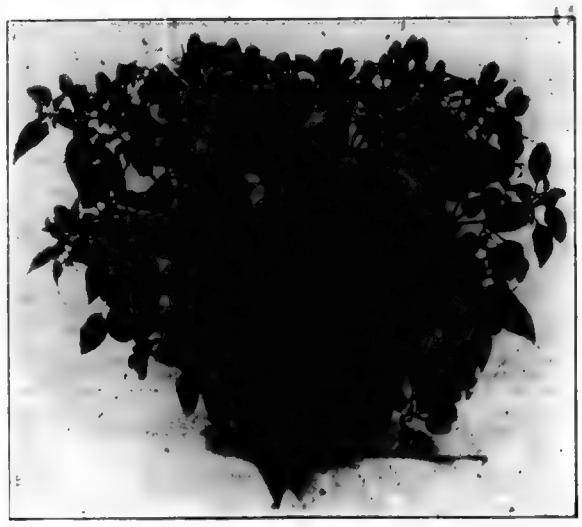
COLUMBUS, O.

Business has improved since the last writing, but is still quiet, with plenty of cut stock coming in. There is a scarcity of blooming plants; it is hard to procure much in that line at present. Ferns have been moving well, but are in rather short supply. Gladioli have been more than plentiful and at times it has been difficult to move them at any price, but the bulk seems to be about over with, and this will make it better for those to come from now on.



Roses have been plentiful, outside of whites, which have been markedly scarce. The blooms as a rule move well. Fine Russell roses arrive, and they go about the first. Shawyer, Milady, Ophelia and Maryland seem to make up the receipts, with a few Killarney now and then. Asters have been hard to get, and the good stock that does come in is cleaned up at good prices. Asters have been much of a failure again this year, and nearly all that come in are grown by amateurs.

Lilies are none too plentiful, the demand being about equal to the supply. Carnations are making their appearance again, but the quality is not extra and the stems are short. They work in nicely, however, as people want them even if they are small. Valley is not in good supply at this time, but the demand has not been heavy.

Nearly all of the workers have returned from their vacations and will be ready for the busy season when it opens, which all hope will be shortly.

J. M.

Bloomington, Ill. — The two new houses of Washburn & Sons, which brought the area of the range to 68,000 feet, have been planted to roses. The young stock is in prime condition.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

Jean Becanne, a retired florist of Alameda, Cal., died at his home in that city August 17, leaving a wife to mourn his loss. He had lived in Alameda for thirty-eight years and had many friends in the San Francisco bay district.

Horace G. Keesling, well-known grower of the Santa Clara valley, has had a fine display of petunias at the Chamber of Commerce rooms at San Jose, Cal., the showing including nearly fifty varieties.

J. A. Axell, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., is supplying a heavy shipping demand for Amaryllis Belladonna. Mrs. Axell, who takes an active part in the business, is spending her vacation at Pacific Grove, Cal.

The C. Kooyman Co., Inc., is working on a new florists' supply catalogue. Mr. Kooyman reports the shipping business holding up well.

The flower show committee of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society held a meeting August 23 at which it was decided to postpone final details for the proposed spring flower show until later.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, was in town this week, accompanied by Mrs. Ebel. S. H. G.

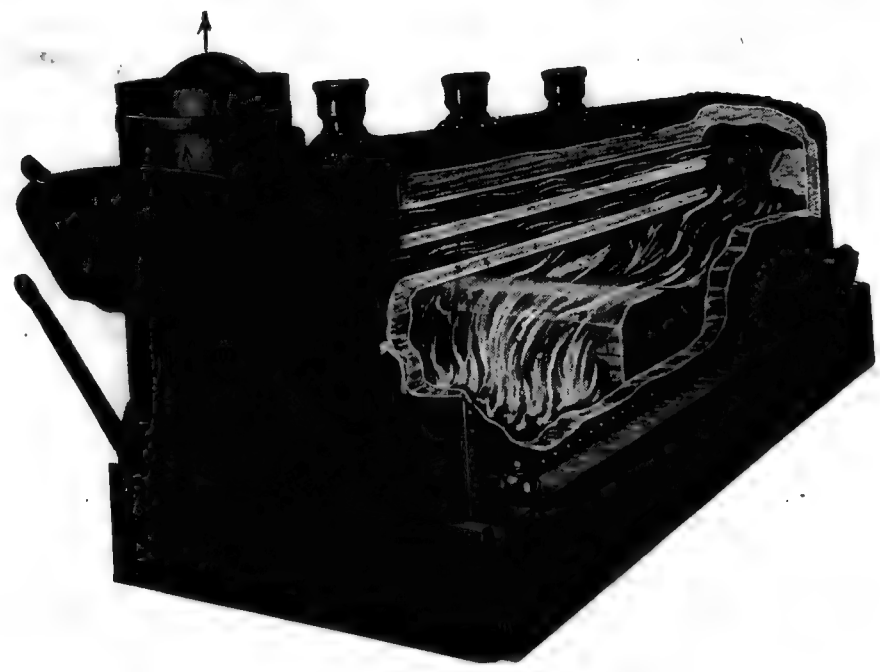
Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

HOUSES ON SLOPING GROUND.

I am planning to build a greenhouse this season, or perhaps two greenhouses, each 20x50. One will be used for flowers and the other for vegetables. The houses will be even-span and will run north and south. The side walls will be at least six feet high. The boiler room will be at the north end. The south gables will be glass and there will be twenty inches of glass in the side walls. The ground slopes to the east and the first house erected will be at the base of the incline. If I raise the second house eighteen or twenty inches, can I heat both houses satisfactorily? Please give directions for the piping of both houses, though I may not be able to build both of them this season. L. E. B.—Mich.

The letter does not state what classes of vegetables or plants will be grown in the houses, but if a temperature of 60 degrees is needed in one house and 50 degrees in the other we would suggest the following arrangement of the piping: In either case we would use three 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one upon each plate and the other three feet under the ridge, with twelve 2-inch return pipes for 60 degrees and eight 2-inch returns for 50 degrees. If it is found more convenient to put in 2-inch pipes for the flows and 1½-inch pipes for the returns, use three flows, with fifteen returns for 60 degrees and ten returns for 50 degrees.



While all of the flow pipes may start at or near the boiler, 4-inch main flow and return pipes may be used for each of the houses. In all cases the return coils should be connected with the boiler by means of pipes of the same size or capacity as that of the main flow pipes. Unless the difference in the level of the houses is more than two feet, there should be no difficulty in securing an even distribution of the water, although it will be advisable to place valves, at least upon the flow pipe or pipes leading to the higher house, with which to check the flow to that house in case

The immense amount of direct self-cleaning heating surface and the thin vertical waterways cause this type of boiler construction to heat water quicker than any other form of boiler.

Hundreds of Florists' Review readers are using the Kroeschell Boiler and mighty is their praise. This year has brought us an enormous number of new customers who have seen our boiler in operation at other places. We attribute the large sales of this season to the good work the Kroeschell Boiler is doing everywhere. With our policy—"the customers' interest first"—perfection of construction—factory to user prices—honest and "true blue" boiler ratings—you simply cannot lose.

there is too much of a tendency to flow in that direction.

In running the pipes, care should be taken to give them a slight but even fall from the boiler, so that air cannot collect in pockets. If the highest point in the system is at or near the boiler, and the flow pipes run downhill, the expansion tank may be connected to the highest point of one of the pipes by means of a 1-inch pipe, and if smaller pipes are run to the highest points in each of the other pipes there will be no occasion for using air valves. The returns connected with the flows upon the plates may be either on the walls or under the side benches, and the other returns should be distributed under the middle bench in each house.

The Market.

Though none too active, business can hardly be called sluggish. The market is in fair condition with regard to stock, in comparison with last week's shortage.

Lilies are coming in more freely, but bring a higher price than those of a month ago. Lilies no better than those formerly sold at $5 and $8 now make $10. Asters are in the greatest supply of all items and are of a better quality than previously. The prices range from $1.50 to $3, and at these figures the blooms are in good demand.

New carnations are making their appearance, in limited numbers. Roses from young stock make a good showing and meet with a ready call at $1.50 to $5 per hundred. Snapdragons have been benefited by the cooler weather and now make a more conspicuous showing. Tuberoses are newcomers in both the double and single varieties, the former being quoted at $5 and $6 and the latter at $3. Dahlias are exceptionally slow in cropping this season. A few are available, but in quantities insufficient for any special use. Cosmos is increasing in supply and is helping to fill up the void.

Various Notes.

Hartje & Elder and the Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co. are cutting good late asters.

Baur & Steinkamp are producers of some good new carnations seen in the market.

William Roepke has gone to Chicago in regard to stock for the Indiana state fair.

Walter Bertermann has returned from New York, where he attended the S. A. F. convention.

G. Bookedis has gone to Chicago for a few days and Otto Lawrence is off on his vacation.

F. G. Nelson, of Burlington, Ia., was a recent visitor in the city. E. E. T.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Business was fair last week. The market was well stocked, particularly with such outdoor stock as gladioli and gaillardias. Lilies, which, owing to the dry weather, have been scarce, are more plentiful. The weather was warm last week, but growers are complaining over the lack of rain.

John Hayden has moved his store two doors south of the former place at Twenty-sixth street and Hennepin avenue. The new store is much larger and has more window space.

Miss Gertrude Schildger, of the Whitted Floral Co., is spending her vacation in Chicago. Joseph J. Orp, of the same company, has returned from a motor trip to Pelican lake. The store force has had considerable wedding work of late.

Moore, Terwilliger & Co. had an artistic display of pottery last week.

Falls City, Neb.—The hail storm which visited this section August 8 damaged 13,000 feet of glass at the range of Simanton & Pence. The carnations, mums and roses indoors were badly cut, but the firm thinks the plants will grow out in time. The glass was fully insured.

DAYLITE GLASS CLEANER

QUICK

We are usually too busy to give testimonials but most of us like to receive commendation for our goods, and we thought you would not object to a line from us in that direction. We have in front of our store a large marquee with a wired glass top. The latter has been extremely dirty, and we have not been able to clean it with water. It occurred to the writer to have our porter make an application of Andersen Daylite Glass Cleaner, and it is almost unbelievable what a difference there is! The glass is now as if it were new, and we have fully 75 per cent more light.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

Business for the month of August has been exceptionally good. The numerous military weddings have contributed toward a better summer business. Stock of all kinds, except carnations, is in good supply. Asters and gladioli are in their prime now, and are the best sellers, other garden flowers being about over with. A few Easter and rubrum lilies may be had. Russell and Ophelia roses are the most popular for summer use. Sweet peas have been fair since the cooler weather set in, but they will not last much longer.

Various Notes.

Henry Smith's store has been a rather busy place for summer. The interior of the store has been redecorated.

Eli Cross has been cutting quantities of fine gladioli.

Arthur Crabb has been busy with military weddings and decorations. One military ball called for nineteen large and ten small baskets, which covered seventy-five square feet of tables.

Alfred Hannah & Co. have been unusually busy with good summer business and a renovation of the store at the same time. A. F. C.

DENVER, COLO.

Business last week was exceptionally good, banquets and receptions to the army men who received commissions at Fort Riley, Kan., bringing considerable business to the florists. The weather has been fair, but the nights are beginning to be cool, and this, in these days of the high cost of fuel, causes some of the growers to worry about the coal pile.

D. R. Gwillim, who for years has conducted a store at Victor, Colo., has entered the automobile business in Denver. He has not yet disposed of his store at Victor.

P. O. Hansen, of Greeley, Colo., motored to Denver last week. He says business at Greeley has been good this summer.

The staff at the Broadway store of the Park Floral Co. has been working early and late to get out the work. The store had two large decorations on one day, one at Fort Logan and the other at Aurora. Two members of the store staff have joined the army, Eugene Ardeldt, who is with the engineers' corps at the rifle range near Golden, Colo., and Zeal Neff, who is with the cavalry at Camp Baldwin.

Harry L. Hunt, of the Kearney Floral Co., Kearney, Neb., and S. A. Knudson, of Boulder, Colo., were recent visitors. R. S.

Sturgeon Bay, Wis.—The Burlington Floral Co. has its new store ready for business. The equipment includes a modern refrigerator, installed by Buchbinder Bros., of Chicago.

The Market.

Business is better than it has been, the call for stock for funeral work being steady. There have been a few good decorations and orders for flowers for hospitals have been good. Prices remain about the same.

There is a plentiful supply of outdoor stock, with gladioli, asters and hydrangeas in the lead. Gladiolus prices hold up well, the best varieties bringing topnotch prices. There seems to be a shortage in the rose crop. There is a good supply of the shorter grades, but the best grades, with long stems, are hard to procure. Carnations, of course, are scarce. A few of the short-stemmed come from the fields, and they are used mostly in funeral designs. Dahlias and zinnias are arriving in large quantities. Valley commands high prices. Cattleyas are off crop at present. Larkspurs are utilized for store decorations. Rubrum, album and Easter lilies continue plentiful. Other offerings are feverfew, snapdragons, cornflowers, salpiglossis and cosmos. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Miss C. B. Flick, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., is spending a three weeks' vacation with her niece, Mrs. Mildred Flick Buchanan, of this city. Miss Flick says that business at Toledo has been most active throughout the summer and that she is glad to get a rest.

Miss Marguerite Flick, of the Flick Floral Co., has returned from a several weeks' visit with friends in Detroit, Mich.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., was one of the judges at the recent celebration of the "Potato Patch Patriots," at Foster Park. Mr. Vesey has been called in the first draft and will probably go to the training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison within a few weeks.

The drop in the prices of coal, as regulated by the government, has greatly relieved the growers here, and they are facing the winter in a more optimistic frame of mind than a few weeks ago. R. F.
